RUSSIANS CLAIM GREAT NEW VICTORIES OVER NAZIS

BRITISH REPORT 8 VESSELS LOST IN SEA ATTACK

Convoy Pounded By Submarines And Four-Engine Bombers SPECTACULAR STORY TOLD OF BITTER OCEAN BATTLE
Scores Of Lives Believed Lost
Despite Many Heroic
Rescues

LONDON, Sept. 13.—(AP)—The admiralty in an unusual announcement tonight disclosed that a large British Atlantic convoy had clashed with German submarines and four-engine bombers in a running battle which began in mid-ocean and continued for three days, the British losing eight ships, and it was indicated, scores of lives.

The majority of the convoy has now arrived safely, the admiralty said, but it told a spectacular story of a bitter battle at sea in which the weather combined with German torpedoes and bombs to plague the long string of merchant vessels, a story of gallant rescues under fire of men whose lives were only to be lost a few hours later in subsequent attack.

The admiralty as usual failed to specify the dates of the attacks and was silent on the number of ships in the convoy, but qualified sources insisted it was impossible that this convoy could have been the same which the Germans claim has lost 31 vessels, including three warships, under their attack in the past few days.

The admiralty has never been known to disclose anything relating to convoys until a number of days after they have reached port and been unloaded, whereas the Germans reported their big attack was continuing Friday.

Briefly it was a story of three ships being sunk by submarine torpedoes, four by bombs from the air and an eighth, damaged under fire, going down in a gale.

The details were told by the admiralty in a circular of a type used only in extraordinary circumstances.

Far out in the Atlantic early one morning, it said, a submarine struck, and two ships were sunk within a few minutes. The little 1,473-ton elevator Brandenburg left the convoy string and went to the rescue, picking up nearly all of the crew of one ship.

The 990-ton naval escort sloop Deftford lowered a boat for the others, left the boat, and went submarine hunting. Later she picked up her boat, loaded with survivors.

"The convoy sailed on," the admiralty said, but only to be attacked 12 hours later by six four-engine Focke-Wulf bombers which "pressed home their attack relentlessly despite a fierce fire" from the armed merchant ships and their escorts.

Four ships went down, a fifth was damaged. Survivors were picked up, and again "the convoy sailed on."

The next morning came the second submarine attack, and the gallant little Brandenburg, now carrying with the men she rescued more than double her own complement, was hit and sank immediately.

"Only one man was saved," the admiralty statement said.

The ordeal still was not ended. On the third day came wireless messages showing that a "trading German warship" was in the vicinity. Luckily for the British, it never found the crippled string of convoy survivors.

The final blow was still to come.
The weather whipped up now and for two days and a night a gale raged.
The convoy hove to, but the storm was too much for the bomb-crippled vessel. She began to sink.

As she went down, however, the other vessels stood by and not a single life was lost.

The admiralty account mentioned only two escort vessels, the Deftford and the 990-ton destroyer Velox.

SERGEANT KILLED, 3 CORPORALS HURT

LAKE CHARLES, La., Sept. 13.—(P)— Sergeant Walter L. Howard was killed and three other soldiers injured today when their automobile struck a bridge shoulder two miles south of Oberlin this morning.

All were members of the military police company, 34th division, stationed at Camp Claiborne.

Howard's death was the 36th reported among troops of the Third army during current maneuvers, and the 59th for the combined Second and Third armies.

Injured were Corporal Everett Berry, fractured left elbow and chest injury; Corporal James E. Killen, fractured skull and possible internal injuries; and Corporal Robert P. Johnson, fractured right thigh and multiple lacerations of arms and legs.

Berry and Killen were reported in critical condition.

Four brothers of Sergeant Howard are in the same company.

Trooper D. D. Harvey of the state police said the car apparently went out of control, hit the bridge and overturned.

Storm Threatens To Disrupt Maneuvers

PLANES RUSHING TO INLAND PORTS TO ESCAPE WIND

500,000 Troops Camped In Piney Woods In Path Of Hurricane PERSONS IN LOW PLACES WARNED TO SEEK SAFETY
No Postponement Planned In Launching Games Of Two Armies

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 13.—(P)—A tropical storm attended by winds of gale force was moving west or west-northwestward in the Gulf of Mexico tonight, the weather bureau said, and probably would strike the Texas coast some time tomorrow.

The weather bureau's night advisory said the tropical disturbance, which has skirted Louisiana's gulf coast for several days, was located about 50 miles south of Morgan City, La., moving at about 15 miles an hour, attended by shifting gales of 50 to 60 miles per hour at its center, and by 30 to 40 mile squalls north of its center.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 13.—(P)—A tropical storm of growing intensity, which has skirted Louisiana's gulf coast for several days, today curved northward toward western Louisiana and threatened disruption of the beginning Sunday at midnight of the United States army's greatest maneuvers.

Nearly 500,000 troops from every part of the nation were encamped in piney woods hills directly in the path of the storm which latest reports from the weather bureau said would reach gale intensity and which was expected to pass inland after midnight between Bayou Vermilion and the Sabine river, which forms the Texas-
Louisiana state line.

Fleeing before the storm, nearly 500

SLAYER HUNTED BY POLICE HERE

Elmer Minner, 2807 Lee Avenue, Beaten To Death On Dick Taylor Street

Monroe police last night were pushing a hunt for the slayer or slayers of Elmer Minner, 50, of 2807 Lee avenue, who was found dead at 6:30 a. m.
Saturday in the weeds on the east side of Dick Taylor street, where Carolina avenue comes to a dead end, Acting Police Chief B. L. Brantley announced.

After a preliminary examination Ouchita Parish Coroner J. T. French said "death resulted from a fractured skull caused by blows of a blunt instrument." Minner's head, the coroner said, was cut once on the top and on the rear.

A stick of wood about four feet long and said to be the kind used in making barrel staves at the coopers place was found near the body, and the police expressed a belief that the stick was used to kill Minner.

There was no blood on the stick.

Note Found In Wreck Of Long-Lost Baby Clipper

ST. JOHNS, Newfoundland, Sept. 13.—
The next to last chapter in the story of a youthful attempt to fly the Atlantic behind a four-cylinder motor has been unfolded in the wilds of Newfoundland with discovery of the wreckage of Thomas H. Smith's baby clipper.

Inside the tiny cabin was a piece of notepaper, weathered by more than two years of summer sun and winter cold, which read, in part:

"Walking out to avoid freezing."
That was all. No other trace of the airman was found.

The chances are that his remains lie somewhere in the wild bush country.
Their discovery would write an end to the story that began May 28, 1929, at Old Orchard, Me., when the baby clipper lifted its silver nose into the eastern sky in an unheralded takeoff.
Smith was 24 years old.

The region of his forced landing is 30 miles inland in western Newfoundland, a section of busy wilderness, rocks and lakes.

The note indicated that the youth was aware of his possible fate for in

First Selectee Over 28 Released By Army

W. Houston Wolfe (right), a butcher from Atmore, Ala., claims the distinction of being the first selectee released from the army under the new law permitting the release of men over 28. He is receiving his transportation money and pay at Camp Callan, near San Diego, Calif., from Master Sergeant J. J. Solit (left) and certificate of service from Sergeant Joseph E. Dean (center). Captain C. J. Girard looks on.

WILLKIE TO JOIN ELECTION FIGHTS

Will Aid G. O. P. Candidates Backing Roosevelt Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(P)—Reporting that Wendell L. Willkie has decided to take an active part in the off-year elections of 1942, associates of the 1940 Republican presidential nominee said today he would work and speak for those G. O. P. candidates who have backed President Roosevelt's foreign policy.

Willkie's friends reported he has made three political decisions:

1. He will work within the Republican party to make it one standing for "internationalism" rather than "isolationism."
2. He will spend all his spare time working for the nomination and election of those Republicans who have supported administration foreign policy.
3. He will keep silent in campaigns where Democrats supporting Mr.
Roosevelt's foreign policies are fighting Republicans who oppose them.

Willkie, it was said authoritatively, is particularly anxious to help in the re-election campaigns of such men as Senators Ball, Republican, Minnesota, and Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, both of whom have supported administration foreign policy legislation.

As to Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, the senate minority leader and the vice-presidential nominee last year, Willkie has told friends that Mc-Nary has been 60 per cent right and 40 wrong on foreign policy questions.
He has added, however, that he intends to support McNary.

Willkie was said to believe that the whole future of the Republican party

News Of World Told In Brief

(By Associated Press)
Germans claim sinkings of 28
British merchantmen, three warships in 40-ship Britain-bound convoy; British admit eight ships lost in a large convoy battered by German submarines and planes and a two-day gale.

Russians tell of smashing a great German offensive threatening Moscow on central front; Germans claim air mastery over Leningrad.

The German military commander of Paris combats terrorist opposition to the Nazis by announc-

FORCE 80 NAZIS TO LEAVE IRAN

Stalling Tactics Of German Legation Delays Others' Departure

TEHRAN, Iran, Sept. 13.—Eighty Nazis left on special trains for wartime internment in India and Siberia today after 24 hours of delaying tactics by the German legation were ended by the threat of Iran police and army to "take measures" against the legation compound.

With their "Heil Hitler" cheers rasping the ears of waiting British and Russian diplomats, 72 of the group went south toward Ahwaz en route to India, while eight other very glum Germans went north to Kazvin for internment in Russia.

About 400 men and 400 women and children still were sheltered at the German legation's suburban compound.

By a variety of excuses the legation had caused postponement of the trains' departure first from 8:30 a.m., yester-

LENINGRAD AREA GETS FIRST SNOW

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(P)—The first snow of the season has fallen in the Leningrad area, the British radio reported tonight.

"It is a warning to the Germans that the winter is running short before the dreaded winter begins," the British announcer said in a broadcast heard here by CBS.

PUBLIC INVITED TO SEE BOMBERS

Guides Will Be At Airport
Sunday Afternoon From 2 To 5 O'clock

Lieutenant-Colonel Harold W. Beaton of the United States air corps, in command of the first provisional group of dive bombers, is extending a cordial invitation to the public to come to Selman airport today from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. to make inspection of what Uncle Sam has to offer in this line.
He will place on duty all officers and non-commissioned officers to act as guides at the airport. This will be done as a gesture of courtesy to Monroe people for their kindly entertainment and cooperation with the troops while in the city.

He also asks that the public not visit the local airport after Sunday, as the maneuvers will be in progress and many of them are secret and an influx of people might impede the progress of the work.

A real "little city" has been set up by the dive bombers' group at Selman airport. The group comprises the Eighth bombardment squadron of the army, under command of First Lieutenant E. F. Strickland, from the air base at Savannah, Ga., and V. S.
B. 131 squadron of marines under Captain P. Morel, of the United States marine corps. Also squadron V. S. B.
132, under command of Major A. D.
Cooley.

The group also has with it the 137th infantry battalion; the 103rd coast artillery anti-aircraft and a battery of the first artillery, anti-aircraft.

Highway traffic to the airport will enter over Airport road, and military police will be stationed along the highway to guide and direct the automobiles going to and from the airport.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(P)—Conviction that the United States would not "desert" the Chungking Chinese government in any approachment that might be effected with Japan was voiced today by Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, influential member of the senate foreign relations committee.

"The Chinese have no reason to worry about any action we might take," George told reporters.

At the state department, meantime,
Secretary Hull said there was absolutely nothing new in Japanese-American relations. He reiterated to a press conference that only exploratory talks were in progress with the Japanese. He said the talks involved an attempt to ascertain whether negotiations for a settlement of Pacific problems would be feasible or desirable.

George told reporters there seemed reason to hope that the difficulties

Interpreting The War News: Hitler Must Strike Again In Russia

By Kirke L. Simpson
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer)

President Roosevelt's grim shooting-order to the American navy has centered attention on the Atlantic, yet it is conceivable that Hitler is more immediately concerned with the bloody campaign to smash Russia than with Western war developments.

That "crusade" is now admittedly far off schedule because of a Russian resistance that has made a mockery of the first thundering war bulletins issued from Hitler's own headquarters on the east front. Deep as have been Nazi penetrations to lay siege to Leningrad, Kiev and Odessa, Hitler can lay before his people after more than 80 days of the bloodiest fighting in history but little convincing evidence of impending decisive victories.

Russian armies, described by Germans weeks ago as cracking up, instead are battering the war-worn Nazi forces "backwards" about Smolensk.
There is no denial from Berlin that this war-blasted Russian town, key to the rail and road approaches to Moscow, is in serious danger of being wrested from German hands.

Berlin made much of the capture of Smolensk. Its fall was played up as the beginning of the end for Moscow.

Yet, thus far Napoleon's road to Moscow has proved too tough for Hitler. The distance that the French grand army negotiated in 80-odd days, afloat and with horse, mule and oxen transport, is twice or more than covered by Hitler's motorized legions in the same time.

There are growing intimations from German quarters, however, that a further formidable attack will be made before winter sets in. Berlin commentators contend at least 60 days of fighting weather remain before snow and sub-zero temperatures bog down the war on the eastern front for virtually six months.

Presumably the 60-day limit applies only on the Black sea flank. The first frosts are already reported from the Leningrad area and even from some points in the north-central section of the long battle line.

It is in the south that the Nazi onrush has made its greatest advance to reach the Dnieper in the great southern bend of the river about the plateau that comprises that heart of southeastern Ukraine.

The Russians on Friday acknowledged that the town of Chernigov had fallen to German forces, a development which brought the Nazis in a half circle around the Ukrainian capital of Kiev and put them within 45 miles of the main railway between Moscow and Kiev.

It is to be remembered it is only via the Black sea or the land route around to Rostov that the Germans can gain access to their most urgently needed war-making commodity, oil.

All these considerations point to the south as the scene of the next Nazi great offensive, although Russian successes in the center might force a deferral.

In any event, it now seems clear that German capture of Leningrad could produce no decisive results in the war. He must try something else. If he waits until spring all the lower reaches of the Black sea rivers draining into the Caspian and the mud will bog down his forces even more than these September rains. That is also true in the steppes of the Ukraine and White Russia in the center. He must strike again now.

F. D. R. MAY ACT TO PUT ARMS ON MERCHANT SHIPS

S. S. Arkansan Added To List
Of Vessels Damaged
In Sea War

NEUTRALITY ACT CHANGE WOULD BE REQUIRED STEP

Opponents Of Foreign Policy Certain To Oppose
Such Measure

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(P)—The S. S. Arkansan, struck by shell or bomb fragments during an air raid on Suez, was added tonight to the growing list of American ships lost or damaged in the sea war, and, at the capitol, there were reports that the administration might ask authority to arm merchant vessels.

A brief report to the state department from the legation at Cairo said the 6,697-ton Arkansan, engaged in trade between United States ports and the Red sea, was hit and her plates pierced the night of September 11.

The communication said nothing of the extent of damage, or of casualties among her crew of 38-36 Americans, one British and one Dutch.

Presumably, however, the damage was small, as a British communique issued at Cairo September 12 told of an axis raid on the canal area the previous night and said no damage was done to shipping.

The Arkansan, owned by the American-Hawaiian Steamship company of New York and San Francisco, sailed from New York July 19, reached Port Sudan on September 3, and left for Suez, town at the Red sea entrance to the canal, on September 8. Presumably she was lying in port to discharge cargo at the time of the raid.

While the legation's communication spoke of the missiles striking the Arkansan as "shell fragments," officials here said the official who sent the message was not a military man

New Execution Rule In France Put Into Effect

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Sept.
13.—(P)—General Ernst von Schaumberg, German military commander of Paris, in a new effort to quell terrorist opposition in Occupied France, announced today that persons in unauthorized possession of firearms would be liable to execution.

As terrorist activities continued in various parts of France, General von Schaumburg ordered also that penalties for illegal possession of "war materials of any sort" be increased to the death penalty.

The Paris radio reported tonight that "some 1,000" people were arrested at La Rochelle, in the occupied zone on the Bay of Biscay, yesterday in mass police raids on the town's cafes and restaurants. Vichy was without further details.

to grind out sentences to repress anti-national conspiracies, Communist plots and terrorist outbreaks.

In a new incident, Vichy sources reported a German non-commissioned officer was attacked by four young Frenchmen in a street behind the Chamber of Deputies last night.

In Montauban, in southern France, 17 Communists were sent to concentration camps, while in the occupied territory five were arrested for distribution of leaflets at Besancon and 11 others there were sent into forced

ALFORD REQUESTS HIGHWAY SAFETY

Asks Cooperation Of Citizens
In Keeping Accidents
To Minimum

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 13.—(P)— On the eve of the opening of the nation's greatest war maneuvers in Louisiana, State Police Superintendent
Steve Alford conveyed an urgent request on behalf of army authorities for full cooperation from the citizenry in keeping accidents to a minimum.

"The army is going to endeavor make its giant war games as realistic as possible," Alford asserted. "This will include moving thousands of troops, vehicles and animals along the roads at night under complete blackout conditions."

"We must insist that citizens not living in the 30,000 square mile designated maneuver area keep out of the section for the time being as the fullest living therein cooperate the fullest and remain in their homes during the maneuvers."

Alford, coordinator of police and health work in the maneuver area said the citizens by their cooperation could do a great deal toward helping national defense by giving the armies full rein in the field maneuvers.

More than 150 state police troopers will work with military police in seeking to keep civilian traffic from the road network which will be heavily taxed by movements of nearly 50,000 troops, Alford declared. He emphasized the danger of citizen vehicles negotiating roads over which army trucks and tanks will be moving without headlights.

Superintendent Alford announced that a detention camp for prostitutes arrested in the maneuver area was being established at an abandoned civilian conservation corps camp six miles east of Dodson, about 14 miles north of Winnfield.

SOVIETS REPORT STRONG GERMAN ATTACK SMASHED

Assert Moscow Saved From Southwest Threat By Route Of Enemy

BUCHAREST RAIDED BY RED
PLANES 2ND TIME IN WEEK

Hitler's Men Claim Air Mastery Over Leningrad And Ground Gains

(By Associated Press)
The broadening Battle of the Atlantic, marked by a gripping account of how a British convoy ran the gauntlet of U-boat bombers, surface raiders and gales, vied with Russian claims of great new victories over Germany last night for topmost interest in the war.

The German high command first announced the convoy raid Friday, claiming U-boats had sunk 22 and possibly 24 merchantmen out of a British convoy of 40 ships, as if in answer to President Roosevelt's shoot-on-sight orders against Axis raiders.
Yesterday they raised their claim to 28 merchant ships and three warships.

The British admiralty countered with an account of how most of a convoy got through with loss of eight vessels after days of attack by submarines and bombers, a lashing by a great storm, and a narrow escape from a Nazi surface raider.

Three of the ships were sunk by torpedoes far out at sea, the admiralty said; three were sent to the bottom by German bombers; another was so badly bomb-damaged that it was abandoned; and the eighth, hit by bombs, went down in the storm that forced the entire convoy to heave to for two days. Warned of a surface raider nearby, the convoy altered its course and escaped.

One of the attacking submarines was believed damaged by a warship in the convoy.

Qualified sources in London thought Berlin and the admiralty were talking about different convoys. The admiralty never speaks of convoys until days after their arrivals, whereas the Germans reported the attack still continuing Friday.

On the long Russian battlefield, Soviet reports told of smashing a powerful German offensive in the Bryansk sector, 220 miles southwest of Moscow, the Nazis 10,000 men, 260 tanks, 600 vehicles and resulting in capture of 26 Russian villages. The Germans were said to have been thrown back 10 to 12 miles, and Moscow saved from a southwest threat.

The Russians said the Red army men last night were still hotly pursuing the Germans west of the Desna river, 12 of the Wehrmacht's infantry divisions and strong tank and plane forces having failed to capture Bryansk.

The Germans first broke through towards Bryansk in August, the Russians disclosed, and the defending Red army went over to the counter-offensive on September 1.

A Soviet communique early today said Red planes had raided Bucharest, the German west of the Desna river, while Red fleet speedboats sank a large German transport and a coast guard vessel in the Baltic sea. Stubborn fighting continued along the whole front, the communique reported.

German accounts of the Russian war were lacking in detail, but claimed air mastery over besieged Leningrad and "considerable gains in territory" in the central sector.

A German summary said that the

MYSTERIOUS U-BOAT ACTIVITIES BARED

CAPETOWN, Union of South Africa, Sept. 13.—(P)—A story of mysterious nightly comings and goings of 15 submarines at Dakar whose masts fly the French flag but whose crews speak German was told today by two Danish seamen who had just reached Capetown.

The seamen, Kari Nielson and Carl Peterson, said they escaped from their ship at Dakar, French port on the west coast, the night of June 23 in a 12-foot row boat. They said they had been helped prisoners for a year.

They were picked up by a British patrol boat.

"Many strange things happen at night in Dakar harbor," one said. "The submarines are always coming and going. In the daytime they fly the French flag. Yet many of their crew talk German."

"When we arrived at Dakar in June, 1940, only two or three submarines were based there. When we left there were about 15."

Captain Edward W. Myers of the American ship Robin Moor, torpedoed and sunk in the south Atlantic May 21, said after his rescue that he believed the attacking submarine was based at Dakar.

In addition to the submarines, the two seamen said, are the 35,000-ton warship Richelieu, three 7,600-ton cruisers, the Gloire, Georges Leygues and Montcalm, each armed with nine six-inch guns, two destroyers and three gunboats, all French.

SOVIETS REPORT

Just six days more than 35,000 Russians had been taken prisoner, 470 tanks and 460 cannons destroyed or captured, and 55 Soviet trains smashed by air bombs.

Preparation for a storm-assault on Leningrad was suggested in one German dispatch from the front. Last week Berlin quarters suggested the operation might be tried.

Sources in London said the Russians soon should be getting vastly increased numbers of American-made and British planes via a ferry service in which American pilots were expected to participate.

They said R. A. F. pilots already had flown numbers of planes to Russia and that British ground crews were there to handle the servicing.

In preparation for use of the route from the Persian gulf across Iran to Russia, the British and Russians shipped out 30 interned Germans from Teheran Saturday and were ready to put on the pressure to get rid of some hundreds more despite Nazi delaying tactics.

The British reported successes of their own against an Axis convoy—probable destruction of three merchantmen and severe damage to others in the central Mediterranean by British planes. The Dutch government reported one of its submarines sank a heavily-laden 6,000-ton Axis ship in the Mediterranean also.

On the western front—Germans themselves called it that yesterday, even though they have insisted before that no "front" existed—the British continued to hammer at German-occupied territory with a series of offensive patrols over the channel.

Wharves at Cherbourg and St. Nazaire and Frankfurt in the Rhineland were among the objectives.

The unrest in Norway, marked by a strike of steel and shipyard workers Tuesday and stern penalties by the Germans, was declared by the Norwegian Nazi party to be due to rumors that Norway's fresh milk was being flown to Finland to feed the German army.

Before the war, Britain had the highest number of cars per mile of highway in the world.

Associates made it clear that Willkie vigorously opposes many of the New Deal domestic policies. They said he intends to attack them while supporting the administration foreign policy.

For instance, it was said, Willkie thinks that defense production has been mismanaged, that President Roosevelt has not obtained full cooperation of management and labor and that poor administration has hampered many domestic programs.

and concluded that the vessel might have been hit by fragments from a bomb, an anti-aircraft shell, an aerial torpedo, or from a shell fired by a cannon-carrying plane.

The department was seeking further information.

Still another communication from Cairo advised the department that Joseph M. C. Suka, third officer of the American-owned S. S. Steel Seafarer, had made an affidavit that the plane which bombed and sank his ship in the Red sea on September 5 was a Junkers 88 or, at any rate, a German plane.

Both the Arkansas and the Steel Seafarer presumably were carrying supplies for British forces in the middle east.

With incident piling on incident, many legislators felt that an armed ship bill was in the offing, and with it a prolonged congressional battle further embittering relations between supporters and opponents of the president's foreign policy.

Quarters usually well informed said the administration was likely to present a proposal to arm merchant ships as a supplement to President Roosevelt's announcement that naval vessels would henceforth sink axis submarines on sight in waters considered important to defense. Such a measure provoked a memorable controversy in 1917.

Mr. Roosevelt disclosed some time ago that the navy has plans, kept continuously up to date, for arming merchantmen, if such a step should become advisable.

That such a bill would meet with determined opposition from the senate, led by Senators Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, Nye, Republican, North Dakota, and Clark, Democrat, Missouri, which has consistently opposed the Roosevelt foreign policy, was a foregone conclusion.

The litigation would take the form of an amendment to the neutrality act, which forbids American merchant ships to carry any arms, other than the small arms usually on board for the enforcement of discipline.

ROME, Sept. 13.—(P)—Fascist observers indicated today that Germany and Italy would fight the United States on any sea their warships, submarines and planes could reach as a result of what the authoritative editor, Virginia Gayda, called President Roosevelt's "de facto declaration of war."

The primary aim of the Axis powers in the battle of the Atlantic was to prevent American aid from reaching England, they said, citing a German

At 6:50 a.m. the first Germans arrived at the station. Then nearly two hours was spent checking passports and drinking beer, before the trains actually left.

The British had expected 225 Germans to leave, and the Russians had expected 50. Both were disappointed.

British and Russian consuls, waiting hours for the Germans, arrived in heavily guarded buses at the station, mentioned several times the possibility that Soviet troops should be called from Kazvin, 80 miles away, to end the stalling tactics.

If further difficulties are encountered tomorrow, when further contingents are scheduled to leave, positive action will be taken, Soviet quarters threatened.

(London dispatches said Sir Reader Bullard, British minister in Teheran, had made strong representations to the Iranian government to hasten the departure of the Germans.)

police said, as Minner was wearing a hat at the time he was bludgeoned.

Chief Brantley said the body was found lying face down in weeds a foot high by Ralph Thornhill, 3001 Richmond avenue, employee at the Missouri Pacific roundhouse, whose route to work in the morning takes him past the spot where Minner's body was found.

Minner was an employee of the Louisville Cooperage company, and company officials said the victim worked every day last week and received his pay on Friday. The right pocket of Minner's working trousers was turned inside out, police said, adding that apparently his clothing was examined thoroughly and the money he carried removed. The only articles found in the clothes were a pack of keys, a half-filled package of tobacco, and a fountain pen, police said.

Dr. French revealed that rigor mortis had already set in, and at the time the body was found he believed Minner had been dead from three to five hours.

Police said that Minner was last seen about 10 p.m. Friday at Sam Cicero's grocery, 2601 Lee avenue.

Pending further investigation on the case, Dr. French said that an inquest will not be held until Monday.

The body was removed to the Mulhearn Funeral home. Arrangements for the funeral were incomplete last night pending word from his survivors, a daughter, Mrs. Francis E. McBride of Riverside, Calif., and a brother said to be living at Searcy, Ark.

ROME, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Fascist observers indicated today that Germany and Italy would fight the United States on any sea their warships, submarines and planes could reach as a result of what the authoritative editor, Virginia Gayda, called President Roosevelt's "de facto declaration of war."

The primary aim of the Axis powers in the battle of the Atlantic was to prevent American aid from reaching England, they said, citing a German

SHERIFF ASSERTS GAMBLING STOPPED

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 13.—(P) Sheriff Newman H. de Bretton declared in a statement published today that "there has been no gambling in East Baton Rouge parish for some time except a few private poker games and pinball or grab machines."

As for the pinball machines, Sheriff de Bretton pointed out these operated with licenses issued by the state and therefore he felt them the state's responsibility.

The sheriff's statement followed one by a committee of the parish ministerial association quoting State Police Superintendent Steve Alford as saying gambling and vice would be kept out of the parish.

"The three pastors who consulted Superintendent Alford on gambling did not complain to me," said de Bretton, "but I suggest that if they and the superintendent are really interested in protecting L. S. U. students and soldiers located here, they take action against gambling in nearby parishes."

"Two gambling games ... flourish within sight of the university in a nearby parish."

Superintendent Alford said tonight that he had informed both the sheriff and City Police Chief Perry Johnson all gambling and vice must be closed down and kept closed and had assigned Captain Louis Heard of the state police to inspect the parish. Chief Johnson said "book es" and poker games had been closed.

Expecting a Baby?

Mother's Friend helps bring ease and comfort to expectant mothers.

MOTHER'S FRIEND, an exquisitely prepared emulsion, is useful in all conditions where a bland, mild and easy-to-digest medium in skin lubrication is desired. One condition in which women for more than 20 years have used it is an application for massaging the body during pregnancy. It helps keep the skin soft and pliable, thus avoiding unnecessary discomfort due to dryness and tightness. It refreshes and tones the skin. An ideal massage application for the numb, tingling or burning sensations of the skin for the tired back muscles or cramp-like pains in the legs. Quickly absorbed. Delightful to use.

Mother's Friend

Highly praised by users, many doctors and nurses. Just ask any druggist for Mother's Friend—the skin lubricant. Try it tonight.

Serene And Confident

Developments in the war that affect the United States vitally, coming in a staccato sequence that seems to be pointed to but one eventuality, find the American people in a mood of serene confidence.

The time passed long since when Americans could become emotionally excited over war occurrences, however greatly or directly they concern the United States.

But this calmness that is characteristic of the American people today is not the stupor of defeatism. On the contrary, it is founded in universal conviction that, come what may, the Republic will triumph over all obstacles and its enemies will fall ignominiously.

Perhaps this attitude is based on ill-founded confidence—perhaps it is an attitude that is dangerous for the future safety of the nation. Perhaps wishful thinking enters into it.

But certainly it cannot be said that the reaction of the people of this country to war developments indicates a low national morale.

Low national morale would be indicated if the people were jittery and excited and were vociferous in demands for ill-advised action in half a dozen directions. But there is none of this, or almost none, and people are still getting their sleep at night.

A similar attitude, on the part of most other peoples, would be labeled sheer fatalism. But there is no fatalistic slant to the American outlook, which has been developed by more than one hundred and sixty years of taking our own part and letting the devil look after his.

The attitude of the American people toward the crisis which looms on the horizon is the best omen of the nation's future.

REDUCING WASTE

Efforts to eliminate waste offer definite aid to the rearmament program, according to the National Retail Dry Goods association, which offers specific suggestions to bring this about. It believes that through cooperation of consumers and merchants, important savings of needed materials and labor can be made and the upward trend of prices can be slowed down.

The association asks merchants to:

Help to keep prices down.

Maintain stocks to provide consumers with necessary merchandise.

Assist in development of new products to replace those no longer available.

Insure orderly distribution and discourage speculative buying.

Support National Defense.

Buy Defense Bonds.

Consumers, says the association, can help by:

Buy carefully.

Keep what you buy.

Do not return goods except if imperfect or wrong size.

Carry small purchases.

Demand less service.

Buy Defense Bonds and Stamps.

IT DIDN'T HAVE TO LOOK

A short time before the Pétain-Darlan regime in France made its decision to help Germany in establishing its sway over Europe, a summer storm came to the little town of Versailles, seat of France's ancient glories.

Two statues, one of Lafayette, one of General Pershing, stood on opposite sides of a street there. As the storm rose in violence, the statue of General Pershing swayed from its pedestal, fell, and shattered into a million fragments on the pavement.

At least it never had to witness the events to come.

Poets, who once made much ado about the sound of the reaper at wheat harvest time, haven't been able to do much with the combine. But if it doesn't inspire poetry, the combine certainly sends the wheat flowing to market.

In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 13.—Ever since my kid-days discovery of Robert Louis Stevenson, I've been a fervent admirer of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." But even my excessive admiration can't stave off boredom when I see it screened for the third time.

There's something sadly amiss when an industry that can—and does—spend millions to recruit the world's best writing brains, is still so starved for ideas that it's forced to remake a story over and over again. List this year's releases and you'll find at least a dozen have been filmed from two to four times. Of the mall, only one, "Charley's Aunt," has done very well at the box-office—and I credit much of that one's success to Jack Benny's popularity. Apparently I'm not the only fan who dislikes repetition.

What's wrong? Why can't Hollywood, with all its creative brains, find enough new stories to meet production needs? Admittedly, some of the trouble hinges on the dual-billing system, which demands a minimum of two stars per picture. In Hollywood's failure to make proper use of the writers it hires.

In the studios today, you'll find 50 per cent of America's big-name novelists, reinforced by a goodly proportion of England's best. Those writers have won success through the ability to conceive new plots. But are they constructing new stories? No, they're writing continuity—doing a job at which they've had little or no experience. And while they toil at that, the studios starve for the original plots they would otherwise be turning out. It doesn't make good sense.

Idol chatter: Horatio Alger could have done wonders with Mickey Rooney's life story. . . . Add Hollywood similes: As nondescript as a Bing Crosby costume. . . . Wouldn't Billy Lamarr have mowed 'em down, back in the good old silent days? Ad slogan to suit W. C. Fields: "Double Distilled." . . . If Hollywood had as many superb tennis players as it has magnificent tennis courts, the Davis Cup tournaments would be a local issue. . . . Laugh-alikes: Nancy Kelly and Eva Gabor. . . . Wonder why no-one writes the "Appointment for Love" set have nicknamed Charles Boyer "Dream Boat"? . . . In-a-word description of Milton Berle: punctilious. . . . Hollywood jewelers invariably consider repeat business when selling wedding rings. . . . Add why scenes I'm getting tired of: Don Hall flexing his muscles in a softie reef. . . . If you want to be literal

I suppose you could refer to Mrs. Bob Hope as a gagster's moll.

Fidlings: Imagine Lamour, fully clothed, in the bleachers. Surrounded by thousands of masculine creatures; It's my proposition. She'd dodge recognition. Since males know her gams—but don't her features—

What's the news? Maureen O'Hara is in Reno for annulment, not divorce. . . . Joe E. Lewis snubbed a Broadway musical bid because the producers wouldn't let him ad-lib, and "they can't pay me enough to be bored doing the same show eight times a week."

If Frances Gifford "off the Cobb" (Bob, Gail Patrick's ex)? Her escort these days is Agent Wynn Rocamora. . . . With Uncle Sam urging wool conservation, Artie Shaw had 60 new uniforms for his band tailored sans single-breasted. . . . Check report that Helen Hayes may come to Hollywood for one picture. . . . With Lana Turner getting her final September 12, those Tony Martin elopement rumors are boiling hot (unless conditions change) there'll be no marriage, soon or ever.

Intimate notes: A Chattanooga wants to know why, every time a new picture is announced, Gary Cooper is suggested for the lead? To inspire just such questions as yours, sir. In other words, it's a good publicity department's way of never letting you forget Cooper. . . . From a Chicago miss: "Did you ever think of raising a mustache? I drew one on your picture in the column and it looked pretty good." No soap—you can't make a dude out of me by doodling. . . . A Wichita, Kansas, asks: "Is it possible to make good soldiers out of movie star fighters who've been making money living in luxury and doing what they please?" If you mean it's impossible to teach them discipline, you're wrong, for no matter how big they are, they've had to take orders in Hollywood. Jimmy Stewart assures me that by comparison to movie directors he's worked for, a top-kick is a softie.

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri
These are days of change. People change their ways because the defense preparations call for extraordinary effort in fields that emergency opens. We must do what is needed and go where we are called. Families move into new surroundings, among strangers, people whose ways are not their ways. Of course the children go along and they, too, must adjust themselves to the new situation.

It is easier for the younger children than for their parents and old brothers and sisters. The older one is, the greater number of associations with life he has formed. Those associations tie us to people and places and customs. And when people and places and customs change, the adjustment is painful. They manage to keep the grief to themselves most of the time. But the half-grown boys and girls are in a hard place.

The children who must break off their high school courses in the middle, go to another town, meet new people, new teachers, new courses, and new associates, are going to feel the strain. They have formed ties that go deep; they are not disciplined by experience and they are a bit bewildered.

Teachers and heads of schools should make special efforts to receive these newcomers and make them feel wanted, liked, and at home among them. We find that a good way is to form groups of children—informally, no committees—friendly groups of children whose duty and pleasure it is to make the acquaintance of the newcomers and help them fit into their places.

well. Yet here in heaven, where we think of conditions as ideal, there was war. We are reminded that as eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, so it is the price of peace. Good conditions do not guarantee suppression of evil ambitions and the lust of power. "There was war in heaven." Even in heaven the forces and the power of evil could not be overthrown without conflict. There is a point where the appeals of grace, overcoming evil with good, and turning the other cheek, have their limitations, and the power of evil has to be met with uncompromising opposition.

The Christian way is a way of peace, but Michael and his angels went forth to war and there was no peace until the great dragon was cast down and forced out of heaven.

Surely there is a parable in this for our own time. A good woman recently wrote me to protest against our plans of defense and the assistance we are giving to others against aggression on the plea that "war is senseless." Of course war is senseless. It is worse than senseless; it is criminal.

But must we not make a distinction between a senseless war and the force that law-abiding and peaceable men would use in suppressing crime and in meeting invasion or the threat of invasion? When the Christian, however, wars for anything but righteousness and peace, his warfare is not of God but of the devil.

New inventions pertaining to defense are being submitted to the federal government at the rate of 100 a day.

Sunday School Lesson

The Sunday School Lesson for Sept. 21
Text: Revelation 12:12-13:4
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.
(Editor of Advance)

The topic of this lesson is "The Basis of Ultimate Victory." Victory is the word today. I have just returned from the war-active city of Halifax, N. S. Here I found in the shop windows, on automobiles, and almost everywhere that one looked, the V symbolizing victory, which, as a surreptitious symbol in German occupied and dominated countries, has been so much troubling Hitler that he has sought belatedly to turn it to his own ends. But the victory of our lesson is an even larger and deeper warfare.

A lesson like this emphasizes all the difficulties of exact interpretation of the Book of Revelation, but the situation in our own time helps us to understand its broad teaching and purpose. As we have pointed out, it was written for severely persecuted and hard-pressed Christians.

Their faithfulness depended upon their hope of ultimate victory, and it is this assurance that right will triumph over wrong that the writer of the Book was making plain. It is this that is graphically portrayed in this conflict of Michael, the true saint, and his angels, with the dragon and the angels of evil.

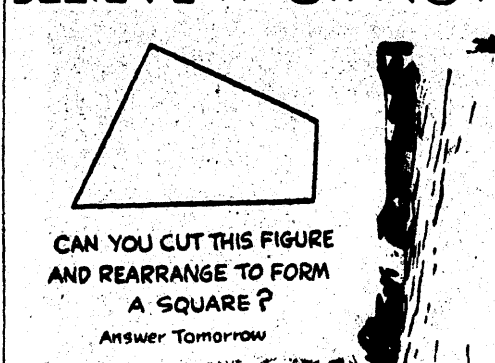

"There was war in heaven." Surely heaven is the last place where one would expect war! It is a common assumption that, if we could only perfect our social conditions and environment, everything would be perfect. A good woman recently wrote me to protest against our plans of defense and the assistance we are giving to others against aggression on the plea that "war is senseless." Of course war is senseless. It is worse than senseless; it is criminal.

But must we not make a distinction between a senseless war and the force that law-abiding and peaceable men would use in suppressing crime and in meeting invasion or the threat of invasion? When the Christian, however, wars for anything but righteousness and peace, his warfare is not of God but of the devil.

IN WASHINGTON

By Peter Edson
(World Washington Correspondent)
WASHINGTON—Hereafter, will you please refrain from speaking of the 312 emergency cargo vessels which the maritime commission is building as "Ugly Ducklings." Call them "Liberty Ships" instead, and thank you.

This Ugly Duckling appellation seems to have been the conception of a mere newspaperman who thought it up just like that when the president first made announcement of the emergency shipbuilding program. While the name fits these freighters perfectly—if you remember your fable of how the ugly duckling turned into a beautiful swan and flew off to Hollywood to become a star New York editors—still the name offends some of the effete and aesthetic old sea-dogs in Washington and so they must become Liberty Ships, each one named after a great American who made a considerable contribution to the country's liberty—Patrick Henry, John C. Fremont and the like.

Whatever you call these babies, the first three of them will be sliding down the ways in a mass launching on September 27, which the new publicity-conscious maritime commission, which has a big Air Service wing, is going to call "Liberty Fleet day."

It's Gonna Be A Great Day

In addition to the three Ugly-duckling Liberty Ships, nine other merchant ships will be simultaneously launched at yards on the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts, in what promises to be quite a day. The president or other competent authority will probably say a few words into the mikes, and there will be champagne bottles shattered all the way from Quincy, Mass., around the coast line to Portland, Ore., by way of Pascagoula, Miss. The bands will play, the crowds will shout and radio speakers turn inside out in approved form.

September Saturday morn sarcasm aside, this shipbuilding program is something to give you a tremendous lift. Already it has knocked all World War shipbuilding records galley west. At Hog Island, last year, the best record was six months and five days from keel laying to launching. In the case of the first three Liberty Ships, the times from keel laying to launching run from four months and three days to four months and 21 days. And when production really gets going, two ships will go sliding down the ways every single working day, which means launching new bottoms almost as fast as Hitler's submarines can sink them.

Brains And Resources Did It

To achieve this magnificent production schedule has required the marshaling of America's best technical brains and resources, and exactly this is the reason why the program is so fast. S. Land, chairman of the maritime commission, and J. E. Schmeltzer, director of the commission's division of construction.

In 1937, shortly after the commission was organized, a program of one new ship every two days was inaugurated to reestablish supremacy of the American merchant marine. Stepping that up to two new ships every day, the goal of 1942 and 1943, gives you an idea of the pace that has been set.

In 1936 there were 10 shipyards in this degree of activity, with only 46 ways big enough to take 400-foot ships. Today there are 19 yards and 145 ways authorized for the maritime commission program, and ships are actually being built on over half the ways.

Today's overall program calls for the construction of 1,400 non-naval ships by the end of 1943, and the total cost of new yards, ways and ships will be in the neighborhood of eight billion dollars.

Of the 1,400 merchant or cargo vessels in the maritime commission program, only 312 have so far been designed

NEW YORK—Diary: Of course you can teach an old dog new tricks. During the last summer Captain Kidd learned to come into my study, where I write, and bark to have the fan turned on. Now he does it every day, and lies directly in front of the fan enjoying the breeze. He's never caught a cold from it, though I suppose any human would. I'd venture to bet that from Sumter, S. C., telling of the glories of that warm country and once again voicing the opinion that her parents are foolish for living in stuffy old New York. . . . In a long walk in the lower West Side, I come upon a poor little boy, not more than eleven years old, and of spindling build, wrestling with heavy packing boxes. He is trying to break up or crush the corrugated board boxes so that the slabs will lie flat on his rickety little wagon, and the job is too much for him. . . . I have a good, sharp knife in my pocket, so I venture to offer assistance. "I'll slit those corners for you, and then it'll be easy," I tell him. . . . But he looks at me in a surly unfriendly manner, and says, "Don't strain yourself, Mister. I kin do it okeah." . . . Seeing my help isn't wanted, I move on, much embarrassed.

The collection of waste of every sort occupies the time of thousands in New York.

These paper-board shipping cases, in which almost everything is packed these days, pile up in almost any store or shop, however small. The big places have orderly arrangements for disposal of the cases, boxes and wrappings in which their goods are delivered. But there are thousands of small and medium-sized places that simply say yes to any poor fellow who asks the privilege of taking the stuff away.

On the East Side there are old men with spavined nags and broken-down wagons, who call daily at regular stops, just for the boxes and old newspapers. They are expert at snatching dog in the boxes and will fit into the narrow spaces between the boxes you see them handling are big enough for the man and his horse to get inside of.

Since there are no alleys in New York, all this kind of traffic has to be handled across the sidewalks. In most cases, the horse and wagon are parked in the street in front of the place of business.

The vast majority of the used box collectors are pushcart men. They are chiefly old men from the East Side, but I have seen whole families, crippled father, hard-pressed mother, and two or three children, following the pushcart, helping to load and pack it.

Below the pushcart men are the little boys and old women who use old express wagons, pulled by hand, or contrivances on two or four old wheels, knocked together at home.

The waste

Serene And Confident

Developments in the war that affect the United States vitally, coming in a staccato sequence that seems to be pointed to but one eventuality, find the American people in a mood of serene confidence.

The time passed long since when Americans could become emotionally excited over war occurrences, however greatly or directly they concern the United States.

But this calmness that is characteristic of the American people today is not the stupor of defeatism. On the contrary, it is founded in universal conviction that, come what may, the Republic will triumph over all obstacles and its enemies will fail ignominiously.

Perhaps this attitude is based on ill-founded confidence—perhaps it is an attitude that is dangerous for the future safety of the world. Perhaps wishful thinking enters into it.

But certainly it cannot be said that the reaction of the people of this country to war developments indicates a low national morale.

Low national morale would be indicated if the people were jittery and excited and were vociferous in demands for ill-advised action in half a dozen directions. But there is none of this, or almost none, and people are still getting their sleep at night.

A similar attitude, on the part of most other peoples, would be labeled sheer fatalism. But there is no fatalistic slant to the American outlook, which has been developed by more than one hundred and sixty years of taking our own part and letting the devil look after his.

The attitude of the American people toward the crisis which looms on the horizon is the best omen of the nation's future.

REDUCING WASTE

Efforts to eliminate waste offer definite aid to the rearmament program, according to the National Retail Dry Goods association, which offers specific suggestions to bring this about. It believes that through cooperation of consumers and merchants, important savings of needed materials and labor can be made and the upward trend of prices can be slowed down.

The association asks merchants to:

- Help to keep prices down.
- Maintain stocks to provide consumers with necessary merchandise.
- Assist in development of new products to replace those no longer available.
- Insure orderly distribution and discourage speculative buying.
- Support National Defense.
- Buy Defense Bonds.

Consumers, says the association, can help by:

- Buy carefully.
- Keep what you buy.
- Do not return goods except if imperfect or wrong size.
- Carry small purchases.
- Demand less service.
- Buy Defense Bonds and Stamps.

A short time before the Petain-Darlan regime in France made its decision to help Germany in establishing its sway over Europe, a summer storm came to the little town of Versailles, seat of France's ancient glories.

Two statues, one of Lafayette, one of General Pershing, stood on opposite sides of a street there. As the storm rose in violence, the statue of General Pershing swayed from its pedestal, fell, and shattered into a million fragments on the pavement.

At least it never had to witness the events to come.

A look of hurt passed across the boy's face as he reached, in silence, the books; but another boy pushed the books back toward the girl. "Carry them yourself," he said. "Who'd you think you are anyway? Because he's a refugee you'll step on his neck? You watch your step or the whole school'll crack your neck."

Let's be careful of the stranger within the gates; American or refugee they need friendly understanding.

WASHINGTON—Hereafter, will you please refrain from speaking of the 312 emergency cargo vessels which the maritime commission is building "Ugly Ducklings." Call them "Liberty Ships," instead, and thank you.

This Ugly Duckling appellation seems to have been the conception of a mere newspaperman who thought it up just like that when the president first made announcement of the emergency shipbuilding program. While the name fits these freighters perfectly—if you remember your fable of how the ugly duckling turned into a beautiful swan and flew off to Hollywood to become a star in moving pictures—still the name offends some of the effectives and aesthetic old sea-dogs in Washington and so they must become Liberty Ships, each one named after a great American who made a considerable contribution to the country's liberty—Patrick Henry, John C. Fremont and the like.

Whatever you call these babies, the first three of them will be sliding down the ways in a mass launching on September 27, which the new public-works maritime commission, with a high-powered New York advertising man in charge of its public relations, is going to call "Liberty Fleet day."

It's gonna be a Great Day.

In addition to the three Ugly-duckling Liberty Ships, nine other merchant ships will be simultaneously launched at yards on the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts, in what promises to be quite a day. The president or other competent literate will probably say a few words into the mikes, and there will be champagne bottles shattered all the way from Quincy, Mass., to the coast line to Portland, Ore., by way of Pascagoula, Miss. The bands will play, the crowds will shout and radio speakers turn inside out in approved form.

September Saturday moon sarcasm aside, this shipbuilding program is something to give you a tremendous lift. Already it has knocked all World War shipbuilding records galley west. At Hog Island, last war, the best record was six months and five days from keel laying to launching. In the case of the first three Liberty Ships, the times from keel laying to launching run from four months and three days to four months and 27 days. And when production of these ships really gets going, two ships will go sliding down the ways every single working day, which means launching new bottoms almost as fast as Hitler's submarines can sink them.

Brains And Resources Did It

To achieve this magnificent production schedule has required the marshaling of America's best technical brains and resources, and exactly this has been done under Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the maritime commission, and J. E. Schmeltzer, director of the commission's division of construction.

In 1937, shortly after the commission was organized, a program of one new ship every two weeks was inaugurated to reestablish supremacy of the American merchant marine. Stepping that up to two new ships every day, the goal of 1942 and 1943, gives you an idea of the pace that has been set.

In 1936, there were 10 shipyards in some degree of activity, with only 45 big enough to take 400-foot ships. Today there are 19 yards and 145 ways authorized for the maritime commission program, and ships are actually being built on over half the ways.

Today's over-all program calls for the construction of 1,400 non-naval ships by the end of 1943, and the total cost of new yards, ways and ships will be in the neighborhood of eight billion dollars.

Of the 1,400 merchant or cargo vessels in the maritime commission program, only 312 have so far been designed as the Liberty Ship type, 20 to go in service by the end of the year. But still on the books is a recent authorization for 100 ships, of types not yet designated. Surveys are now being made to see what the shipping demands will be, and what the steel and ship fittings capacity of the country will be. Decision will be made later on how many of these 300 will be Liberty, how many will be tankers, and how many will be the standard types of fast cargo vessels, C-1, C-2, or C-3, which the commission is building for merchant marine expansion.

When they're all built, the hope is that the country won't be dumb enough to scrap 'em, junk 'em and make 'em into flippers.

New York Day by Day

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL
Title Reg. U. S. Patent Office

NEW YORK—Diary: Of course you can teach an old dog new tricks. During the last summer Captain Kidd learned to come into my study, where I write, and bark to have the fan turned on. Now he does it every day, and lies directly in front of the fan enjoying the breeze. He's never caught a cold from it, though I suppose any human would. . . . Daughter Pat back from Sumter, S. C., telling of the glories of that warm country and once again voicing the opinion that her parents are foolish for living in stuffy old New York. . . . In a long walk in the lower West Side, I came upon a poor little boy, not more than eleven years old, and of spindling build, wrestling with heavy packing boxes. He is trying to break up or crush the corrugated board boxes so that the slabs will lie flat on his rickety little wagon, and the job is too much for him. . . . I have a good, sharp knife in my pocket, so I venture to offer assistance. "I'll cut those corners for you, and then it'll be easy," I tell him. But he looks at me in a surly, unfriendly manner, and says, "Don't strain yourself, Mister. I kin do it ok." . . . Seeing my help isn't wanted, I move on, much embarrassed.

The collection of waste of every sort occupies the time of thousands in New York.

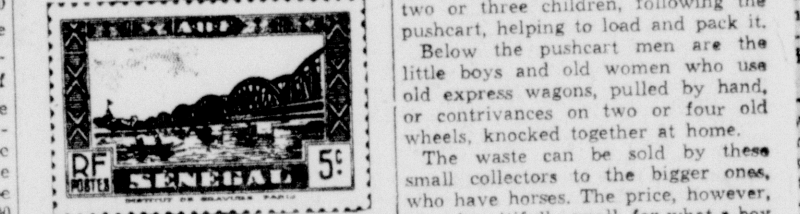

Those paper-board shipping cases, in which almost everything is packed these days, pile up in almost any store or shop, however small. The big places have orderly arrangements for disposal of the cases, boxes and wrappings in which their goods are delivered. But there are thousands of small and medium-sized places that simply say yes to any poor fellow who asks the privilege of taking the stuff away.

On the East Side there are old men with spavined nags and broken-down wagons, who call daily at regular stops, just for the boxes and old newspapers. They are expert at smashing down the boxes so that they will fit into the wagon. Some of the boxes you see them handling are big enough for the man and his horse to get inside of.

Since there are no alleys in New York, all this kind of traffic has to be handled across the sidewalks. In many cases, the horse and wagon are parked in the street in front of the place of business.

War Determines Status Of French West Africa

ONE of France's important possessions is French West Africa and until World War II it decided, it will remain an international pawn. Eight colonies make up this territory—Senegal, French Guinea, the Ivory Coast, Dahomey, French Sudan, Mauritania, Niger and Circoscription of Dakar and Dependencies.

Dakar and its surroundings were formerly a part of Senegal but were made a special territory in December, 1924. The stamp above, issued by the Senegal government in 1935, shows the Faidherbe Bridge in Dakar.

Senegal is typical of the type of French West African colony Hitler would like to control. Although the soil is generally sandy, natives cultivate ground-nuts, millet, maize and some rice. Rubber is also produced in small quantities and a salt industry is being developed.

From a military standpoint, Senegal and especially nearby Dakar, have great strategic value. The Senegal river is close to foreign ships and Dakar is the port of entry. The United States, Germany, England, Brazil and, of course, France are watching Dakar. It is only 1500-odd miles from Brazil and would constitute an excellent invasion base against South America.

COLLINS AND DOXEY WIND UP CAMPAIGNS

(By Associated Press)

Mississippi's two candidates for the seat of the late Senator Pat Harrison in a special election September 23 wound up their campaigns yesterday and prepared to return to Washington to take their seats in the House of Representatives when the House reconvenes Monday.

In their concluding talks, ending their active parts within the state in a campaign which has aroused relatively little excitement, both Representatives Ross Collins and Wall Doxey emphasized themes they had previously stressed.

Doxey told a Union county audience at New Albany, "This is a time for unity in our national life," and declared again he was standing on his record in congress.

Collins asserted he had a "one hundred per cent record" on military legislation, and warned against "dictation from a bunch of politicians."

Senator Bilbo and Governor Johnson have backed Representative Doxey's campaign, and while Representative Collins accused them of trying to form Adams' seats in the Senate, Doxey claimed this merely showed "unity" which is needed in state affairs.

Declaring again he was standing on his record in congress, Doxey declared at New Albany, "The opposition has sought in vain to find anything wrong with that record and when they failed they turned to setting up straw men to knock over. They brought up charges of this and that, but all the time they never attacked my record. And after all, that reflects what a man has done and can do."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Another new battleship, the $15,000,000 Massachusetts, will be launched September 23, the navy announced today, and is expected to be commissioned as the fleet's 19th capital ship seven months ahead of schedule.

The 35,000-ton, 704-foot dreadnaught is under construction at the Quincy, Mass., yard of the Bethlehem Steel company. Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, wife of the former navy secretary, to be her sponsor.

Officially described as "one of the most powerful vessels" ever constructed, the Massachusetts will be the fourth of six new 35,000-ton battleships to be floated.

The North Carolina, Washington and South Dakota have already come off the ways to be the first additions to the United States capital ship strength since 1923. The North Carolina and Washington are already commissioned, and the South Dakota was launched June 7. Two more 35,000-tonners are under construction.

Colonel Thinks Texas Hunters

Problem

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 13.—(P)—More squirrel and rabbit shootin' Texans might solve the army's tank defense problem, Colonel Ernest O. Thompson opines.

Flushed with pleasure at his regiment's anti-tank company success in theoretically bagging 19 of 20 tanks in the Texas-Louisiana war games, Colonel Thompson today telephoned Texas capital correspondents from Shreveport, La., to chat about things in general and the tank routs in particular.

"Our anti-tank company was attacked by 20 tanks but our boys—all from Gonzales—bagged 19 of them with .37 millimeter guns," he said.

"The other one turned tail and fled."

Colonel Thompson, chairman of the Texas railroad commission and now on active service with the 36th division, Texas national guard, declared the experience convinced him tanks were not invulnerable.

"These Texas boys don't get excited when they meet tanks," he added.

"We keep our defense mobile and move in to meet them, beating them to the draw."

The colonel reported his entire regiment, the 141st infantry, in hardened physical condition and their morale high.

The tank encounter occurred near Flatwoods, La. Colonel Thompson reported his regiment had made a fine record in the preliminary phases of a gigantic military maneuver which begins next week.

"It captured many members of the opposing Red forces, and trucks, machine guns and artillery pieces in fighting against three Ohio regiments," he declared.

"The men are hardened and ready for battle."

PRESENTING 'MISS AMERICA OF 1941'

Rosemary La Planche (above), 19, "Miss California" in the annual Atlantic City bathing beauty contest, won out over all comers and was crowned "Miss America of 1941" at the closing of the pageant. She lives in Los Angeles and was runner-up in the 1940 contest.

FRANKLINTON PAIR KILLED IN CRASH

LELAND, Miss., Sept. 13.—(P)—Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Dennam of Franklinton, La., were killed and Edgar R. Huft of Meridian was critically injured in a two-car collision on the Bogue river bridge three miles east of here this afternoon.

Huft, construction company employee stationed at Greenville, was reported unconscious at the King's Daughters hospital there. Investigating patrolmen said he was driving one of the vehicles and that the chauffeur driving Dr. and Mrs. Dennam sustained minor injuries.

SHIP STRIKE ORDERED

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(P)—A walk-out which a union shokeman said would affect its members on "all ships bound for Axis or Allied ports" was ordered today by the Seafarers' International Union of North America (AFL) over a war-bonus demand. First effects were felt in New York harbor where three ships owned by the Alcoa Steamship Co. two freighters with defense cargoes for West Indies bases and the cruise liner Evangeline, were unable to sail. Other ports along the eastern seaboard, and the gulf coast, reported no immediate developments.

MARRIAGES

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 13.—(Special)—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Benjamin Morton announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Ruby Mae to Mr. Harmon Connel. The wedding will take place on Wednesday September 17 at the family home "Weymouth Hall" and a reception will follow the ceremony.

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 13.—(Special)—A marriage of interest here is that of Miss Rosemary Louise Quinn to Robert Hendee Smith.

The marriage took place on Saturday in Lake Charles. Miss Quinn was born and reared near Quinn at Whitehall plantation. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dale, Jr. of Vidalia.

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 13.—(Special)—A wedding of outstanding interest was the ceremony which joined Miss Frances Nadine Cone of Eudora, Ark., and Ferriday, La., and John Dale III, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dale, Jr. of Vidalia.

The wedding was solemnized by the Reverend Francis X. Kronmeyer, pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic church, of Vidalia, at the residence of Judge and Mrs. John Dale in Vidalia on Friday morning. The couple had no attendants and relatives and a few close friends acted as witnesses.

Mrs. Dale is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brevard Cone of Eudora, Ark., and was a member of the faculty of the Ferriday High school last session.

Mr. Dale, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dale, Jr. of Vidalia, is a graduate of the Vidalia High school and of the Louisiana State university with membership in the D. K. E. fraternity. He is associated with his father and grandfather and uncle in the law firm of Dale, Dale and Dale. Following a brief trial trip they will make their home in Vidalia.

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 13.—(Special)—A wedding of much interest to their many friends throughout this section was that of Franklin Foster, son of Mrs. A. E. Stuart, of Ferriday, and Miss Clara Campbell, of Natchez, which was solemnized in Natchez by the Reverend W. A. Sullivan, pastor of the First Baptist church at Natchez.

Mr. Foster has been a resident of Ferriday since birth and the bride has resided in Natchez for some years past.

The groom was graduated from the Louisiana State university in the class of 1937 in chemical engineering, and also received his commission as a lieutenant in the United States army reserve corps. He is employed by the Armstrong Tire and Rubber company at Natchez, where Mr. Foster is an employee also.

Following the ceremony the couple left by automobile for New Orleans, Baton Rouge, and other points of interest for a ten day honeymoon.

Upon their return they will make their home at Arlington in Natchez.

TODAY ANNIVERSARY OF NAPOLEON MARCH

(By Associated Press.)
One hundred and twenty-nine years ago today Napoleon's conquering legions marched into Russian-abandoned Moscow and occupied the Kremlin. The Little Corporal's timetable from the day he invaded Russia on June 24, 1812, until he got to the capital was 83 days.

Today, 83 days after striking out along the same path followed by Napoleon, Adolf Hitler's modernized war machine still is some 200 miles from Moscow.

Hitler, whose followers said that he "equalled Napoleon" after his quick conquest of France and the low countries, began his Russian invasion last June 22.

DELTA CANCELS SOME FLIGHTS OF PLANES

ATLANTA, Sept. 13.—(P)—Delta and Eastern Air line officials said today they were cancelling Sunday and Monday flights west of Birmingham under order of a civil aeronautics authority meeting in Shreveport, La.

All night trips were ordered suspended because of war maneuvers by military planes over Louisiana and Mississippi. Daytime trips are permitted only when flying conditions are perfect and visibility unlimited.

Officials of the two companies met in Shreveport today with C. A. A. members to work arrangements whereby the daylight flights will offset the suspension of night trips, or for partial restoration of night flying.

Attending the meeting for Delta were C. E. Woolman, vice-president, and Captain George R. Cushing, operations manager. Eastern Air line delegates were Captain L. H. Pabst and Captain Paul Foster, operations officers.

Night trips for both companies will cancel in Atlanta. Other planes will continue as far as Birmingham and hold there for flying condition reports.

Pending revisions of the C. A. A. ruling, officials said they would announce new flight schedules the first of the week.

TALLULAH STUDENT SERIOUSLY INJURED

TALLULAH, La., Sept. 13.—(Special)—Kenneth Hampton, Tallulah high school student, was seriously injured when the truck in which he was riding with two schoolmates overturned three miles east of Tallulah this morning.

He is receiving treatment at the Madison sanitarium for a fractured vertebra, injury of the spinal cord, lacerations of face and scalp and possible fractured ribs. His companions, Jimmy Crosby and Ira Spelly, escaped with minor lacerations. The accident was caused when the Crosby boy, who was driving, lost control of the truck in loose gravel.

NEW ORLEANS NEXT SITE FOR SHRINERS

ATLANTA, Sept. 13.—(P)—New Orleans was chosen as the 1942 convention city today as southeastern Shriners began packing their fun-making gadgets and winding up their annual meeting.

J. M. Rodgers of Chattanooga, Tenn., was elected president, succeeding Henry H. Cole of Tampa and six vice-presidents were advanced. Those included George W. Hunt of Savannah, Ga., Hubert M. Putest of New Bern, N. C., Thomas G. Braibson of Birmingham, Ala., Junius W. Dossauer of New Orleans and J. Ed Hart of Greenville, S. C.

COTTONSEED PRICE NOW AT HIGH LEVEL

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 13.—(P)—Cottonseed prices ranging from $35 to $42 a ton today evoked from Agriculture Commissioner J. E. McDonald an opinion that price stabilization within that range would make for a healthy condition.

Agriculture department workers reported cottonseed was bringing farmers prices considerably higher than a month ago and the increase was noted generally in Texas.

They said the $42 top was noted in Tyler, Austin, Waxahachie and near top prices were reported from Corpus Christi and San Antonio.

ELECTRIFICATION LINE IS APPROVED

DODSON, Sept. 13.—(Special)—Approval of $36,600 by the Rural Electrification administration to build the REA line from Calvin to Dodson, a distance of approximately 36 miles, service 168 homes was announced Saturday.

It is believed that construction of the line will begin as soon as materials are available. The work of securing the appropriation and right-of-way was begun over a year ago. The right-of-way was secured, but the allocation has been used to construct other lines in other sections.

PLANES RUSHING TO INLAND PORTS

army and navy planes, attached to the Third army, with headquarters in Lake Charles, this afternoon began moving from Texas and Louisiana airports to inland airfields to escape possible damage.

Lake Charles, largest city in southwest Louisiana and now surrounded by many divisions equipped with latest type arms and tanks, was in the center of the path the storm was expected to take on reaching the inland.

Third army headquarters, however, reported that the more than 330,000 troops in the army would remain in the field and no postponement in launching the maneuvers with the Second army tomorrow at midnight was announced. The Second army, encamped about 100 miles to the north in an area that may be affected by squalls caused by the gale.

The situation was similar to that of August, 1940, when the last tropical storm hit Louisiana, and after edging westward from the mouth of the Mississippi river clear to Lake Charles struck northward with deluge, bursts of rain which mired down 90,000 troops for several days. Extremely heavy floods followed along the coast.

The United States weather bureau at 2:30 p. m., central standard time, today reported that the gale now was about 70 miles southwest of Grand Isle, apparently moving west-northwestward at about 10 miles per hour, when the center expected to hit the southwest Louisiana coast between midnight and five a. m. Sunday, attending by shifting gales up to 50 and 60 miles per hour.

Persons in low, exposed places were warned to seek safety as tides were expected to rise three to four feet above normal from Morgan City to Cameron, La.

"Winds will increase ahead of the storm path and rise to gale velocity near the center," the bureau said. "There is some possibility of a turn to the northwest or north in which case the force will be felt a little further west."

Heavy rain fell here and all along the coast. Storm warnings remained displayed from Carrabelle, Fla., to Sabine, Tex.

HURRICANE SENDS PLANES AWAY FAST

LAKE CHARLES, La., Sept. 13.—(P)—Warning that a hurricane was sweeping toward the vast maneuver area of the Third army sent 400 fighting planes of a new air task force scurrying to havens in Alabama, Mississippi and inland Texas today as though an invading enemy were out to bomb their bases.

The planes were out of bases at Lake Charles, New Orleans, Beaumont and Houston within an hour and 15 minutes after the evacuation order was given.

The Third air task force, made up of army, navy and marine fliers, had hundreds of roaring fighters with which they could have fought an invader but the millions of dollars worth of planes would be helpless in a devastating wind.

All the quarter-million men of the Third army, bivouacked in southern Louisiana, were warned to take extra precautions but they were not shifted. Last year 70,000 men sat out a 70-mile-an-hour blow without serious consequences.

The path of the hurricane moving around the gulf for two days had been minutely charted on air corps weather maps at each of the bases from which the fighters and bombers were to operate against a similar task force assigned to the second army.

When the hurricane pointed toward the southern Louisiana maneuver area Major General Berthel A. Drague, commander of the Third task force, flashed to all stations an order to initiate "evacuation plan B." Seven thousand officers and enlisted men and more than 500 pilots went to work just as though American fighters had been beaten out of the air and enemy bombers were approaching instead of the hurricane. Soon afterward the fields were cleared.

The movement of planes under "evacuation B plan," is as follows: Houston, Texas: 89th and 18th pursuit squadrons.

Houston, Texas: 89th and 18th reconnaissance squadrons, remain at Ellington Field for further orders.

Beaumont, Texas: 27th pursuit, 3rd observation squadron, 25th air base group and two squadrons of navy fighters, to Jackson, Miss.

Port Arthur, Texas: 3rd observation squadron, to Memphis, Tenn.

Lake Charles, Third task force headquarters: Headquarters squadron, 27th bombardment group, 35th air base group and two navy dive bomber squadrons to Jackson, Miss.

Camp Beauregard, La.: 29th pursuit group, Esler Field, to Birmingham, Ala.

Lafayette, La.: Three observation squadrons, to Birmingham.

Baton Rouge: Three observation squadrons, to Birmingham.

New Orleans: 1st pursuit headquarters, to Barksdale Field, Shreveport; 38th base squadron and 31st pursuit squadron, to Waco, Texas.

At the Lake Charles airport, now taken over by the army air forces for construction of an aerial gunnery school, steps are being taken for protection of civilian aircraft and General Drague's private plane will fly this afternoon to San Antonio, Texas.

All planes will return to their maneuver bases, General Drague said this afternoon, as soon as any danger from the tropical storm has passed.

ON FURLOUGH

Thomas Hodge, 26, of West Monroe, who is with the army corps at Camp Victoria, Tex., is now here on a furlough. The son of Mrs. Duke Hodge, 1201 Trenton street, he is scheduled to report to camp September 22. He graduated from the Colorado Tech Air school at Denver, Colo., after attending Randolph field.

L. S. U. TO OPEN MONDAY

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 13.—(P)—With an enrollment just below 5,000 for the main campus, Louisiana State university will open classes Monday for the school's 82nd session. A decrease of about 300 students from last year's was expected after final enrollment figures are compiled, due to the number of young men called into military service. Freshmen were honored tonight at a campus dance.

'TELL GANG HELLO,' FLIER SAYS, KILLED

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 13.—(P)—An American pilot from New Orleans killed flying with the R. A. F. in England wanted a pal, Major T. B. Herndon, to say "hello to the gang around the New Orleans airport."

Herndon, state aviation director, received a letter written jointly by Jack Marcus and Ray Cooper, New Orleans pilots attached to the air transport auxiliary of the R. A. F. It was written August 25, just four days before Marcus was killed in a flying accident in England.

The flier, recalling good times attending the National Aeronautics association convention at St. Louis, asked Herndon to say "hello to the gang" and named Major Glynn M. Jones, manager of the New Orleans airport, among several Louisianians whom they listed for remembrance.

Marcus and Cooper told Major Herndon they were "both proud of the opportunity of doing our bit for civilization" and closed with the postscript: "See you later T. B., we hope."

MOTORCYCLE CRASH FATAL TO SOLDIER

JONESBORO, La., Sept. 13.—(Special)—Private William Benzer of Chicago, Ill., of headquarters company, 58th field artillery, died Saturday morning from injuries received in a motorcycle accident on a highway near Jonesboro.

The body is being held at the Southern Funeral home pending word from relatives in Illinois.

Terrorists, the official French information office at Vichy stated today, failed in an attempt to blow up the local government offices at Limoges, capital of the Haute Vienne department. A bomb was discovered before it exploded.

At Perigueux, Marseille and Limoges, all in the unoccupied zone, police rounded up about 15 followers of the Rightist leader Jacques Doriot on charges of unlawful assembly, it was reported here.

The information office said "Communists are multiplying incidents all over the country."

A Vichy government cabinet meeting discussed the new code of justice which is to try the chiefs of the Third Republic. Marshal Petain has promised that the governments' action against these leaders, including former Premier Edouard Daladier. Paul Reynaud and Leon Blum and General Maurice Gustave Gamelin, will be under way by October 15.

HEADQUARTERS CHANGED

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 13.—(P)—Headquarters of the American Cooperative Cotton association will be transferred here immediately from New Orleans, La. G. # PRESENTING 'MISS AMERICA OF 1941'

Rosemary La Plante (above), 19, "Miss California" in the annual Atlantic City bathing beauty contest, won out over all comers and was crowned "Miss America of 1941" at the closing of the pageant. She lives in Los Angeles and was runner-up in the 1940 contest.

FRANKLINTON PAIR KILLED IN CRASH

LELAND, Miss., Sept. 13.—(P)—Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Dennam of Franklinton, La., were killed and Edgar R. Huft of Meridian was critically injured in a two-car collision on the Bogue river bridge three miles east of here this afternoon.

Huft, construction company employee stationed at Greenville, was reported unconscious at the King's Daughters hospital there. Investigating patrolmen said he was driving one of the vehicles and that the chauffeur driving Dr. and Mrs. Dennam sustained minor injuries.

SHIP STRIKE ORDERED

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(P)—A walk-out which a union spokesman said would affect its members on "all ships bound for Axis or Allied ports" was ordered today by the Seafarers' International Union of North America (AFL) over a war-bonus demand. First effects were felt in New York harbor where three ships owned by the Alcoa Steamship Co., two freighters with defense cargoes for West Indies bases and the cruise liner Evangeline, were unable to sail. Other ports along the eastern seaboard, and the gulf coast, reported no immediate developments.

MARRIAGES

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 13.—(Special)—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Benjamin Morton announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Ruby Mae to Mr. Harmon Connel. The wedding will take place on Wednesday September 17 at the family home "Weymouth Hall" and a reception will follow the ceremony.

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 13.—(Special)—A marriage of interest here is that of Miss Rosemary Louise Quinn to Robert Hendrix Smith.

The marriage took place on Saturday in Lake Charles. Miss Quinn was born and reared near Vidalia on Whitehall plantation. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Quinn.

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 13.—(Special)—A marriage of outstanding interest was the ceremony which joined Miss Frances Nadine Cone of Eudora, Ark., and Ferriday, La., and John Dale III, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dale, Jr., of Vidalia.

The wedding was solemnized by the Reverend Francis X. Kromeyer, pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic church, of Vidalia, at the residence of Judge and Mrs. John Dale in Vidalia on Friday morning. The couple had no attendants and relatives and a few close friends acted as witnesses. Mrs. Dale is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brevard Cone of Eudora, Ark., and was a member of the faculty of the Ferriday High School last season.

Mr. Dale, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dale, Jr., of Vidalia, is a graduate of the Vidalia High school and of the Louisiana State university with membership in the D. K. E. fraternity. He is associated with his father and grandfather and uncle in the law firm of Dale, Dale and Dale. Following a brief bridal trip they will make their home in Vidalia.

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 13.—(Special)—A wedding of much interest to their many friends throughout this section was that of Franklin Foster, son of Mrs. A. E. Stuart, of Ferriday, and Miss Clara Campbell, of Natchez, which was solemnized in Natchez by the Reverend W. A. Sullivan, pastor of the First Baptist church at Natchez.

Mr. Foster has been a resident of Ferriday since birth and the bride has resided in Natchez for some years past.

The groom was graduated from the Louisiana State university in the class of 1937 in chemical engineering, and also received his commission as a lieutenant in the United States army reserve corps. He is employed by the Armstrong Tire and Rubber company at Natchez, where Mrs. Foster is an employee also.

Following the ceremony the couple left by automobile for New Orleans, Baton Rouge, and other points of interest for a ten day honeymoon. Upon their return they will make their home at Arlington in Natchez.

TODAY ANNIVERSARY OF NAPOLEON MARCH

(By Associated Press)

One hundred and twenty-nine years ago today Napoleon's conquering legions marched into Russian-abandoned Moscow and occupied the Kremlin.

The Little Corporal's timetable from the day he invaded Russia on June 24, 1812, until he got to the capital was 83 days.

Today, 85 days after striking out along the same path followed by Napoleon, Adolf Hitler's modernized war machine still is some 200 miles from Moscow.

Hitler, whose followers said that he "equalled Napoleon" after his quick conquest of France and the low countries, began his Russian invasion last June 22.

In an automobile accident with an army truck near Ruston, Willie Roberson, negro, of Minden, last night suffered a compound fracture of his elbow and was treated at the Monroe Charity hospital, physicians there said.

Monroe police were on the lookout last night for Robert Cherry, negro, who reportedly injured a negro woman, Bessie Reed, who was treated at the Monroe Charity hospital for a possible skull fracture and knife wounds of the left arm. Acting Police Chief B. L. Brantley said, adding that the altercation occurred on J. D. Parker's place.

DELTA CANCELS SOME FLIGHTS OF PLANES

ATLANTA, Sept. 13.—(P)—Delta and Eastern Air line officials said today they were cancelling Sunday and Monday flights west of Birmingham upon order of a civil aeronautics authority meeting in Shreveport, La.

All night trips were ordered suspended because of war maneuvers by military planes over Louisiana and Mississippi. Daytime trips are permitted only when flying conditions are perfect and visibility unlimited.

Officials of the two companies met in Shreveport today with C. A. A. members to work arrangements whereby the daylight flights will offset the suspension of night trips, or for partial restoration of night flying.

Attending the meeting for Delta were C. E. Woolman, vice-president, and Captain George R. Cushing, operations manager. Eastern Air line delegates were Captain L. H. Pabst and Captain Paul Foster, operations officers.

Night trips for both companies will cancel in Atlanta. Other planes will continue as far as Birmingham and hold there for flying condition reports.

Pending revisions of the C. A. A. ruling, officials said they would announce new flight schedules the first of the week.

TALLULAH STUDENT SERIOUSLY INJURED

TALLULAH, La., Sept. 13.—(Special)—Kenneth Hampton, Tallulah high school student, was seriously injured when the truck in which he was riding with two schoolmates overturned three miles east of Tallulah this morning. He is receiving treatment at the Madison sanitarium for a fractured vertebra, injury of the spinal cord, lacerations of face and scalp and possible fractured ribs. His companions, Jimmy Crosby and Ira Spells, escaped with minor lacerations. The accident was caused when the Crosby boy, who was driving, lost control of the truck in loose gravel.

NEW ORLEANS NEXT SITE FOR SHRINERS

ATLANTA, Sept. 13.—(P)—New Orleans was chosen as the 1942 convention city today as southeastern Shriners began packing their fun-making gadgets and winding up their annual meeting.

J. M. Rodgers of Chattanooga, Tenn., was elected president, succeeding Henry H. Cole of Tampa and six vice-presidents were advanced. Those included George W. Hunt of Savannah, Ga., Hubert M. Poteat of New Bern, N. C., Thomas G. Brabston of Birmingham, Ala., Junius W. Dessauer of New Orleans and J. Ed Hart of Greenville, S. C.

COTTONSEED PRICE NOW AT HIGH LEVEL

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 13.—(P)—Cottonseed prices ranging from $38 to $62 a ton today evoked from Agriculture Commissioner J. E. McDonald an opinion that price stabilization within that range would make for a healthy condition.

Agriculture department workers reported cottonseed was bringing farm prices considerably higher than a month ago and the increase was noted generally in Texas.

They said the $62 top was noted in Tyler, Austin, Waxahatchie and near top prices were reported from Corpus Christi and San Antonio.

ELECTRIFICATION LINE IS APPROVED

DODSON, Sept. 13.—(Special)—Approval of $36,000 by the Rural Electrification administration to build the REA line from Calvin to Dodson, a distance of approximately 36 miles, to service 168 homes was announced Saturday.

It is believed that construction of the line will begin as soon as materials are available. The work of securing the appropriation and right-of-way was begun over a year ago. The right-of-way was secured, but the allocation has been used to construct other lines in other sections.

PLANES RUSHING TO INLAND PORTS

army and navy planes, attached to the Third army, with headquarters in Lake Charles, this afternoon began moving from Texas and Louisiana airports to inland airfields to escape possible damage.

Lake Charles, largest city in southwest Louisiana and now surrounded by many divisions equipped with latest type arms and tanks, was in the center of the path the storm was expected to take on reaching the mainland.

Third army headquarters, however, reported that the more than 330,000 troops in the army would remain in the field and no postponement in launching the maneuvers with the Second army tomorrow at midnight was announced. The Second army lies encamped about 100 miles to the north, also in an area that may be affected by squalls caused by the gale.

The situation was similar to that of August, 1940, when the last tropical storm hit Louisiana, and after edging westward from the mouth of the Mississippi river clear to Lake Charles struck northward with cloud-bursts of rain which mired down 90,000 troops for several days. Extremely heavy floods followed along the coast.

The United States weather bureau at 2:30 p. m., central standard time, today reported that the gale now was about 70 miles southwest of Grand Isle, apparently moving west-northwestward at about 10 miles per hour, when the center expected to hit the southwest Louisiana coast between midnight and five a. m. Sunday, attending by shifting gales up to 50 and 60 miles per hour.

Persons in low, exposed places were warned to seek safety as tides were expected to rise three to four feet above normal from Morgan City to Cameron, La.

"Winds will increase ahead of the storm path and rise to gale velocity near the center," the bureau said. "There is some possibility of a turn to the northwest or north in which case the force will be felt a little further east."

HURRICANE SENDS PLANES AWAY FAST

LAKE CHARLES, La., Sept. 13.—(P)—Warning that a hurricane was sweeping toward the vast maneuver area of the Third army sent 400 fighting planes of a new air task force scurrying to havens in Alabama, Mississippi and inland Texas today as though an invading enemy were out to bomb their bases.

The planes were out of bases at Lake Charles, New Orleans, Beaumont and Houston within an hour and 15 minutes after the evacuation order was given.

The Third air task force, made up of army, navy and marine fliers, had hundreds of roaring fighters with which they could have fought an invader but the millions of dollars worth of planes would be helpless in a devastating wind.

All the quarter-million men of the Third army, bivouacked in a southern Louisiana, were warned to take extra precautions but they were not shifted. Last year 70,000 men sat out a 70-mile-an-hour blow without serious consequences.

The path of the hurricane moving around the gulf for two days had been minutely charted on air corps weather maps at each of the bases from which the fighters and bombers were to operate against a similar task force assigned to the second army.

When the hurricane pointed toward the southern Louisiana maneuver area Major General Herbert A. Dargue, commander of the Third task force, flashed to all stations an order to initiate "evacuation plan B." Seven thousand officers and enlisted men and more than 500 pilots went to work just as though American fighters had been beaten out of the air and enemy bombers were approaching instead of the hurricane. Soon afterward the fields were cleared.

The movement of planes under "evacuation B plan," is as follows: Houston, Texas: 89th and 18th pursuit squadrons.

Houston, Texas: 89th and 18th reconnaissance squadrons, remain at Ellington Field for further orders.

Beaumont, Texas: 25th pursuit, 3rd observation squadron, 27th air base group and two squadrons of navy fighters, to Jackson, Miss.

Port Arthur, Texas: 3rd Observation squadron, to Memphis, Tenn.

Camp Beauregard, La.: 29th pursuit squadron, Esler Field, to Birmingham, Ala.

Lafayette, La.: Three observation squadrons, to Birmingham.

Baton Rouge: Three observation squadrons, to Birmingham.

New Orleans: 1st pursuit group headquarters, to Barksdale Field, Shreveport; 38th base squadron and 31st pursuit squadron, to Waco, Texas.

At the Lake Charles airport, now taken over by the army air forces for construction of an aerial gunnery school, steps are being taken for protection of civilian aircraft and General Dargue's private plane will be flown this afternoon to San Antonio, Texas.

All planes will return to their maneuver bases, General Dargue said this afternoon, as soon as any danger from the tropical storm has passed.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 13.—(P)—Patrick Fagan, district 5 president of the C. I. O. United Mine Workers union, said tonight the union has called a strike of 8,800 miners in Pittsburgh district "captive" mines for Monday.

"Captive" mines are those whose coal is used entirely in the production of steel.

The union said the mines affected will be those of the United States Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Republic Steel and Wheeling Steel Corporations.

ON FURLOUGH

Thomas Hodge, 26, of West Monroe, who is with the army corps at Camp Victoria, Tex., is now here on a furlough. The son of Mrs. Duke Hodge, 1201 Trenton street, he is scheduled to report to camp September 22. He graduated from the Colorado Tech Air school at Denver, Colo., after attending Randolph field.

L. S. U. TO OPEN MONDAY

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 13.—(P)—With an enrollment just below 5,000 for the main campus, Louisiana State university will open classes Monday for the school's 82nd session. A decrease of about 200 students from last year's was expected after final enrollment figures are compiled, due to the number of young men called into military service. Freshmen were honored tonight at a campus dance.

'TELL GANG HELLO,' FLIER SAYS, KILLED

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 13.—(P)—An American pilot from New Orleans killed flying with the R. A. F. in England wanted a pal, Major T. B. Herndon, to say "hello to the gang around the New Orleans airport."

Herndon, state aviation director, received a letter written jointly by Jack Marcus and Ray Cooper, New Orleans pilots attached to the air transport auxiliary of the R. A. F. It was written August 25, just four days before Marcus was killed in a flying accident in England.

The flier, recalling good times attending the National Aeronautics association convention at St. Louis, asked Herndon to say "hello to the gang" and named Major Glynn M. Jones, manager of the New Orleans airport, among several Louisianians whom they listed for remembrance.

Marcus and Cooper told Major Herndon they were "both proud of the opportunity of doing our bit for civilization" and closed with the postscript: "See you later T. B., we hope."

MOTORCYCLE CRASH FATAL TO SOLDIER

JONESBORO, La., Sept. 13.—(Special)—Private William Benzger of Chicago, Ill., of headquarters company, 58th field artillery, died Saturday morning from injuries received in a motorcycle accident on a highway near Jonesboro.

The body is being held at the Southern Funeral home pending word from relatives in Illinois.

residence on the basis of past Communist records.

Terrorists, the official French information office at Vichy stated today, failed in an attempt to blow up the local government offices at Limoges, capital of the Haute Vienne department. A bomb was discovered before it exploded.

At Perigeaux, Marseille and Limoges, all in the unoccupied zone, police rounded up about 15 followers of the Rightist leader Jacques Doriot on charges of unlawful assembly, it was reported here.

The information office said "Communists are multiplying incidents all over the country."

A Vichy government cabinet meeting discussed the new court of justice which is to try the chiefs of the Third Republic. Marshal Petain has promised that the government's action against these leaders, including former Premier Edouard Daladier, Paul Reynaud and Leon Blum and General Maurice Gustave Gamelin, will be under way by October 15.

HEADQUARTERS CHANGED

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 13.—(P)—Headquarters of the American Cooperative Cotton association will be transferred here immediately from New Orleans. C. G. Henry of the Mid-South Cotton Growers association said tonight. The A. C. C. A., cotton selling agency for regional cooperative associations in the South, will open its new offices Monday.

ARMORED CORPS MASSSED FOR WAR

Ready To Throw Mechanized
Night At Third Army
Forces

WITH THE SECOND ARMY IN LOUISIANA, Sept. 13.—(P)—The nation's only complete armored corps was massed today for the first time, ready to throw the mechanized might of its two divisions at the Third army when the curtain is raised Sunday night on the army's biggest war games in history.

The divisions composing the armored corps commanded by Major-General Charles L. Scott, lean ex-cavalry man, are the laboratory out of which the war department hopes to build a new "panzer" units surpassing in mobility and fire power even the highly touted German armored forces.

Already two other armored divisions have been activated although not equipped, the Third division at Camp Polk, La., and the 4th division at Pine Camp, N. Y., orders to form the Fifth division at Fort Knox, Ky., have been issued and plans have been made to put into service the 6th, 7th and 8th armored divisions elsewhere.

With some 300 tanks and 800 other armored vehicles in each division, the corps will serve as Second army's knockout punch when the front line battle line is established. Although Third army will have several G. H. Q. battalions, its armored forces will be far outnumbered by the strength of the First armored corps, Lieutenant-General Walter Krueger, however, will have 330,000 men to Lieutenant-General Ben Lear's 225,000.

The two armored divisions put into service less than a year ago, and with 75 per cent of their personnel, selectees and reserve officers, have been seasoned for their task in preliminary maneuvers, but never before have they operated near one another.

The Second division from Fort Benning, Ga., under Major-General George S. Patton, is the most experienced, participating in two weeks of the June maneuvers in Tennessee and then joining with Third army in its months of "warmup" war games in Louisiana during August and early September.

Activated first among armored troops but depleted several times to form new units, the First armored division has been into large scale maneuver action but three days, taking part in the final problem of Second army's maneuvers in Louisiana early this week, it is commanded by Major-General Bruce McGrunder.

The two commanders of the armored divisions are strangely contrasted men. McGrunder, soft-spoken, brown-eyed ex-infantryman who came up from the ranks, believes in calmly directing his men from a central point of communications. Patton, blue eyed, outspoken graduate of West Point and ex-cavalryman, believes in leading his men into battle in the same manner of the cavalry charges of old. He is usually found in one of the tanks or scout cars nearest the enemy lines.

Supervising the armored operations will be Major-General Jacob E. Evers, ex-artilleryman who became chief of the nation's armored forces recently, succeeds the late Major-General Edna Chaffee.

STATE GETS 90,128 POUNDS OF ALUMINUM

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 13.—(P)—E. D. Denis, executive secretary of the state's national defense council, said today a check of figures on the collection of scrap aluminum in Louisiana for defense industries showed that the New Orleans concentration area had weighed in a total of 90,128 pounds of the used metal.

This was 37,000 pounds more than the figure previously announced, Denis said. Of the total 60,153 pounds was collected in Orleans parish and the remainder in a dozen surrounding parishes.

The state's entire total now is 169,242 pounds, rather than 132,090 pounds, as previously reported, Denis said.

British, Allied Shipping Losses Go Low In August

Believed Less Than For Any Month This Year; New Spurt Likely

By Harold Brayman
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 13.—(Special)—British and allied shipping losses throughout the world are reliably understood to have been the lowest in August for any month in a year.

No official figures on total losses have yet been given out, but when they come they will be a pleasant surprise. They may not yet be down to the point where combined British and American construction equals or surpasses the monthly losses. Shipbuilding in the United States is only just getting under way and will rise rapidly over the next 12 months. Unless German sinkings also rise rapidly from the low point of August the time when construction will surpass losses is not far distant.

The possibility of a rise in German sea activity against British shipping is probably very definitely connected with the Greer incident.

Up to the present time none of the published theories of the attack upon the United States destroyer Greer are very convincing. Least convincing of all is the German contention that the Greer fired first. If the Greer had sighted the submarine and fired upon it there is little possibility that the submarine would have been able to shoot two torpedoes at the Greer at all. Encountering a destroyer and not having the advantage of being able to fire first, it would be the most foolhardy submarine commander who would try to fight back instead of getting away in such an unequal contest.

Nor is much credence given in any informed circles to the idea that the attack was a mistake of the submarine commander, and that he thought he was launching his torpedoes against a British destroyer. Such a hypothesis might be plausible if the attack had occurred at night when all American naval ships in the Atlantic are completely blacked out, but this attack occurred in broad daylight.

Under such conditions, if the submarine commander took only one peep through his periscope before firing, he should have been able to see the clearly distinguishable lights on the ship, proclaiming it American.

Nor is there much sense in the third hypothesis, that it was a deliberately ordered attack for the purpose of encouraging the Japanese to be bold. The argument behind this theory is that such an attack would lead to a strengthening of the Atlantic fleet at the expense of the Pacific, thus making things easier for Japan to be aggressive in the far east.

The most likely explanation is that the attack was deliberately ordered for the purpose of testing out American reaction to provide light for the guidance of Hitler in planning the future course of the war.

The German Fuehrer's information on American affairs is good enough that he knows as well as anyone else that American public opinion is far from united, and that this division in opinion has undoubtedly restrained President Roosevelt's actions this summer.

He knows also that the war in the Atlantic is going against him largely because of the extensive areas controlled by the American navy, leaving the British fleet to concentrate in the vital spots of active encounter.

Does he have to accept this American naval action, or would a little incident stir up such a storm in America that President Roosevelt would be compelled by popular opinion to curtail, or at least fail to extend, the action of the fleet? It is very logical to assume that such a question has been in Hitler's mind for some time.

If so, there was but one way to find out—test out such an incident in a mild enough form (e. g. not hitting the American ship) so that no risk of immediate war would be involved.

If that was what was in Hitler's mind he has received his answer. It is that any interference with the American fleet in the Atlantic will not lead to a storm in America, but rather to a shooting war at sea.

That this may be the real explanation of the attack is borne out by the fact that almost certainly the attack upon the Robin Moor on May 21 was for the purpose of testing out American opinion. At that time Hitler found that it was not excitable. Presumably he felt safe, therefore, in embarking upon the campaign into Russia.

Now that campaign has bogged down and gives every evidence of tying up a large part of the German army and air force through the winter and into next summer. During the winter months the action at sea may again become the most active one carried on by Germany.

If so, knowing what to expect from the American fleet in the Atlantic was a fundamental piece of information he had to have.

He has it.

LIVESTOCK SHOW RODEO PLANNED

Performances To Be Held October 22-26 By Parish, West Monroe Groups

Because the Ouachita Valley Fair was cancelled due to the army maneuvers, the Ouachita Parish Cattlemen's association and the West Monroe Rodeo Association, Inc., are planning a rodeo and livestock show October 22-26.

The livestock show will be free and will feature the cattle now being raised by Ouachita Parish 4-H Club boys and girls and adult farmers.

Much progress has been made in the past three years in the livestock industry," Robert Harmon, chairman of the group, said yesterday, "and the livestock men plan to show the visiting public the finest group of pure bred and grade cattle ever assembled in this area."

The horse and mule show is expected to reveal the progress made in these enterprises. The swine show will feature the 4-H club members' pigs being raised in cooperation with Sears, Roebuck and company.

Bucking stock for the rodeo is now being secured from Fort Worth, Texas, and "the largest purses for cowboys ever given are being offered," Mr. Harmon said.

The rodeo and livestock parade will be held Wednesday October 22 beginning at noon, and the first performance will be given that night at 8 o'clock.

DEMONSTRATION AGENTS WILL GO TO NASHVILLE

Plans for a group to attend the National Home Demonstration council meeting to be held October 22 at Nashville, Tenn., were formulated at the Ouachita Parish council meeting held yesterday morning at the parish courthouse. The meeting was attended by 13 Home Demonstration clubs.

A nominating committee composed of Mrs. D. E. Willis, Mrs. L. D. Willis,

MANEUVERS MAY BE ARMY'S LAST

Gen. McNair Calls For Strict
Observance Of War-
Time Rules

LAKE CHARLES, La., Sept. 13.—(P)—Saying the Second vs. Third army games "may be the last," Lieutenant-General Lesley J. McNair, chief of army general headquarters, called tonight for strict observance of war-time rules in the Louisiana field exercises.

Laying down the maneuver laws to 2,000 officers-umpires of the Second and then the Third armies, who will oppose each other for two weeks beginning Monday, he declared "this maneuver is a test of tank warfare and anti-tank defense. We are definitely out to see if and how we can crush a modern tank offensive."

The prime purpose of the war games was set out even though army aviation on an "unprecedented scale," dive bombers of the navy and parachute troops will participate together for the first time.

General McNair cautioned the umpires to "call them as they see them." The specially schooled umpires assess losses on the opposing side according to tables set up from battle experience.

With white flags to halt hostilities until one side or the other gets superior power, umpires are supreme on the training "battle" fields.

General McNair said the umpires for the parachute troops would jump with their men. He has not yet said whether this newly developed army force would serve with the Third or Second army, or a part with each.

Realism of war will be carried out to a degree unknown in previous field exercises, General McNair said.

"We are going to operate without lights on the front throughout the maneuver," he declared. "I want a complete blackout of every vehicle on the front line and back as far as division command posts. State highway patrolmen and military police will be stationed at all highway entrances to the maneuver area and will advise civilian motorists of the blackout and attempt to reroute them."

"Let's face the facts and play this maneuver the way it should be played. The result will be lives of our troops saved if we should ever be called upon to pit our training and skill against a well-trained and veteran army."

ARMY ABOUT TO REPEL CHIGGERS

WITH THE SECOND ARMY IN LOUISIANA, Sept. 13.—(P)—Chiggers, number one enemy of maneuvering soldiers, are about to be repelled, the army announced today.

The invisible parasites have burrowed into the skin of every trooper from Lieutenant-General Ben Lear to the rank and file. When a man scratches himself in the army, it's a sure sign he's got chiggers. Legs and waists—the red bugs' favorite spots—are covered with red welts.

To turn back the bothersome pests, a new remedy is being sent in unbreakable bottles.

Scientists using 3,000 soldiers of Third army as guinea pigs for the concoction, proved the potency of their discovery when the troopers purposely lay in the grass, half of them rubbing the liquid on their arms and legs and other vulnerable spots while the others used nothing. Those who used the medicine went virtually chigger free; the ones who didn't were covered. No one proved allergic to the medicine.

Not only does the remedy keep the chiggers away, but it ends their irritation after they have burrowed in. Ticks and mosquitoes are repelled equally successfully by the concoction, the army claims. Soldiers say, "There's a whole of a difference between being hard bitten men and chigger bitten men."

ARMORED CORPS MASSSED FOR WAR

Ready To Throw Mechanized Might At Third Army
Forces

WITH THE SECOND ARMY IN LOUISIANA, Sept. 13.—(P)—The nation's only complete armored corps was massed today for the first time, ready to throw the mechanized might of its two divisions at the Third Army when the curtain is raised Sunday night on the army's biggest war games in history.

The divisions composing the armored corps commanded by Major-General Charles L. Scott, lean ex-cavalry man, are the laboratory out of which the war department hopes to build a score of "panzer" units surpassing in mobility and fire power even the highly touted German armored forces.

Already two other armored divisions have been activated although not equipped. The Third division at Camp Polk, La., and the 4th division at Pine Camp, N. Y., orders to form the Fifth division at Fort Knox, Ky., have been issued and plans have been made to put into service the 6th, 7th and 8th armored divisions elsewhere.

With some 300 tanks and 800 other armored vehicles in each division, the corps will serve as Second army's knockout punch when the front line battle line is established. Although Third army will have several G. H. Q. battalions, its armored force will be far outnumbered by the strength of the First armored corps. Lieutenant-General Walter Krueger, however, will have 330,000 men to Lieutenant-General Ben Lear's 22,000.

The two armored divisions put into service less than a year ago, and with 75 per cent of their personnel selected and reserve officers, have been seasoned for their task in preliminary maneuvers, but never before have they operated near one another.

The Second division from Fort Benning, Ga., under Major-General George S. Patton, is the most experienced, participating in two weeks of the June maneuvers in Tennessee and then joining with Third army in its months of "warup" war games in Louisiana during August and early September.

Activated first among armored troops but depleted several times to form new units, the First armored division has been into large scale maneuver action but three days, taking part in the final problem of Second army's maneuvers in Louisiana early this week. It is commanded by Major-General Bruce McGruder.

The two commanders of the armored divisions are strangely contrasted men. McGruder, soft-spoken, brown-eyed ex-infantryman who came up from the ranks, believes in calmly directing his men from a central point of communications. Patton, blue eyed, outspoken graduate of West Point and ex-cavalryman, believes in leading his men into battle in the same manner of the cavalry charges of old. He is usually found in one of the tanks or scout cars nearest the enemy lines.

Supervising the armored operations will be Major-General Jacob E. Evers, ex-artilleryman who became chief of the nation's armored forces recently, succeeds the late Major-General Edna Chaffee.

STATE GETS 90,128 POUNDS OF ALUMINUM

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 13.—(P)—E. D. Denis, executive secretary of the state's national defense council, said today a reckoning of figures on the collection of scrap aluminum in Louisiana for defense industries showed that the New Orleans concentration area had weighed in a total of 90,128 pounds of the used metal.

This was 37,000 pounds more than the figure previously announced, Denis said. Of the total 60,133 pounds was collected in Orleans parish and the remainder in a dozen surrounding parishes.

The state's entire total now is 169,243 pounds, rather than 132,090 pounds, as previously reported, Denis said.

British, Allied Shipping Losses Go Low In August

Believed Less Than For Any Month This Year; New Spurt Likely

By Harold Brayman
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 13.—(Special)—British and allied shipping losses throughout the world are reliably understood to have been the lowest in August for any month in a year.

No official figures on total losses have yet been given out, but when they come they will be a pleasant surprise. They may not yet be down to a point where combined British and American construction equals or surpasses the monthly losses. Shipbuilding in the United States is only just getting under way and will rise rapidly over the next 12 months. Unless German sinkings also rise rapidly from the low point of August the time when construction will surpass losses is not far distant.

The possibility of a rise in German sea activity against British shipping is probably very definitely connected with the Greer incident.

Up to the present time none of the published theories of the attack upon the United States destroyer Greer are very convincing.

Least convincing of all is the German contention that the Greer fired first. If the Greer had sighted the submarine and fired upon it there is little possibility that the submarine would have been able to shoot two torpedoes at the Greer at all. Encountering a destroyer and not having the advantage of being able to fire first, it would be the most foolhardy submarine commander who would try to fight back instead of getting away in such an unequal contest.

Nor is much credence given in any informed circles to the idea that the attack was a mistake of the submarine commander, and that he thought he was launching his torpedoes against a British destroyer. Such a hypothesis might be plausible if the attack had occurred at night when all American naval ships in the Atlantic are completely blacked out, but this attack occurred in broad daylight.

Under such conditions, if the submarine commander took only one peep through his periscope before firing, he should have been able to see the clearly distinguishable marks on the ship, proclaiming it American.

Nor is there much sense in the third hypothesis, that it was a deliberately ordered attack for the purpose of encouraging the Japanese to be bold. The argument behind this theory is that such an attack would lead to a strengthening of the Atlantic fleet at the expense of the Pacific, thus making things easier for Japan to be aggressive in the far east.

The most likely explanation is that the attack was a deliberately ordered for the purpose of testing out American reaction to provide light for the guidance of Hitler in planning the future course of the war.

The German Fuehrer's information on American affairs is good enough that he knows as well as anyone else that American public opinion is far from united, and that this division in opinion has undoubtedly restrained President Roosevelt's actions this summer.

He knows also that the war in the Atlantic is going against him largely because of the extensive area patrolled by the American navy, leaving the British fleet to concentrate in the vital spots of active encounter.

Does he have to accept this American naval action, or would a little incident stir up such a storm in America that President Roosevelt would be compelled by popular opinion to curtail, or at least fail to extend, the action of the fleet? It is very logical to assume that such a question has been in Hitler's mind for some time.

LIVESTOCK SHOW RODEO PLANNED

Performances To Be Held October 22-26 By Parish,
West Monroe Groups

Because the Ouachita Valley Fair was cancelled due to the army maneuvers, the Ouachita Parish Cattlemen's association and the West Monroe Rodeo Association, Inc., are planning a rodeo and livestock show October 22-26.

The livestock show will be free and will feature the cattle now being raised by Ouachita Parish 4-H Club boys and girls and adult farmers.

"Much progress has been made in the past three years in the livestock industry," Robert Harmon, chairman of the group, said yesterday, "and the livestock men plan to show the visiting public the finest group of pure bred and grade cattle ever assembled in this area."

The horse and mule show is expected to reveal the progress made in these enterprises. The swine show will feature the 4-H club members' pigs being raised in cooperation with Sears, Roebuck and company.

Bucking stock for the rodeo is now being secured from Fort Worth, Texas, and "the largest purses for cowboys ever given are being offered," Mr. Harmon said.

The rodeo and livestock parade will be held Wednesday October 22 beginning at noon, and the first performance will be given that night at 8 o'clock.

DEMONSTRATION AGENTS WILL GO TO NASHVILLE

Plans for a group to attend the National Home Demonstration council meeting to be held October 22 at Nashville, Tenn., were formulated at the Ouachita Parish council meeting held yesterday morning at the parish courthouse. The meeting was attended by 13 Home Demonstration clubs.

A nominating committee composed of Mrs. D. E. Willis, Mrs. L. D. Willis,

Mrs. J. S. Sims was appointed by Mrs. Robert Cann, president, to nominate officers for the ensuing year. Reports on the recent short course attended by 60 Ouachita parish rural women were given by Mrs. Cann and Mrs. Sims.

MANEUVERS MAY BE ARMY'S LAST

Gen. McNair Calls For Strict
Observance Of War-
Time Rules

LAKE CHARLES, La., Sept. 13.—(P)—Saying the Second vs. Third army games "may be the last," Lieutenant-General Lesley J. McNair, chief of army general headquarters, called to night for strict observance of war-time rules in the Louisiana field exercises.

Laying down the maneuver laws to 2,000 officers-umpires of the Second and then the Third armies, who will oppose each other for two weeks beginning Monday, he declared "this maneuver is a test of tank warfare and anti-tank defense. We are definitely out to see if and how we can crush a modern tank offensive."

The prime purpose of the war games was set out even though army aviation on an "unprecedented scale," dive bombers of the navy and parachute troops will participate together for the first time.

General McNair cautioned the umpires to "call them as they see them." The specially schooled umpires assess losses on the opposing side according to tables set up from battle experience.

With white flags to halt hostilities until one side or the other gets superior power, umpires are supreme on the training "battle" fields.

General McNair said the umpires for the parachute troops would jump with their men. He has not yet said whether this newly developed army force would serve with the Third or Second army, or a part with each.

Realism of war will be carried out to a degree unknown in previous field exercises, General McNair said.

"We are going to operate without lights on the front throughout the maneuver," he declared. "I want a complete blackout of every vehicle on the front line and back as far as division command posts. State highway patrolmen and military police will be stationed at all highway entrances to the maneuver area and will advise civilian motorists of the blackout and attempt to reroute them."

"Let's face the facts and play this maneuver the way it should be played. The result will be lives of our troops saved if we should ever be called upon to put our training and skill against a well-trained and veteran army."

ARMY ABOUT TO REPEL CHIGGERS

WITH THE SECOND ARMY IN LOUISIANA, Sept. 13.—(P)—Chiggers, number one enemy of maneuvering soldiers, are about to be repelled, the army announced today.

The invisible parasites have burrowed into the skin of every trooper from Lieutenant-General Ben Lear to the rank and file. When a man scratches himself in the army, it's a sure sign he's got chiggers. Legs and waists—the red bugs' favorite spots—are covered with red welts.

To turn back the bothersome pests, a new remedy is being sent in unbreakable bottles.

Scientists using 3,000 soldiers of Third army as guinea pigs for the concoction, proved the potency of their discovery when the troopers purposely lay in the grass, half of them rubbing the liquid on their arms and legs and other vulnerable spots while the others used nothing. Those who used the medicine went virtually chigger free; the ones who didn't were covered. No one proved allergic to the medicine.

Not only does the remedy keep the chiggers away, but it ends their irritation after they have burrowed in. Ticks and mosquitoes are repelled equally successfully by the concoction.

the army clais. Soldiers say, "There's a whole of a difference between being hard bitten men and chigger bitten men."

AIRPORTS LOOK LIKE FARM LAND

Runways Made To Resemble Continuation Of Country Road

LAKE CHARLES, La., Sept. 13.—(AP)—For years American engineers have been making airports out of swamps, arm land and places where only hollies were before. Today engineers, now in the nation's new army, are busy making airports appear to be just like those everyday scenes.

These men make vast stretches of glaring, yellow, newly-filled ground and smooth concrete runways that stand out to the aerial observer like a sailboat in a duck pond into havens for combat planes. Such a job takes a lot of doing but these experts—aviation engineers—make a smooth airport look like a soybean field, and a runway just the continuation of a winding country road through a black countryside.

Four-hundred-mile-an-hour fighter planes have to have good wheelroom, and a lot of it to get off the ground during wartime to repel invaders. In the simulated warfare between the second and third armies, beginning next week, even the airports are to be camouflaged as much as possible. The planes are to be dispersed and protected as though the ships of the opposing side were dropping real bombs instead of flour-filled sacks.

To show the magic these new engineers can perform, they have painted the end of a concrete runway a full black, thrown sawdust on asphalt but over newly dug earth, and from 20,000 feet in the air it appears to be a fertile field, waiting to be sown. They make wires stretched between stakes and garnished with green strips of cloth look like a cultivated field, and paint what appear to be gullies on a runway that will accommodate a 23-passenger ship.

They also build pens for the fighting ships. Wire netting with green streamers hanging from it shield the wing from enemy eyes and double log walls, filled with dirt or cordonnet, protect each plane from concussion or splinters from a bomb-dropped nearby. Construction is too time-consuming and materials too scarce at a fighter airport just behind the lines to attempt the work necessary to protect a plane from a direct hit.

In addition to this camouflage, and construction an advanced fighter airport must have bombproof and gas-proof shelters for plane crews—eight men to a plane—and barbed wire entanglements for ground troops to fight off parachute troops or advancing infantrymen.

HOPE TO CAPITALIZE ON GASOLINE WELL

TAYLOR, Miss., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Puzzled citizens of this tiny north Mississippi community hope to capitalize on the century-old town well here which mysteriously keeps pouring out gasoline-saturated water.

The well has been acting up for nearly eight weeks now and the puzzle still hasn't been solved. Taylor folk have merely to run the water through an ordinary cream separator and out comes a brand of motor fuel.

Today, Town Marshal Travis Hurdle got busy. Buckleful after bucketful was drawn from the well, the fuel separated and stored away. The board of aldermen figures to use it in town trucks to haul paving material into Taylor.

When the gasoline content was first discovered, town officials thought it a prank and had the well cleaned out. But the gas kept coming. The well's under lock and key now.

Professor R. R. Priddy of the Mississippi geological survey investigated and theorized that the gasoline came from a nearby filling station. The proprietor checked hastily—but found no leak.

PUERTO RICAN AT TECH EARLY

Alberto F. Umperio of Comerio, Puerto Rico, who did not know that Louisiana Tech's fall opening had been delayed until October 2 because of army maneuvers, arrived in Ruston three weeks early. The Puerto Rican, planning to be a freshman agriculture student at Tech, is pictured above wearing a native hat (pava) and holding two malacas, which look a little like gourds and sound a lot like they have buckshot in them. Umperio temporarily has been taken under the wings of two of the dean's men, Jesse Stodghill (left), Ruston, and Dan Otis (right), Bernice, who are arranging furniture in dormitories.

SERIAL STORY BRIDE FROM THE SKY

BY HELEN WELSHIMER

CHAPTER XXI
Judy walked to the stand, limping a little because one foot had a healed slipper and the other foot hit bottom with every step.

"Miss Allen?" the voice of the law asked, carefully noting the disheveled copper curls, the shadows under the purple eyes.

"Yes, Your Honor."

"Are you willing to state that the stories and photographs of you in these morning papers are, without doubt, yourself?"

The lost dimples played around Judy's mouth for a second.

"I didn't come down any too gracefully, did I?" she asked. "In this pose even my skirts are ballooning."

She heard laughter. The judge, rapped for silence.

Judy looked up in surprise. "I'm sorry. You see, my father is a common pleas judge, too, so I forgot to be scared." She gave the judge on the bench a dazzling smile. "Yes, I'm in the pictures. I haven't read the articles. I'm sorry."

"Will you please tell the court what happened?" The judge leaned back and relaxed. Several times he covered his amusement with a long hand which he passed over his face.

At the end he set Judy's bond at $1,000. She did not flinch. "I cannot meet the amount," she stated as calmly as the associate editor of Under Twenty should state her facts. "If I may get in touch with my father or my fiancé I shall be able to meet the bond you are setting, and obtain a lawyer instantly."

She was led away at once. Sandy followed but she swung a heavy door closed before he reached it.

"Where are the telephones?" she asked the attendant who was guiding her. She wondered what people did when they were in jail and didn't have a nickel with which to summon the operator for a call.

The officer who was conducting her on her various missions was genial and sympathetic. Judy smiled again. "Officer, will you lend me a nickel until I summon an operator? Or better still, will you call the operator for me?"

The man grinned sheepishly, found a dime in his pocketbook, and gave it to Judy. She dialed, heard the click which returned the coin and reached from the booth to give the officer the money.

"It's a station to station call, collect," she told the operator. "It's terribly important."

"That number does not answer," the smooth, metallic voice of the operator reported in a moment. "Would you like to try another number?"

Judy gave her father's office number at the court. The call was accepted by Judge Allen's secretary who said: "Judy? Your father is in court. He expected to hear from you so he left a message. I'll read it." She opened a crisp paper whose rustling carried across the wires.

"Have no connection with Judy's escapade. Grant no advice. Judgment and taste inexorably bad. Refuse any responsibility for bail. Time she learned a lesson."

The world was small and close and tight. The world was no bigger than this telephone booth. That faint voice that tried to speak was not hers. Just the same, it said, "I can make him understand. I was kidnapped! It wasn't a stunt. Can't you make him see?"

"Your father is furious. Sorry, Judy, but I'm not much help. I'll get in all the words I can. He wouldn't take any calls at all from you last night."

"Call from me?" Judy's voice whispered. "I didn't call. I've been locked up with a rat that likes to eat. Is—Is Philip still at the hotel?"

"Oh, yes, he approves everything your father does."

Judy did not say goodbye. She hung up so quietly even the young officer outside the door didn't know she had finished.

She asked to be escorted to her cell then.

She was aware that Sandy tried to reach her again, but she turned away and held her white, rouged face high. In her cell a new blue calico waited for her. There were white stripes on it. Plainly it stood for something like "Women's Department."

"Been told that you'll be more likely to get cold in that lace stuff," the matron said. "I'll save the white dress until you want it. How soon will you be checking out?"

"I don't know," Judy answered.

FORCES TO MOVE WITHOUT LIGHTS

Acting Police Chief Warns Motorists To Stay Off Highways At Night

Acting Chief B. L. Brantley yesterday urged civilian motorists in the Twin Cities and the surrounding area to stay off the highways at night as mechanized units in Ouachita parish will move without lights after dark.

The movement of mechanized units taking part in the maneuvers will begin tonight, and Chief Brantley requests civilians to remain off the highways after dark until approximately the end of September when the war games in this area will terminate.

Asserting that army vehicles will move "under cover of darkness," the police chief declared that those who do not heed the warning to keep off the roads at night are risking their lives by possible collisions with the "blackout" trucks and other army vehicles.

Mechanized forces in Union and Franklin parishes have already swept down toward the maneuver area west of Alexandria and south of Shreveport, and roads in the northeast Louisiana area to the north, east, and southeast of Monroe and West Monroe will be clear to civilian traffic only in the daytime. George D. Holland, Chamber of Commerce secretary, said after conferring with army officials here.

The chamber secretary said that also during the daytime highways due west and the immediate southwestern and southern areas would be clear, but he believed that army traffic would be encountered on highways in the extreme southwestern area.

BODY RECOVERED
WITH THE 34TH DIVISION NEAR OAKDALE, La., Sept. 13.—(AP)—The body of Private Dwain Heck, 21, of Newton, Iowa, was recovered from a stream near here today. He had been missing since a late afternoon swimming party Wednesday. Army physicians said he had drowned. The body will be returned to Newton for burial.

She was afraid, more afraid than she wanted to reveal, so she laughed.

She asked for a telephone blank and sent two telegrams, collect, 200 words each. One went to her father. The other went to Phil.

Now surely answers would come. Perhaps her family had not understood. Maybe Philip thought she had gone sky-riding for the daring of it. Now Sandy would have understood—Sandy! If it hadn't been for his crazy, barnstorming theft of her, she would be married to Phil and wearing a diamond ring.

Suddenly she looked at the two-karat diamond engagement ring she wore. It was nice. If Phil wanted it she would put it in a black velvet box and send it back, though.

Half an hour passed. Then another. On and on. Regularly either an attendant or the matron came to Judy's cell to plead for an admittance for Sandy. He wrote notes which she returned unopened. Finally, at 4 o'clock she received a telegram.

She opened it with trembling fingers, and turned to the signature. (To Be Continued)

SEPTEMBER SCHOOL ALLOTMENT IS GIVEN

Superintendent of Education John E. Coxey said yesterday that the September allotment of state funds to parish school boards amounted to $1,224,769, according to the Associated Press.

Regular funds distributed according to the number of educables in the parish accounted for $918,425, or $1.36 per educable, while equalization payments to parishes with smaller local resources totaled $306,343.

Distribution in northeast Louisiana of the two payments by parishes with the amount of the per educable payment listed first, and the equalization payment second, follows:

Caldwell, $5,226.48; $3,948.37. Calatouba, $5,824.88; $6,634.48. Claiborne, $12,317.12; $4,612.08. Concordia, $5,267.28; $1,070.53. East Carroll, $6,778.24; $298.20. Franklin, $14,180.72; $9,338.20. Grant, $6,825.84; $10,514.55. Jackson, $7,773.76; $6,383.55. LaSalle, $4,426.80; $8,104.48. Lincoln, $10,720.89; $8,356.60.

Madison, $6,746.96; no equalization. Morehouse, $10,874.56; $1,065.90. Ouachita, $20,760.40; $2,201.63. Richland, $11,802.08; $8,641.99. Tensas, $6,113.20; $915.47. Union, $9,341.84; $4,755.03. West Carroll, $8,351.76; $8,475.29. Winn, $7,190.90; $7,756.95. City of Monroe, no per educable; $3,743.10.

DR. C. KARLOS SMITH BACK FROM SHREVEPORT

Dr. C. Karlos Smith, pastor of the First Methodist Church in West Monroe, returned Saturday from Shreveport, where he conducted a two-week revival service at the Park Avenue Methodist Church.

He announced that he will occupy his pulpit here both morning and night today.

The revival just completed proved highly satisfactory, he said.

WANT SNAKE BOOKS
WINNFIELD, La., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Second army soldiers on maneuvers here "are serious readers, not just browsers," and they do ask the strangest questions," says Miss Marian Taylor, Winnfield librarian. Their most frequent requests? Books on how to identify snakes, says Miss Taylor.

The Dutch East Indies' air force patrols the water around the principal islands as far as 400 miles out at sea.

Gift Shop Here Best Equipped, Most Elaborate In This Area

"The Gift Shop" in the Monroe Furniture company's store that was opened the past week by its owner, Mrs. Satchie Cooper, is one of the best equipped and most elaborate shops of its kind in this section of the state.

In announcing its opening, several thousand letters were sent through the mails to the women of north Louisiana, and all were invited to make an inspection. All others who may have been missed in making up the list of those invited are urged to call and inspect it.

Mrs. Cooper has had a number of years of experience in this line and always since girlhood she has been naturally inclined to collect antiques and period articles.

She will specialize in silver of all kinds, and old English silver, fine china and glassware, although the glassware has not yet been installed. Lamps of every conceivable design and size, paintings, bric-a-brac and hundreds of other articles add to the attractiveness of the place which is

Iberville, Iberia and East Baton Rouge parishes at contracts totalling $79,489.25. Of the six contracts let, Holway Gravel company, Inc., secured three, for 13,375 cubic yards of gravel, for $37,148.95, and the C. M. F. company, Inc., Baton Rouge, was successful bidder on the other three, for 17,030 cubic yards, for $42,240.30.

If You Get Up Nights You Can't Feel Right

If you have to get up 3 or more times a night your rest is broken and it's no wonder if you feel old and run down before your time. Functional rather than organic or systemic kidney and bladder trouble often may be the cause of many pains and symptoms simply because the kidneys may be tired and not working fast enough in filtering and removing irritating wastes, acids, poisons and wastes from your blood. So if you get up nights or suffer from burning, scanty or frequent passages, leg pains, backache, or swollen ankles, due to non-organic or non-systemic kidney and bladder troubles, you'll make no mistake in trying the prescription called Cystex. Because it has given such joyous, happy relief to so high a percentage of such cases, Cystex is sold under a guarantee of money back on return of empty package unless completely satisfactory to you. Cystex costs only 35c at drug-gists and the guarantee protects you.

The MONROE FURNITURE CO.

announces a new sales policy in line with government regulations and in line with this organization's policy of furniture leadership in North Louisiana

Effective Monday, Sept. 15th

ALL MERCHANDISE IN OUR STORE WILL BE MARKED WITH THE CASH SELLING PRICE

to this will be added a carrying charge of 1/2 of 1% per month on the original unpaid balance for TIME payment accounts

Tomorrow, the Monroe Furniture Co. begins a new sales policy—one which we feel sure will be heartily welcomed by the people of North Louisiana. This policy is one which is now in effect in most of the larger cities and most of the larger furniture stores throughout the United States. This change is a decided benefit to the buying public for you are now able to purchase your furniture on the low cash prices and then pay only a very small carrying charge for the service required in handling your account on an installment basis. You now only need pay for the actual time consumed in paying out your account. # AIRPORTS LOOK LIKE FARM LAND

LAKE CHARLES, La., Sept. 13.—(P)—For years American engineers have been making airports out of swamps, farm land and places where only tulles were before. Today engineers, now in the nation's new army, are busy making airports appear to be just like those everyday scenes.

These men make vast stretches of glaring, yellow, newly-filled ground and smooth concrete runways that stand out to the aerial observer like a sailboat in a duck pond into havens for combat planes. Such a job takes a lot of doing but these experts—aviation engineers—make a smooth airport look like a soybean field, and a runway just the continuation of a winding country road through a placid countryside.

Four-hundred-mile-an-hour fighter planes have to have good wheelroom, and a lot of it to get off the ground during wartime to repel invaders. In the simulated warfare between the Second and Third armies, beginning next week, even the airports are to be camouflaged as much as possible. The planes are to be dispersed and protected as though the ships of the opposing side were dropping real bombs instead of flour-filled sacks.

To show the magic these new engineers can perform, they have painted the end of a concrete runway a full black, thrown sawdust on asphalt out over newly dug earth, and from 10,000 feet in the air it appears to be a fertile field, waiting to be sown. They make wires stretched between stakes, and garnished with green strips of cloth look like a cultivated field, and paint what appear to be tulles on a runway that will accommodate a 23-passenger ship.

They also build pens for the fighting ships. Wire netting with green streamers hanging from it shield the wing from enemy eyes and double log walls, filled in with dirt or cordwood, protect each plane from concussion of bombs. Construction is too time-consuming and materials too scarce at a fighter airport just behind the lines to attempt the work necessary to protect a plane from a direct hit.

In addition to this camouflage, and construction an advanced fighter airport must have bombproof and gas-proof shelters for plane crews—eight men to a plane—and barbed wire entanglements for ground troops to fight off parachute troops or advancing infantrymen.

Pioneers in this high art are the men of company F, 21st engineers (aviation) from Langley Field, Va., at work on Eiler Field, near Camp Beauregard, La. Captain Henry A. Byroade is commander. It is the first such company to be organized. Eventually there is to be at least one such organization for each of the four field armies.

HOPE TO CAPITALIZE ON GASOLINE WELL

TAYLOR, Miss., Sept. 13.—(P)—Puzzled citizens of this tiny North Mississippi community hope to capitalize on the century-old town well here which mysteriously keeps pouring out gasoline-saturated water.

The well has been acting up for nearly eight weeks now and the puzzle still hasn't been solved. Taylor folk have merely to run the water through an ordinary cream separator and out comes a brand of motor fuel.

Today, Town Marshal Travis Hurdle got busy. Buckeful after buckeful was drawn from the well, the fuel separated and stored away. The board of aldermen figures to use it in town trucks to haul paving material into Taylor.

When the gasoline content was first discovered, town officials thought it a prank and had the well cleaned out. But the gas kept coming. The well's owner, Lock and Key now.

Professor R. R. Priddy of the Mississippi geological survey investigated and theorized that the gasoline came from a nearby filling station. The prospector checked hastily—but found no leak.

Of the identified French prisoners held by the Germans, there are 40,000 by the name of Martin, 3,500 called Jean Martin—1,400 of them born the same year.

PUERTO RICAN AT TECH EARLY

Alberto F. Umperre of Comerio, Puerto Rico, who did not know that Louisiana Tech's fall opening had been delayed until October 2 because of army maneuvers, arrived in Ruston three weeks early. The Puerto Rican, planning to be a freshman agriculture student at Tech, is pictured above wearing a native hat (pava) and holding two malacas, which look a little like gourds and sound a lot like they have buckshot in them. Umperre temporarily has been taken under the wings of two of the dean's men, Jesse Stodghill (left), Ruston, and Dan Otts (right), Bernice, who are arranging furniture in dormitories.

CHAPTER XXI

Judy walked to the stand, limping a little because one foot had a high-heeled slipper and the other foot hit bottom with every step.

"Miss Allen?" the voice of the law asked, carefully noting the disheveled copper curls, the shadows under the purple eyes.

"Yes, Your Honor."

"Are you willing to state that the stories and photographs of you in these morning papers are, without doubt, yourself?"

The lost dimples played around Judy's mouth for a second.

"I didn't come down any too gracefully, did I?" she asked. "In this pose even my skirts are ballooning."

She heard laughter. The judge rapped for silence.

Judy looked up in surprise. "I'm sorry. You see, my father is a common pleas judge, too, so I forgot to be scared." She gave the judge on a bench a dazzling smile. "Yes, I'm in the pictures. I haven't read the articles."

"Will you please tell the court what happened?" The judge leaned back and relaxed. Several times he covered his amusement with a long hand which he passed over his face.

At the end he set Judy's bond at $1,000. She did not flinch. "I cannot meet the amount," she stated as calmly as the associate editor of Under Twenty should state her facts. "If I may get in touch with my father or my fiancé I shall be able to meet the bond you are setting, and obtain a lawyer instantly."

She was led away at once. Sandy followed but she swung a heavy door closed before he reached it.

"Where are the telephones?" she asked the attendant who was guiding her. She wondered what people did when they were in jail and didn't have a nickel with which to summon the operator for a call.

The officer who was conducting her on her various missions was genial and sympathetic. Judy smiled again. "Officer, will you lend me a nickel until I summon an operator? Or better still, will you call the operator for me?"

The man grinned sheepishly, found a dime in his pocketbook, and gave it to Judy. She dialed, heard the click which returned the coin and reached from the booth to give the officer the money.

"It's a station to station call, collect," she told the operator. "It's terribly important."

"That number does not answer," the smooth, metallic voice of the operator reported in a moment. "Would you like to try another number?"

Judy gave her father's office number at the court. The call was accepted by Judge Allen's secretary who said: "Judy? Your father is in court. He expected to hear from you so he left a message. I'll read it." She opened a crisp paper whose rustling carried across the wires.

"Have no connection with Judy's escapade. Grant no advice. Judgment and taste inexorably bad. Refuse any responsibility for bail. Time she learned a lesson."

The world was small and close and tight. The world was no bigger than this telephone booth. That faint voice that tried to speak was not hers. Just the same, it said, "I can make him understand. I was kidnapped! It wasn't a stunt. Can't you make him see?"

"Your father is furious. Sorry, Judy, but I'm not much help. I'll get in all the words I can. He wouldn't take any calls at all from you last night."

"Calls—from me?" Judy's voice whispered. "I didn't call. I've been locked up with a rat that likes to eat. Is—Philip still at the hotel?"

"Oh, yes, he approves everything your father does."

Judy did not say goodbye. She hung up so quietly even the young officer outside the door didn't know she had finished.

She asked to be escorted to her cell then.

She was aware that Sandy tried to reach her again, but she turned away and held her white, rouged face high. In her cell a new blue calico waited for her. There were white stripes on it. Plainly it stood for something like "Women's Department."

"Been told that you'll be more likely to get cold in that lace stuff," the matron said. "I'll save the white dress until you want it. How soon will you be checking out?"

"I don't know," Judy answered.

"Maybe not ever—because nobody will loan me the money for bond, let alone for my fine and costs."

"When do you appear before the municipal court?"

From some weary compartment of her mind where she had stored other half-heard suggestions, Judy summoned the answer. "Day after tomorrow."

"Then what will happen?"

"I'll probably go to the state reformatory for women and learn to make hooked rugs."

She was afraid, more afraid than she wanted to reveal, so she laughed.

She asked for a telephone blank and sent two telegrams, collect, 200 words each. One went to her father. The other went to Phil.

Now surely answers would come. Perhaps her family had not understood. Maybe Philip thought she had gone sky-riding for the daring of it. Now Sandy would have understood—Sandy! If it hadn't been for his crazy, barnstorming theft of her, she would be married to Phil and wearing a diamond circlet.

Suddenly she looked at the two-karat diamond engagement ring she wore. It was nice. If Phil wanted it she would put it in a black velvet box and send it back, though.

Half an hour passed. Then another. On and on. Regularly either an attendant or the matron came to Judy's cell to plead for an admittance for Sandy. He wrote notes which she returned unopened. Finally, at 4 o'clock she received a telegram.

She opened it, with trembling fingers, and turned to the signature.

FORCES TO MOVE WITHOUT LIGHTS

Acting Police Chief Warns Motorists To Stay Off Highways At Night

Acting Chief B. L. Brantley yesterday urged civilian motorists in the Twin Cities and the surrounding area to stay off the highways at night as mechanized units in Ouachita parish will move without lights after dark.

The movement of mechanized units taking part in the maneuvers will begin tonight, and Chief Brantley requests civilians to remain off the highways after dark until approximately the end of September when the war games in this area will terminate.

Asserting that army vehicles will move "under cover of darkness," the police chief declared that those who do not heed the warning to keep off the roads at night are risking their lives by possible collisions with the "blacked out" trucks and other army vehicles.

Mechanized forces in Union and Franklin parishes have already swept down toward the maneuver area west of Alexandria and south of Shreveport, and roads in the northeast Louisiana area to the north, east, and southeast of Monroe and West Monroe will be clear to civilian traffic only in the daytime. George D. Holland, Chamber of Commerce secretary, said after conferring with army officials here.

The chamber secretary said that also during the daytime highways due west and the immediate southwestern and southern areas would be clear, but he believed that army traffic would be encountered on highways in the extreme southwestern area.

BODY RECOVERED

WITH THE 34TH DIVISION NEAR OAKDALE, La., Sept. 13.—(P)—The body of Private Dwan Heck, 21, of Newton, Iowa, was recovered from a stream near here today. He had been missing since a late afternoon swimming party Wednesday. Army physicians said he had drowned. The body will be returned to Newton for burial.

Gift Shop Here Best Equipped, Most Elaborate In This Area

"The Gift Shop" in the Monroe Furniture company's store that was opened the past week by its owner, Mrs. Satchie Cooper, is one of the best equipped and most elaborate shops of its kind in this section of the state.

In announcing its opening, several thousand letters were sent through the mails to the women of north Louisiana, and all were invited to make an inspection. All others who may have been missed in making up the list of those invited are urged to call and inspect it.

Mrs. Cooper has had a number of years of experience in this line and always since girlhood she has been naturally inclined to collect antiques and period articles.

She will specialize in silver of all kinds, and old English silver, fine china and glassware, although the glassware has not yet been installed. Lamps of every conceivable design and size, paintings, bric-a-brac and hundreds of other articles add to the attractiveness of the place which is on the ground floor of the furniture store and easily accessible to the public.

A feature that is of interest is Franciscan pottery.

She has on display an attractive little dinner table with a tablecloth that she herself fashioned and which bears the design of "Desert Roses."

Mrs. Cooper stated that she desires most of all to be able to present gifts of unusual attractiveness and at prices that the buying public can afford to pay. Of course there are articles that range high in price but for the most part she endeavors to make prices such that the average person can afford to make purchases of dependable and unusually artistic articles.

GRAVEL CONTRACTS LET

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 13.—(P)—Director W. Prescott Foster said today the state highways department this week let six contracts for 30,405 cubic yards of washed gravel to be delivered for road work in Ascension, Iberville, Iberia and East Baton Rouge parishes at contracts totalling $79,489.25. Of the six contracts let, Holloway Gravel company, Inc., secured three, for 13,375 cubic yards of gravel, for $37,148.95, and the C. M. F. company, Inc., Baton Rouge, was successful bidder on the other three, for 17,030 cubic yards, for $42,240.30.

If You Get Up Nights You Can't Feel Right

If you have to get up 3 or more times a night your rest is broken and it's no wonder if you feel old and run down before your time. Functional rather than organic or systemic Kidney and Bladder trouble often may be the cause of many pains and symptoms simply because the kidneys may be tired and not working fast enough in filtering and removing irritating excess acids. So if you get up nights or suffer from burning, scanty or frequent passages, leg pains, backache, or swollen ankles, due to non-organic or non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles, you'll make no mistake in trying the prescription called Cystex. Because it has given such joyous, happy relief in so high a percentage of such cases, Cystex is sold under a guarantee of money back on return of empty package unless completely satisfactory to you. Cystex costs only 35¢ at drug-gists and the guarantee protects you.

HOT SPRINGS NIPS BILLS IN SERIES OPENER

VICKSBURG CLUB OUTHITS BATERS BUT LOSE, 7 TO 6

Arkansans Score Three Runs In Last Half Of Ninth To Take Tilt

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Sept. 13.—(Special)—Scoring three runs in the last half of the ninth inning, the Hot Springs Batters nipped Vicksburg's Hill Billies, 7 to 6, in the first game of the playoff for the Cotton States league championship.

Going into the ninth, it appeared that the Billies, who piled up 15 hits to nine for the Batters, would walk off with the opening battle. However, the Arkansans rallied and pushed over the winning run with two out in the ninth frame.

It was a nip-and-tuck battle all the way. Hot Springs scored two runs in the first inning, but Vicksburg countered with one in the second. Then the Batters tallied twice in the fifth, but the Mississippians came back with one in the sixth.

From then until the ninth, it was all Vicksburg, as far as run scoring was concerned. The Billies got one in the seventh, added two more in the eighth and went ahead with one in the ninth.

Jimmy Keith, Monroe second sacker, who was loaned to the Billies for the series after Pat Henry was injured, got two hits in three times at bat and scored one run.

Briefly, the Batters manufactured their three runs in the ninth inning on two singles, a double, a walk and an error.

Charlie Pescod, who went the route for Hot Springs, struck out 15 Billies. Elmer Wenning, another southpaw, allowed the Batters only seven hits and struck out six. Clements, who finished for Vicksburg, gave up two hits.

A crowd of 1,334 saw the game, which was featured by four home runs. Marion hit a circuit clout for the Batters, and Lee, Zimmerman and Weiland hit for four bases for the Billies.

Crippled Tech 11 To Play L. S. U. Bengals Saturday

Ruston Gridders To Concentrate On Defense, Blocking This Week

RUSTON, Sept. 13.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech's varsity football squad, hard hit with a crippled backfield, will concentrate on defensive blocking and pass defense the coming week in polishing up for their opener with Louisiana State university in Baton Rouge Saturday night, according to Head Coach Joe Aillet.

Three Tech freshmen, all products of the Haynesville high school, are being worked in varsity harness "in case we have to use them," Coach Aillet said. They are Joe Crump, fullback; Gerald Peace, center, and Raymond Peace, left halfback.

"We will try to avoid using the freshmen," Coach Aillet emphasized, "but will have them on the bench for emergency. For instance, we have two sophomore centers, Jim Allen of Camden, Ark., and Hays Fleming of Ferriday, and if they get hurt we will have to send in Gerald Peace."

At present, there is only one able-bodied fullback on the varsity squad, namely, Eugene Fleming, a sophomore of Ferriday. Fred Michael of Homer, senior fullback, is out of the running temporarily, with a pulled muscle and a toe injury. The only other fullback on the roster, Johnny Ballance of Arcadia, has been shifted to left halfback in an attempt to bolster that position, which has suffered from casualties.

Milton (Monk) Clavier of New Orleans, sophomore half, who caused the coaches some concern when it seemed he would be called into the army, now has developed a knee injury that may keep him out of playing all season, Coach Aillet indicated.

Johnny Peritt of Tyler, Tex., junior left halfback, has not been able to drill since the second day of practice because of a back injury.

James Tinsley, Haynesville, senior left half, is nursing a cracked rib. While the fullback and left halfback roles keep Coach Aillet guessing, Cecil Crowley apparently is having better luck with his linemen. Ed Roberts, Fort Gaines, Ga., and Dalton Clark, Andalusia, Ala., took time out for physical checkups, but for the most part the forward wall is intact.

Jim Allen has proved himself a starting wingman, but there are at least three others who are improving rapidly as end material, such as Bob Rife, Leonard Olsen and Joe Tom Mabry.

L. T. I.'S PELICANS TO MEET MANGHAM
 Coach Youngblood Has Light Squad This Year

Louisiana Training Institute's Pelicans will open their 1944 grid season in Mangham Friday against the Mangham High school Dragons, Coach Kermit Youngblood announced yesterday.

The Pelican mentor has been working a squad of about 25 boys since about August 15. The team is unusually light and only three boys are back from last year's club. They are Carl Basco, mentioned for all-state halfback in Class B last fall; Lawrence Ridgeway, 175-pound end; and Salvatore Loppiccola, star guard of last year's eleven.

Coach Youngblood has just rounded out this year at L. T. I., and his teams in high school football, basketball, and recreation baseball and softball made a record of 52 victories against 44 defeats against outside competition.

The L. T. I. coach said the Pels were undertaking the hardest football schedule in the history of the school, with seven Class B and two Class A opponents.

The schedule:
 September 19 at Mangham; September 26, Lisbon here; October 3, Winnboro here; October 10 at Dubach; October 17, Olla here; October 24 open; October 31, Columbia here; November 7 at Clark; November 14 at Ferriday; November 19 at Oak Grove.

TEXAS LEAGUE

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 13.—(P)—The Dallas Rebels defeated the Houston Buffs, 4 to 1, tonight, with one bracket of the Shaughnessy playoffs and the right to meet the Tulsa Oilers in the final playoff for the Texas League championship.

Thus the barreling Rebels, who finished fourth in the standings through the season's scheduled games, humbled the mighty Buffaloes who held the league lead from the first day until the play-offs began.

The Oilers took three in a row from the Buffs at Houston, relinquished the third game here last night only after a 12-inning struggle, and won the clincher tonight.

The Oilers took three in a row from the Shreveport Sports to win their playoff bracket.

The Rebels left immediately after the game by train for Tulsa, where the best four-of-seven final will start tomorrow night. The second game will be played at Tulsa Tuesday night, barring postponements, then the clubs will open at Dallas Tuesday night for three games. If a fifth or sixth game is necessary the teams return to Tulsa.

Gordon Maltzberger is scheduled to pitch the opener for Dallas and Henry Wyse for Tulsa. Both are right-handers.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 13.—(P)—The sturdy gridmen trying to plug Louisiana State's critical guard and tackle spots for the Bengal fall football campaign showed up particularly well today in a hard two-hour scrimmage.

Among linemen displaying talent at these positions were Al Caviga, tough junior guard converted from an end, and Francis Zick, former reserve player showing his stuff as a tackle.

Even though the pace Coach Bernie Moore has set for the Tigers the past fortnight far exceeds practice speed usual hereabouts, only a very few players were out with sore muscles and the squad appeared in tiptop trim.

MISSISSIPPI STATE

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., Sept. 13.—(P)—Tailback Sonny Bruce looked to have regained the form that made him a star in 1939 as the Mississippi State Maroons held a long scrimmage today. Fullback Charley Yancey also pleased Coach Allyn McKee with an 80-yard run. The team was ragged but progressing nicely, said McKee.

OLE MISS

UNIVERSITY, Miss., Sept. 13.—(P)—Junie Hovious and the first team turned in a polished performance today in Ole Miss' first scrimmage under game conditions, but the second and third units showed the need of considerable work before the Mississippi opens with Georgetown.

Hovious scored on a 35-yard run, passed for a second score and set up the third made by the first stringers. Junior Backs Ray Terrell and Ray Castle looked impressive.

FLORIDA

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Sept. 13.—(P)—Twenty-six-year-old Mangrum, youngest member of the Monterey Beach, Calif., golfing family, loomed as the man to beat today as the second round of the $5,000 Greater Atlantic City golf tournament ended.

After a dazzling 65 which put him in the lead yesterday, he followed through with a 69, three under par, today to retain the lead with a 134 total.

Most of the field found conditions tougher today. Ten pros bettered 70 in the first round, but only six cracked the mark today. Lawson Little, former American and British Open champion from San Francisco, moved into a second place deadlock with Jack Petroni, an outsider from Manchester, Vt., each with 138.

There was a five-way tie for next position among Terl Ghezel of Morristown, Pa.; Vic Ghezzi, P. G. A. champion, from Del. N. J.; Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa.; Joe Turnesa of Rockville Center, N. Y.; and Horton Smith, of Pinehurst, N. C. All had 139's.

Whirly's Tremendous Final Drive Fails

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Sept. 13.—(P)—The big bell rang again tonight on Sam Riddle's Kentucky farm for another season of Man o' War today, and War Relic did it the hard way by beating the great Whirlaway in the $25,000 Narragansett Special.

The tremendous final drive that has made Whirly both whacky and famous failed as the three-year-old War Relic won going away to sweep under the wire four and a half lengths out front to stun the crowd of 50,000, which had made Warren Wright's champion the odds-on favorite.

War Relic's victory, which was worth $22,400 to his owner, evened an old score for he was nosed out by Whirlaway in a much-disputed race a month ago at Saratoga in their only other meeting.

Only four horses were in today's race and it was pretty much a dual affair that bordered on developing into a solo performance.

QUACHITA VALLEY

Schedule for the Quachita Valley league championship playoffs was announced yesterday by P. G. Grambling, Jr., Ruston, secretary of the bi-state loop.

Hodge, with 27 victories and only seven defeats, took off top honors of the regular season and will play host to the Brown Paper mill Brownies of Monroe, who finished in fourth place, Sunday afternoon in the semi-final opener between the two teams.

Crossett, Ark., the third spot nominee, will invade Springhill to play the runner-up Sports of that town Sunday afternoon.

The schedule for the second of the two-out-of-three game series calls for Hodge at Monroe and Springhill at Crossett the following Thursday. The third games, if necessary, will be played at Hodge and Springhill Sunday, September 21.

With the flip of a coin deciding where the first game will be played, the finals will begin Thursday, September 25. The site of the third contest, if necessary, will also be decided by a coin toss.

The final league standings were released by Grambling as follows:

Merv Connors Of Texarkana Leads League With 29 Home Runs

Roy Bueschen is the proud possessor of the Cotton States league batting crown. The Greenville outfielder pounded the ball at a .370 pace and, according to unofficial averages released today by the Howe News bureau of Chicago, finished five points ahead of the runner-up, Roy Marion, of Hot Springs, who hit .365. Third place went to Guy Pruitt of Monroe, with .363, and Mike Powers of Hot Springs took fourth with .356.

Merv Connors, Texarkana first baseman, led in home runs with 29. Ray Zimmerman of Vicksburg and Jimmy Lucas of Helena were first in triples with 16 each, and Powers took two-base honors with 47. Powers also drove in the most runs, 137, while William Kramer of Greenville was next with 136; Bueschen compiled the loftiest total-base total, 330; Marion

VICKSBURG CLUB OUTHITS BATHERS BUT LOSE, 7 TO 6

Arkansans Score Three Runs In Last Half Of Ninth To Take Tilt

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Sept. 13.—(Special)—Scoring three runs in the last half of the ninth inning, the Hot Springs Batters nipped out Vicksburg's Hill Billies, 7 to 6, in the first game of the playoff for the Cotton States league championship.

Going into the ninth, it appeared that the Bills, who piled up 15 hits to nine for the Bathers, would walk off with the opening battle. However, the Arkansans rallied and pushed over the winning run with two out in the ninth frame.

It was a nip-and-tuck battle all the way. Hot Springs scored two runs in the first inning but Vicksburg countered with one in the second. Then the Batters tallied twice in the fifth, but the Mississippians came back with one in the sixth.

From then until the ninth, it was all Vicksburg, as far as run scoring was concerned. The Billies got one in the seventh, added two more in the eighth and went ahead with one in the ninth.

Jimmy Keith, Monroe second sacker, who was loaned to the Billies for the series after Pat Henry was injured, got two hits in three times at bat and scored one run.

Briefly, the Bathers manufactured their three runs in the ninth inning on two singles, a double, a walk and an error.

Charlie Pescod, who went the route for Hot Springs, struck out 15 Billies. Elmer Wenning, another southpaw, allowed the Bathers only seven hits and struck out six. Clements, who finished for Vicksburg, gave up two hits.

A crowd of 1,324 saw the game, which was featured by four home runs. Marion hit a circuit clout for the Bathers, and Lee, Zimmerman and Weiland hit for four bases for the Billies.

Crippled Tech 11 To Play L. S. U. Bengals Saturday

Ruston Gridders To Concentrate On Defense, Blocking This Week

RUSTON, Sept. 13.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech's varsity football squad, handicapped with a crippled backfield, will concentrate on downfield blocking and pass defense the coming week in polishing up for their opener with Louisiana State university in Baton Rouge Saturday night, according to Head Coach Joe Aillet.

Three Tech freshmen, all products of the Haynesville high school, are being worked in varsity harness "in case we have to use them," Coach Aillet said. They are Joe Crump, fullback; Gerald Peace, center; and Raymond Peace, left halfback.

"We will try to avoid using the freshmen," Coach Aillet emphasized, "but will have them on the bench for emergency. For instance, we have two sophomore centers, Jim Allen of Camden, Ark., and Hays Fleming of Ferriday, and if they get hurt we will have to send in Gerald Peace."

Milton (Monk) Clavier of New Orleans, sophomore half, who caused the coaches some concern when it seemed he would be called into the army, now has developed a knee injury that may keep him out of playing all season, Coach Aillet indicated.

Johnny Perrett of Tyler, Tex., junior left halfback, has not been able to drill since the second day of practice because of a back injury.

James Tinsley, Haynesville, senior left half, is nursing a cracked rib. While the fullback and left halfback roles keep Coach Aillet guessing, Cecil Crowley, apparently is having better luck with his linemen. Ed Roberts, Port Gables, Ga., and Dalton Clark, Andalusia, Ala., took time out for physical checkups, but for the most part the forward wall is intact.

"Jim Allen has proved himself to be a capable center," Coach Crowley stated, "and Hays Fleming is giving him a close race. George Doherty is doing nicely at tackle, along with Landon Conway, both of whom are sophomores. John (Sleepy) Laughlin and Tag Yarbrough, senior and junior ends, respectively, have the edge for starting wingmen, but there are at least three others who are improving rapidly as end material, such as Bob Rife, Leonard Olsen and Joe Tom Mabry."

Hovious scored on a 55-yard run, passed for a second score and set up the third made by the first stringers. Junior Backs Ray Terrell and Ray Castle looked impressive.

FLORIDA

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Sept. 13.—(P)—Florida's high-spirited Gators gave a flash of potential offensive power today as they staged an entertaining five-touchdown scrimmage to bring two weeks of football practice to a close.

Despite soft turf, backs tuned up for early game competition with some neat running. Three quick touchdowns and a couple of drives netted points in the intrasquad tilt, and proved to Coach Tom Lieb that his boys would be ready for the opening game.

TULANE

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 13.—(P)—Tulane's first and second teams looked good on aerial offense today in a long passing session, with Bob Gaskins for the first stringers and Lou Thomas passing for the B team. Charlie DuHarley McCallum at right tackle for the varsity, but little since Mac is suffering from injuries.

TENNESSEE

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 13.—(P)—Their opening game against Furman only a week away, Tennessee's Volunteers today engaged in another speed scrimmage with Tailbacks Jimmy Butler and Bobby Cifer looking good in the passing department. Professing there was nothing in the workout to make him happy, Coach John Barnhill admitted the squad showed "some improvement."

ALABAMA

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Sept. 13.—(P)—Alabama's varsity footballers looked ragged and slow this afternoon in their first full-dress scrimmage of the training season. Four different varsity elevens ran against rugged green-shirted freshmen teams and had great difficulty in advancing the ball.

The Tide first stringers finally scored two touchdowns by the battering route. Passes clicked for several good gains when second and third teams were in the fray. Carl Mims, right halfback, ran 60 yards for the longest gain of the day.

TENNESSEE

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 13.—(P)—A contract for a series of three football games between the Universities of Tennessee and South Carolina, were announced today by John Barnhill, Vol athletic director.

Barnhill said the Vols would go to Columbia for the 1942 engagement and that the Gamecocks would play at Knoxville in 1943 and 1944. The games will open the seasons for both teams.

VANDERBILT
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 13.—(P)—Vanderbilt's gridiron prospects went through a long scrimmage with the freshmen today, and their performance was anything but pleasing to Coach Red Sanders.

Sanders was emphatic in his criticism of the work-out. "The blocking was particularly poor, there was very little protection for the passer, and the boys continually messed up their assignments," the Vandy mentor doled out.

"We've a lot of work to do before we meet Purdue," he said.

Bright spot of the drill was the improved end play of Harry Richter, who strengthened his bid for a starting berth, and a good performance by Sophomore Tailback Red Burns.

Third place went to Guy Pruitt of Monroe, with .363, and Mike Powers of Hot Springs took fourth with .356.

Merv Connors, Texarkana first baseman, led in home runs with 29. Ray Zimmerman of Vicksburg and Jimmy Lucas of Helena were first in triples with 16 each, and Powers took two-base honors with 47. Powers also drove in the most runs, 137, while William Kramer of Greenville was next with 136; Bueschen compiled the loftiest total-base total, 330; Marion

MANGRUM LOOMS AS MAN TO BEAT

Takes Lead In Second Round Of Greater Atlantic City Open Golf

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 13.—(P)—Twenty-six-year old Lloyd Mangrum, youngest member of the Monterey Beach, Calif., golfing family, loomed as the man to beat today as the second round of the $5,000 Greater Atlantic City golf tournament ended.

After a dazzling 65 which put him in the lead yesterday, he followed through with a 69, three under par, today to retain the lead with a 134 total.

Most of the field found conditions tougher today. Ten pros bettered 70 in the first round, but only six cracked the mark today. Layson Little, former American and British open champion from San Francisco, moved into a second place deadlock with Jack Petroni, an outsider from Manchester, Vt., each with 138.

There was a five-way tie for next position among Terl Johnson of Morristown, Pa.; Vic Ghezzi, P. G. A. champion, from Deal, N. J.; Ben Hogan, of Hershey, Pa.; Joe Turnesa, of Rockville Center, N. Y.; and Horton Smith, of Pinehurst, N. C. All had 139's.

MAN O' WAR'S SON DEFEATS WHIRLAWAY

Whirly's Tremendous Final Drive Fails

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Sept. 13.—(P)—The big bell rang again tonight on Sam Riddle's Kentucky farm for another son of Man O' War today—and War Relic did it the hard way by beating the great Whirlaway in the $25,000 Narragansett Special.

The tremendous final drive that has made Whirly both whacky and famous failed as the three-year-old War Relic won going away to sweep under the wire four and a half lengths in front to turn the crowd of 50,000, which had made Whirly's champion the odds-on favorite.

War Relic's victory, which was worth $22,400 to his owner, evened an old score for he was nosed out by Whirlaway in a much-disputed race a month ago at Saratoga in their only other meeting.

Only four horses were in today's race and it was pretty much a dual affair that bordered on developing into a solo performance.

OUACHITA VALLEY

Schedule for the Ouachita Valley league championship playoffs was announced yesterday by P. G. Grambling, Jr., Ruston, secretary of the bi-state loop.

Hodge, with 27 victories and only seven defeats, took off top honors of the regular season and will play host to the Brown Paper mill Brownies of Monroe, who finished in fourth place, Sunday afternoon in the semi-final opener between the two teams.

Crossett, Ark., the third spot nominee, will invade Springhill to play the runner-up Sports of that town Sunday afternoon.

The schedule for the second of the two-out-of-three game series calls for Hodge at Monroe and Springhill at Crossett the following Thursday. The third games, if necessary, will be played at Hodge and Springhill Sunday, September 21.

With the flip of a coin deciding where the first game will be played, the finals will begin Thursday, September 25. The site of the third contest, if necessary, will also be decided by a coin toss.

The final league standings were released by Grambling as follows:

Team Won Lost Pct.
Hodge.....27 7 .794
Springhill.....22 13 .629
Crossett.....22 16 .579

SPARKPLUG

Certain to be in the starting lineup when the Northeast Junior college Indians take the field against Copiah-Lincoln Junior college Friday night at Brown stadium, is Emmett Cunningham, veteran Tribe tackle, and last year's most valuable player. The game will open the football season for the junior college eleven.

N. J. C. Indians Will Open Season Here Friday Night

This Year's Club Youngest, Fightingest, Hustlin'est In History

Here's the lowdown straight from the one man who really ought to know—Coach Jim Malone of Northeast Junior college:

"This year's Indians are the youngest, fightingest, hustlin'est club we've ever had. We're going to lose some football games—and we're going to win some, too."

And that isn't all. Coach Malone, whose 1941 eleven opens its season here Friday night against Copiah-Lincoln Junior college, says he has a backfield combination which might work out as well as the scoring outfit of 1937 headed by Bobby Kellogg who went on to do a great job for Tulane's Greenies.

The 1937 combination was Kellogg, tailback; Vernon Leatherwood, spinback; and Dick Elliott, wingback.

The three Coach Malone thinks might fill those fast-stepping shoes are Clayton Brown, 155-pound former Ouachita Parish high school boy, in the spinner position; Bobby Zuendel, 160, wingback, and Jack Bishop, 150, at tailback.

"They're built alike and run alike," Coach Malone said last night, "and this Bishop is a fine punter and passer."

Bishop and Zuendel played prep football together at Memphis Tech and, according to Malone, can really work together.

When the whistle blows at Brown stadium Friday at 8 p.m., the Indians won't be moving against any pushover grid squad. The Tribe has scheduled games with Copiah-Lincoln for the past ten years and a great rivalry has been growing during that period.

Coached by Farmer Johnson, ex-Tennessee player, the Copiah-Lincoln eleven uses the Tennessee formation. Coach Malone scouted the Wolves yesterday in their first game, but would make no definite statement as to their strength.

The Indians have been working three weeks and the squad is made up mostly of freshmen—23 of them.

Local boys on the club are Clayton Brown, who is holding down the first string fullback spot; Cecil Sinclair, O. P. H. S., first team tackle; Bill Edgar, O. P. H. S., second string guard; Jimmy Burgess, Neville, second team tackle, and Buster Simmons, Neville, second string quarterback.

Coach Malone would make no predictions as to his starting lineup, but said that the following veterans would probably get the starting call: Chief Dunnington, tackle, and most valuable player on last year's team; Paul Laudadio, center; Cecil Cosper, right end, and Leo Lively, left end.

Outstanding frosh linemen at this stage of the season, Malone said, are Bill Newton, 190-pound guard from Sinton, Tex.; Willard Smith, 155-pound end and sparkplug of the ball club, from John Reagan high school, Houston, Tex.; and Lemar Bakensius, range, 190-pound end from DeQueen, Ark., who looks and acts like Ken Kavanaugh, Louisiana State's all-American end of two seasons ago.

Bakensius, who stands 6 feet, 2 inches, center, was coached by Frank Mosely, a former N. J. C. player.

Hardest-working freshman on the squad, Coach Malone declares, is Lloyd Barron of Wynne, Ark. Barron is 17 years old, weighs 175 pounds, and alternates at the wingback position with Zuendel, working with Junior Williams of Jeanette, Pa., and Bedford Smith, ex-Gulf Coast Military academy griddier.

Jo-Jo Swanger is the only sophomore in the backfield, but he came to the team about 15 pounds under weight this year and Malone is letting

TECH'S FRESHMEN TROUNCE NEVILLE IN OPENER, 25 TO 0

Heavier Bullpups Romp Over Tigers Before Crowd Of Soldiers

RUSTON, La., Sept. 13.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech's freshmen, playing before a large crowd which included hundreds of soldiers, defeated Neville High School varsity, 25 to 0 at Tech Stadium Saturday night.

The game was played for the benefit of the U. S. O. and was a decided success, as far as the gate—and Tech frosh—were concerned.

The Bullpups, operating under the skilled guidance of Mike Wells, freshman coach, scored one touchdown in the first period, added two more in the second and another in the third. The Neville team failed to threaten against their heavier and more experienced opponents.

In the first quarter, Eddie Harelson, right halfback, went over for the score from the three-yard line. Joe Crump finished in his attempt to convert the extra point from placement.

Early in the second period, Harelson got loose from his 18-yard line and romped to the second touchdown for the Tech yearlings. Crump again failed to kick the extra point. Late in the quarter, Pearce Didier, we through the line from the Neville five-yard line for the third score at this time Didier elected to try for the extra point, and he succeeded. Didier reached the five after Didier Crump and Harelson had alternated with the ball to push it to the first of Tech's 40.

In the third period, Bobby Pham went through Neville's light line for the three and scored the fourth Tech score. Didier's kick from placement was wide.

The fourth quarter found both teams see-sawing from one end of the field to the other, with neither able to muster a serious threat.

Harry Frazer, Neville fullback, made a couple of nice gains for the Monarchs in the last quarter. Jack Dyer, left end, and Luffey, a halfback, were other Tigers who played outstanding games.

During the halftime intermission the soldiers put on a mock football game and kept the crowd entertained.

DODGE'S DOWN CARD, 1-0, IN HURLING DUEL

PAIR OF DOUBLES IN EIGHTH FRAME GAINS LONE RUN

Brooklyn Club Stretches Lead To Two Games In Tight Pennant Race

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Brooklyn's doubling Dodgers beat a tight-hitting Cardinals team, 1-0, today in the eighth frame of a pitching duel between the two clubs.

Whitlow Wyatt to hit for the Brooklyn Club in the eighth frame of the game.

Consecutive two-baggers by Dixie Walker and Billy Herman in the eighth—the first hits off stout-hearted Cooper—decided one of the most intriguing contests ever played in sportsman's Park.

For seven innings Cooper held the dodger sluggers helpless, although he walked in the sixth put him in a spot. He pulled out by forcing Lou Brown to hit to Third Base.

Walker, who got him easily at first, but his courageous pitching was greater than that of the Brooklyn right-hander, who notched his hit in the eighth when Wyatt's double hit into his right field.

Wyatt ran into his right field spot in the fifth when Creepy Esposito's double—the first hit for the dodgers—was followed by Reese's error.

Reese's error on second and third base none out. He struck out Gus Brown and Cooper and made Jimmy Brown roll to Dolph Camilli at first.

Reese erred when he took Marty Brown's grounder and in trying to throw Creepy Esposito to first.

Wyatt's double hit into his right field, the ball bounding crazily toward the Cards' dugout as lanky Esposito sped to second.

Except for five passes, not a Brooklyn player reached first on Cooper's seven frames. The right-hander, who was out of action more than a month in the heart of the season for a chipped bone operation, seemed to have the perfect game, when he pitched every pitcher's dream. Then it ended quickly.

Johnny Hopp, fleetest of the Red Sox, tried hard to nab that long ball, but it could not be reached, and when Herman hit to the center field wall it was all over.

The game, which was watched by 6,991 paying customers who filled every available seat, was equal to any other game in the world.

Not since August 10 had this hard-hitting Cardinals team in a game for which they had fractured his collarbone as he fell while chasing a fly.

He swung his bat menacingly. The dodger battery and infield clustered the mound for a conference. Then Wyatt passed another crisis in the game when the bases were filled by a single, a hit batsman and a walk.

Two were out. Marion forced Esposito at second. For the first and only time of the game Manager Leo Durocher, gesturing as swiftly as he could, ran from the dugout to protest that the pitch did not hit Crabtree. He lost the argument to Umpire Joe Pinelli and retired to appear no more until the team escorted him to the dressing room. It was Wyatt's sixth shutout of the year.

Rowe's Timely Triple Gives Tigers Win Over Yanks

Neville Tigers Open Home Grid Schedule Wednesday

City School Eleven Meets Menard Squad Of Alexandria Here

The Neville High School Tigers opened their home football schedule Wednesday night in a game with the strong Menard Memorial High School eleven of Alexandria at Neville stadium. The game will start at 8 o'clock.

The Tigers played their first game of the season against the Louisiana Tech freshmen Saturday night.

Menard will present a veteran team which last year won the championship of the Catholic Conference of Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas. Neville beat Menard in 1940 by a 13-0 score.

A special train will bring the Menard team and supporters to Monroe. The train will arrive at about 4 p.m. Wednesday at the Missouri Pacific station and will be met by the Neville student body, Coach Percy Brown said last night.

A "pop" meeting of Neville students will be held at the stadium Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Coach Brown said. A program will be presented and the Neville band, under the direction of Charles Gausshill, will play.

Menard will bring a squad of 38 players here. One member of the starting lineup has had three years of varsity experience, five have had two years of experience and five, one year.

Blank, fullback, and Distafino, quarterback, were outstanding in last year's game with Neville and Coach Brown expects them to be even more dangerous in the forthcoming game.

Flynn, a 182-pound tackle who has played three years at Menard, and Lashney, another tackle, who weighs 178 pounds, are outstanding in the line.

The Neville team will be outwitted by Coach Brown said he expected the Tigers to put up a good scrap.

"We haven't much weight and there's very little experience on our ball club but there's plenty of fighting spirit and we're confident that we can give the fans a good ball game," Coach Brown said.

Coach Brown said that if the Tigers came out of their first game with the Tech fresh without injuries he thought the Menard-Neville game would be a toss-up.

The Neville mentor said the sale of box seats for the Tiger home games had been progressing satisfactorily. Persons wishing to purchase box seats are asked to call the Neville High School office.

The starting lineups and weights of players for Wednesday night's game follow:

BOSTON RED SOX STRENGTHEN GRIP ON SECOND SPOT

Senators Win 11-Inning Tilt With Tribe; Athletics Down Chisox

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP)—A prodigious triple to right centerfield by Schoolboy Rowe with two on base and two out in the ninth inning clinaxed a four-run rally that gave the Detroit Tigers a 5-3 victory over the Yankees in their final meeting of the season today. The two teams wound up the year with 11 wins apiece.

Rowe had relieved starting pitcher Buck Newsum only the inning before after Buck had been lifted for a pinch hitter with the Yankees ahead 3 to 1.

Atley Donald went the route for the Yankees and was the victim of the last-inning blast. Donald gave up only one hit in the first five frames.

A "pop" meeting of Neville students will be held at the stadium Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Coach Brown said. A program will be presented and the Neville band, under the direction of Charles Gausshill, will play.

GOMEZ IS LEADING AMERICAN HURLER

Yankee Southpaw Has 14 And Four; Williams Tops Batsmen

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Ed Barrow and Joe McCarthy, guiding lights of the New York Yankees, are delighted now that they listened to a glib young fellow last winter.

This 31-year-old veteran, one Vernon (Goofy) Gomez, told his bosses he was not washed up and that they should give him one more chance to stick with the Bronx Bombers. He was reportedly tabbed for Brooklyn, but they listened well and kept Gomez.

At the present reading he is the leading pitcher of the American league on won-lost records through Friday's games. Lefty has won 14 games and lost four, a remarkable comeback after his drab 1940 season, during which he won three and lost three. Close behind Gomez is Teammate Red Ruffing with 14 victories and five defeats. Cleveland's workhorse, Bob Feller, has 23 wins and 241 strikeouts with no one else even close.

Ted Williams, the Red Sox closer, batted only .390 the last year but if he can maintain his mark two more weeks he will be the first American leaguer to top .400 in 1941.

Cecil Travis, Washington, is second with .361, followed by Joe DiMaggio, New York, .356; Dick Siebert, Philadelphia, .341; Jeff Heath, Cleveland, .338; Barney McCosky, Detroit, .324; Sam Chapman, Philadelphia, .323; Roy Cullenbine, St. Louis, .322; Taft Wright, Chicago, .321; and Phil Rizzuto, New York, .315.

The departmental leaders: Home runs, Williams, 34; runs batted in, Charley Keller, New York, 122; triples, Travis, 18; doubles, Lou Boudreau, Cleveland, 40; stolen bases, George Case, Washington, 26; runs, Williams, 126; hits, Travis, 198.

The Red Sox in team batting with .281, Cleveland is tops in fielding and the Yankees are the double play leaders with 176 in 143 games.

GOLF TITLE WON BY MRS. NEWELL

20-Year-Old Californian Downs Helen Sigel Of Philadelphia, 5 And 3

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Women's sports came up with another poker-faced champion today when attractive and impassive Mrs. Betty Hicks Newell of Long Beach, Calif., missed par by four strokes over a 33-hole stretch at the Country Club while defeating Helen Sigel of Philadelphia, 5 and 3, for the National Amateur golf title.

The 20-year-old Mrs. Newell, who pounds a golf ball almost as hard and in much the same stoical fashion her famed fellow-Californian, Helen Wills Moody, did tennis spheroids, was down during only the first two holes of the scheduled 36-hole finale.

Although she performed brilliantly this morning, getting a 17 for her first 18 holes, the new champion had only a one-hole margin on the much more spontaneous 22-year-old Philadelphia girl at the half-way mark, after being 3-up at the 10th.

When Mrs. Newell tossed away half of her lead by taking a ragged six on the 18th, where she was in the rough with her first two shots, Miss Sigel appeared to be getting set for a mighty closing rally.

That, however, was nipped in abrupt fashion as Mrs. Newell pulled into a hole to her credit by birdying the first three afternoons holes. She became 4 up at the 23rd and she had all those pleted her third nine of the day in 36, one under par.

Even though hopelessly beaten at the three-quarter stage, Miss Sigel fought back in dogged fashion. The Philadelphia girl, first easterner to compete for this title since Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare of the same city won for the sixth time in 1935, took two and halved a third as they played out the last six holes of the match.

The Newell, although out-driven by at least 25 yards, pounded her second pounced her second shot to the edge shot to the edge of the green and then dropped a 70-foot chip shot almost dead to the pin.

REISER BOOSTS NATIONAL LEAD

Brooklyn Star Increases Batting Average From .333 To .338

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Pete Reiser reinforced his grip on the National league's batting lead this week by boosting his average from .333 to .338.

Johnny Hopp of the St. Louis Cardinals slipped from .326 to .325 and was threatened from behind by Teammate Johnny Mize, the 1939 batting champion, who eased into third place by raising his percentage from .321 to .323.

Lined up behind were Nick Etten of Philadelphia, .319; Stan Hack, Chicago, .316; Joe Medwick, Brooklyn, .315; and Arky Vaughan, Pittsburgh, .315; Dixie Walker, Brooklyn, and John Conner, Boston, .314; and Enos Slaughter, St. Louis, .312.

Reiser also held onto his lead in other departments—having scored the most runs, 106, hit the most triples, 14, and the most doubles, 38.

Teammate Dolph Camilli hit four home runs during the week to bring his total to 33, and his mark for runs batted in to 110, to head those divisions.

Hack had the most hits, 170, six more than Reiser.

Danny Mortough of the Phillies lifted his stolen bases total to 18 while Elmer Riddle of the Reds and Ernie White of the Cardinals again switched places at the top of the pitchers—Mack, 26, and Dickey, 25.

Riddle taking the lead with 17 victories and four defeats to White's 17 and 6.

Brooklyn Star Increases Batting Average From .333 To .338

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Pete Reiser reinforced his grip on the National league's batting lead this week by boosting his average from .333 to .338.

Johnny Hopp of the St. Louis Cardinals slipped from .326 to .325 and was threatened from behind by Teammate Johnny Mize, the 1939 batting champion, who eased into third place by raising his percentage from .321 to .323.

Lined up behind were Nick Etten of Philadelphia, .319; Stan Hack, Chicago, .316; Joe Medwick, Brooklyn, .315; and Arky Vaughan, Pittsburgh, .315; Dixie Walker, Brooklyn, and John Conner, Boston, .314; and Enos Slaughter, St. Louis, .312.

Reiser also held onto his lead in other departments—having scored the most runs, 106, hit the most triples, 14, and the most doubles, 38.

Teammate Dolph Camilli hit four home runs during the week to bring his total to 33, and his mark for runs batted in to 110, to head those divisions.

Hack had the most hits, 170, six more than Reiser.

Danny Mortough of the Phillies lifted his stolen bases total to 18 while Elmer Riddle of the Reds and Ernie White of the Cardinals again switched places at the top of the pitchers—Mack, 26, and Dickey, 25.

Riddle taking the lead with 17 victories and four defeats to White's 17 and 6.

Nelson Abell and Dickey Touchstone, first cousins, will leave Sunday for Georgia Tech and both will take prominent parts in the athletic program at the Atlanta college.

Abell is No. 1 man on the Yellow Jacket tennis team. Touchstone, who will enter as a freshman, will try for place on the Georgia Tech golf team.

Abell won numerous honors as a member of the Ouachita Parish High school tennis team, while Touchstone won the state high school golf championship and went on to cop other tourney titles during the past season.

Both, incidentally, are excellent students.

WEATHERLY IS BACK IN DOGHOUSE AGAIN

Indefinitely Suspended For Failing To Hustle

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians' center fielder Roy Weatherly is back in the doghouse. Manager Roger Peckinpaugh declared today that he had placed Weatherly under indefinite suspension for failure to hustle in the series with the Washington Senators.

The manager made no mention of a fine, but in the club dressing room Weatherly understood he had assessed the Tribe outfielder $100 for loafing on an inside-the-park home run Thursday and for lax play in yesterday's game. Peckinpaugh also ordered the little fly chaser back to Cleveland.

This is the second time this season that "Little Stormy" has been suspended for failing to hustle.

Sports Roundup

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.
NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(The Special New Service)—Ford Frick must have collected a few tips from a good fight referee on how to go about that speech he made to the managers and his umpire before the game. . . . The crowd don't make it look as if St. Louis fans were getting very excited about it all, but maybe they're just saving up their dough to buy World Series tickets. . . . With Keller and Wolfe out, the Yanks won't have such a breeze against the National leaguers as their supporters had been expecting. . . . If the Cards win the pennant, maybe they'll decide to call the whole thing off and let the meddlesome play the series. . . . The Yanks' list includes Joe DiMaggio (sore wrist), Red Ruoff (stiff neck), Bill Dickey (bruised ankle) and Buddy Roser (dizzy spells). . . . The Cards don't expect to have Enos Slaughter of Terry Moore back. . . . While the National leaguers were announcing they'd hold a meeting to decide about a playoff in case of a tie, the Yanks were announcing that all the World Series box seats had been sold. . . . That's the difference between the leagues.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR
Bob Stedler, Buffalo Evening News: "Some football coaches are balking on the new system of numbering their men. They're the kind of fellows who think they're doing the world a favor by living in it."

ONE-MINUTE SPORT PAGE
Looking ahead to a second shot at Joe Louis next spring, Billy Conn is making plans to return from Pittsburgh to the Bronx. . . . The Pittsburgh training base was few days to see if Joe is doing all right. . . . Billy calls Joe "corporeal" and to Joe, Conn is "movie actor". . . . The racing mob is trying to figure out how much dough Eddie Arcaro is losing by staying on the ground by request while Alf Robertson rides whipsawing. . . . They all agree it's quite a piece of change, but a guy with Arcaro's reputation as a rough rider shouldn't have much trouble getting some back when the rodeo comes to town. . . . Golf Pro Ross Sobe, who has a big reputation as a guy to see when your name gets out, is starting a new company with the Grossinger Country club in the Catskills after five years. . . . Bob Hooley of the Ohio State football has laid himself open for a few touches by collecting the $25 prize for the best prediction on the American Association season. . . . Handout from Hendrix-Simmons U. about D. W. Brantley, who likes to kick barefoot, says: "On kickoffs, his boots go 50 to 60 yards, and occasionally over the goal posts on the fly." . . . But where does the ball go, cowboy?

SERIOUS NOTE
George Hudson, who is teaching Frank Kovacs to use a "cosmic" stroke in tennis, predicts that Lou Nova's "cosmic" punch will lick Joe Louis. . . . And he has cosmic isn't cosmic at all. Hudson claims he and Nova are working on the same scientific theory, which can be boiled down (as we get it) to what the boys call getting everything you've got into it, plus a bit of never letting yourself get caught off balance. . . . Anyway Hudson, who used to do a little boxing himself, says Lou throws a lot of punches with all his weight behind him and they travel straight to the point he's aiming for.

RUSHING THE SEASON
It's a bit early to come up with any extra-special football predictions, but maybe you noted that the season's first interconference game is on tap tonight—Davis and Elkins of West Virginia vs. Catawba at Salisbury, N. C. . . . The word is that each has 15 lettermen to start with, so on a blind stab we'll pick the home team.

9 STATE LAND TRACTS LEASED

Total Cash Bonuses Of $177,660 Received By Minerals Board

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 13.—(AP)—The leasing of nine tracts of public lands for total cash bonuses of $177,660 was announced today by the state minerals board.

The board previously had rejected offers on the tracts and readvertised for bids. The cash consideration announced yesterday was $141,530 more than made in the rejected bids, the board said.

The nine tracts leased and the successful bids follow:

Natchitoches parish—300 acres of Cane river waterbottoms, William P. Carter, $200 cash and minimum royalties plus $10,000 of 1/44 overriding royalty.

Catahoula parish—1,600 acres bottom Larto lake, Carter Oil company and Phillips Petroleum company, joint bid, $10,000 cash and minimum royalties plus $40,000 of 1/24 overriding royalty.

Grant, Rapides and LaSalle parishes—Four tracts comprising 11,875 acres in bottoms of Catahoula lake and tributaries, Carter Oil company and Phillips Petroleum company, joint bid, $10,000 cash and minimum royalties plus $40,000 of 1/24 overriding royalty and $158,000 of 1/48 overriding royalty.

Lafayette and St. Martin parishes—94.5 acres in Bayou Vermilion and tributaries, Stanolind Oil and Gas company, $2,500 cash and minimum royalties plus $25,000 of 1/32 overriding royalty.

Iberia and St. Mary parishes—570 acres beds of Weeks bayou, Bayou Carlin, Cypressmont, Stumpy bayou, Warehouse bayou, Gaspergou bayou and other lands, Shell Oil company, Inc., $3,135 and minimum royalties except $1 per ton on royalty plus 1/48 overriding royalty.

The ninth tract comprised 480 acres in Catahoula parish owned by the Tensas Basin Leases District board but leased for the board by the state minerals board. This tract brought $4,800 cash for the Tensas board, $1 a ton for sulphur rather than the minimum 75 cents per ton royalty for this mineral, plus $192,000 of 1/24 overriding royalty.

LOCAL FIRM GETS HOUSING CONTRACT

Salley and Ellis, Monroe contractors, have been awarded a $520,559 contract for the construction of a 175-unit defense housing development at Leesville, according to word received in Monroe Saturday from the Public Buildings Administration at Washington.

The project will house enlisted and civilian personnel at Camp Polk. The contract calls for completion inside of 110 days.

In a recent golf tournament played simultaneously on 1,042 club courses in 34 states, five men and one woman among 9,983 players shot holes-in-one.

WINNERS IN LOCAL ESSAY CONTEST

Winners in the essay contest sponsored by the Louisiana department, United Spanish War Veterans' auxiliary, are Dicky Touchstone, left, 800 College drive, winner of the first prize, who graduated from Neville High school this year; Frances Hunt, right, 606 Louisville avenue, winner of the second prize, and Katherine Kugler, middle, 935 South Grand street, winner of third prize. Both girls were graduated this year from Ouachita Parish High. Mrs. O. M. Arnette, lower, senior vice-president of the Louisiana department auxiliary and local essay chairman, is given much credit for her work in connection with the contest.

WILL REPRESENT SEA OF GALILEE

Methodists To Give Program At Local Bayou On Sunday

Wesleyan Guild, circle 3 of the First Methodist church, will present a Galilean service Sunday at 5:30 p.m. in the gardens of the W. B. Inabnet residence, 7215 DeSiard street.

Waters of the adjacent bayou will play an important role in the program to be given. While the audience is seated at the waters edge, those taking part in the exercises will appear successively in boats.

The first number will be a scripture reading by Mrs. Mike John, Jr., which will be followed by a selection by a quartet by members of the church choir.

Next a poem, "The Roofless Temple of God," will be read by Eleona Brinsmade.

Spiritual adventuring will be given by Dorothy Ellis, while a hymn, "Savior Like a Shepherd Lead Us," will be sung by the entire assemblage.

The entire program, unique in nature, because of the rural and aquatic setting, will be one to hold special attraction, it is said.

The public is invited to attend the exercises.

DR. GAYER VISITS BAPTIST MEETINGS

Dr. T. W. Gayer, superintendent of the Louisiana Baptist Children's home, has recently visited Baptist associational groups at meetings held in Shreveport and Rodessa. He will attend two more similar groups this week, near Ruston and Jonesboro.

The local home has received more children and now is nearly filled to capacity, he said.

The local home has received more children and now is nearly filled to capacity, he said.

Financial support this summer has exceeded that of past summer seasons and conditions are now fully satisfactory, he said. He also said that more money is being received for the "Daddy" Flowers memorial chapel and that when another campaign is instituted on or about Thanksgiving, he anticipates that the fund will be completed so that construction can be started.

PARENT-TEACHER MEETS POSTPONED

Will Be Held In October Throughout State; Mrs. Cox To Go To Chicago

Mrs. Fagan Cox, president of the Louisiana P.-T. A., said yesterday that due to the war maneuvers in Louisiana, the dates for the district P.-T. A. meetings have been postponed until October.

The programs scheduled for the 11 district meetings will include a discussion of associational activities by Mrs. Cox, a talk on membership by Mrs. Roger Sharpe, New Orleans, first vice-president; and "Consumer Education," by Mrs. Cecil Brown, Baton Rouge, second vice-president.

Walter Purdy, state music chairman, will direct the community singing at the meetings. The meetings will open at 9 a.m., will close at 2:30 p.m., and will be held as follows: First district, Kenner, October 20; Second district, Luling, October 11; Third district, Morgan City, October 25; Fourth district, Bossier City, October 16; Fifth

One Bradford's CHAT COLUMN

SEPTEMBER, according to the poet, is the "melancholy" month. The time of "wailing winds and naked trees and meadows brown and sear." Perhaps for some these September days are "melancholy" but for the great majority it is a season of bustling activity. It is the time when everyone has returned from vacations and all the lazy inactivity in July and August coming to a climax in a flurry of partying. After weeks of separation friends find a party a good excuse for getting together and regaling each other with tales of places visited.

Vacations are wonderful things—exciting and glamorous interludes in our daily lives. But honestly and truly the most part of even the most wonderful vacation is the coming home. Rejoicing at the change of climate and freedom from the daily routine you are prepared to take up the reins with renewed vigor and greater enthusiasm. And incidentally you enjoy the thrill of retrospection.

Today when everyone fears a little to look too far into the future it is nice to realize that whatever may happen during the days ahead nothing can destroy the memory of those glorious vacation days.

We remember one day in particular during our recent visit in New York, spent at the Cloisters, situated on a high point of land overlooking the Hudson river. Rampart walls enclose a courtyard designed for the purpose of providing a convenient place from which to view the magnificent surrounding landscape. This courtyard and the entrance driveways are paved with Belgian blocks to suggest the cobblestones of old European towns. Special attention has been given to the garden in the Bonfont Cloister, which has been conceived of as a medieval garden with herbs and flowers.

Within the cloistered walls, visitors are guided to the Romanesque hall, the Saint Guilhem cloister; the Chapter house from Pontigny; the Cloister, the early Gothic hall, the Gothic chapel, the Burgos Tapestry hall, the Sculpture hall, the Tric cloister, the Boppard room, the Hall of the Unicorn Tapestries and the Frouville Arcade.

The large tapestry from Burgos cathedral, called The Nativity, is one of a series representing the Salvation of Man and is admired by hundreds of visitors daily. The tapestries were woven in Brussels about 1485 for the Emperor Maximilian.

The series of six tapestries representing the Hunt of the Unicorn is among the most prized inheritances from the Middle Ages. In design, in the beauty of their coloring, and in the intensity of their pictorial realism, they form the most superb ensemble of fifteenth century tapestries in existence today. The subject of the tapestries is an allegory of the Incarnation, in which the unicorn, a symbol of purity representing Christ, is hunted and captured. The unicorn, a fabulous and picturesque animal, occurs frequently in art.

Every visitor to the Cloisters is deeply impressed with the stained glass windows from the church of the Carmelite convent of Saint Severinus at Boppard, on the Rhine. The colors predominating in the windows are red, blue, golden yellow and blue, green and purple. After the secularization of church property in the Rhineland in the Napoleonic era, the glass was sold and was packed away until 1871.

The attraction of the Magi, the Flagellation of Christ, Daniel Killing the Lion, the Prodigal Son and other Biblical characters are depicted in the pale golden transparency.

The Cloisters was presented to the state of New York by John D. Rockefeller for the purpose of preserving medieval sculpture and art.

A visit to New York would most certainly be incomplete without a visit to the Cloisters.

The Little Church Around The Corner always holds charm for Monroe people who visit New York. Lily and Jack Harrington, as we all remember, were married at this historic little church which is just around the corner from Fifth avenue. It is estimated that eight weddings a day take place there.

place in this church. The rice lies deep along the edges of the walls leading across the lawn and to the church doors. It's impossible, we were told, to keep the rice cleaned out of the drainage channels. Bushels of this grain are swept up and scooped up by the cleaning staff but still they never quite succeed in cleaning it up completely.

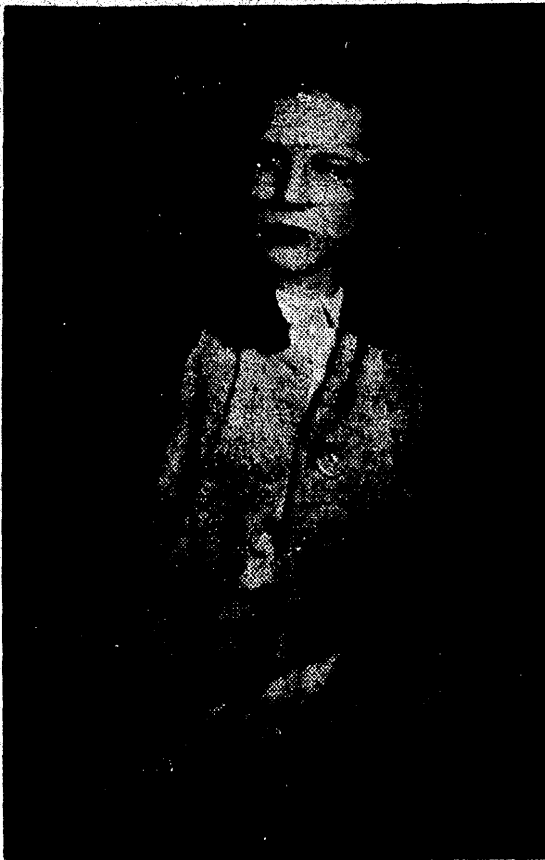

More birds and fatter birds inhabit the trees and copings of the Little Church than dwell in any other spot in New York. Pigeons and sparrows flock here because they can gorge themselves on rice, day and night, the whole year around. In June these birds become so fat and lazy that they can hardly be induced to get off the walks for the bridal processions. Fortunately the rambling structure of the Little Church is divided up into many chapels and nooks. Several marriages may be performed at one time without interference by one party or another. Baptisms and funerals go forward daily while the rice showers are, falling upon the lawn and walks outside.

The fame of the Little Church Around the Corner rested originally upon its willingness to provide the Christian obsequies for departed actors of midtown Manhattan, with that charity wherewith a Christian organization is supposed to be fortified. Such funerals still move in and out of the historic church and rites are performed for the departed in one chapel while showers of rice and orange blossoms are descending upon happy couples that have just plighted their faith and troth in another chapel.

A vacation in New York offers so many forms of diversion that it is often a difficult task to decide upon each day's activities. We spent one memorable day on the Hudson river, sailing past the Palisades, little fortified islands, beautiful estates, and historic old West Point. Flirtation Walk, famous in song and story, slopes down to the river's edge.

Seeing Paul Lukas in "Watch on the Rhine" was something precious to tuck away in the mind for all time to come. "Life With Father" was another Broadway play enjoyed to the fullest. A visit in New York would be quite incomplete without seeing the Rockettes at Rockefeller Center. Dining out of doors or the Rockefeller Center, where the penguins preen themselves beneath the cascading waterfalls is another experience one remembers for all time.

Once again we discovered how small the world is. Wandering through the historic grounds of Harvard university, Cambridge, Mass., we stopped to talk to a guide. Finding we were

Bess just naturally gravitates, year after year, toward New Mexico, the land that exhilarates the artist. The immense horizons, the vastness, the solemn grandeur, snow peaked mountains, all supply everlasting inspiration to such people as Bess James who spends every available moment with paint brush in hand. Every year when Mrs. James vacations in New Mexico she captures some of the vastness and variety, the power and the tang of this western land and puts it on canvas.

Good news for friends of Dr. Grace Ingledue. Her year's absence in Findley, O., where she is taking up radio work, is sort of a sabbatical holiday. There is a possibility, if things do not turn out satisfactorily, that she will return to Monroe and continue her work as head of the speech department at Northeast Junior college. The departure of Dr. Ingledue will be a distinct loss to Monroe's cultural world where she took a prominent part in the Little Theater, introduced Town Hall speakers, presided as an after-dinner speaker and was the leading spirit in all things collegiate.

Numerous little social affairs with Dr. Ingledue the central figure were arranged by hostesses last week. On every side regret over her departure was voiced.

When the Lotus club management opened wide their doors to Uncle Sam's boys a week or so ago, army officers flocked in. They were royally entertained and were simply enchanted with our beautiful southern girls. As is always the case there is usually one girl in particular who receives the lion's share of attention from the stag line. On this occasion, tall, statuesque Dorothy Calvert in white chiffon and gardenias in her hair, knocked the stag line "cold." Dignified captains and colonels pushed each other aside, so eager were they to meet Dorothy.

It was good to see Airie Mihner mingling with friends after a month's struggle with malarial fever. She was looking unusually smart in a fall ensemble of brown at the wedding of Ellen Kent Millsaps and Kenneth Bonfield.

Stella Reid, just back from a vacation in Mexico City, said she was so fascinated with King Carol and Madame Lupe, who occupied a box at her right the night she attended the opera, she quite forgot to watch the stage performance.

The highlight of Mrs. Reid's visit in Mexico City was the bull fight. She rather feared the experience as she was uncertain as to what her reaction to such a gory battle would be. Eight bulls were killed in the arena but she was only concerned with the marvelous technique employed by the picadors and the matadors.

The interest of friends is centered today in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Lourline Walters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Walters, to Mr. Eugene S. Eby, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Eby of West Monroe.

Mrs. Eby is a graduate of St. Matthew's Parochial school and Mr. Eby is a graduate of the Ouachita Parish High school. At the present time he is with the United States Marines on board the battleship U. S. S. Oklahoma.

At an impressive ceremony Tuesday evening, September 2, in the home of Rev. P. M. Gaddis of Alto, Miss Billie Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Brown of Mangham, became the bride of J. E. Chaney, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Chaney, Sr., of Rayville. The wedding was performed in the presence of members of the two families.

The bride was attractively gowned in a model of soldier blue with wine colored accessories. Her corsage was of gladioli.

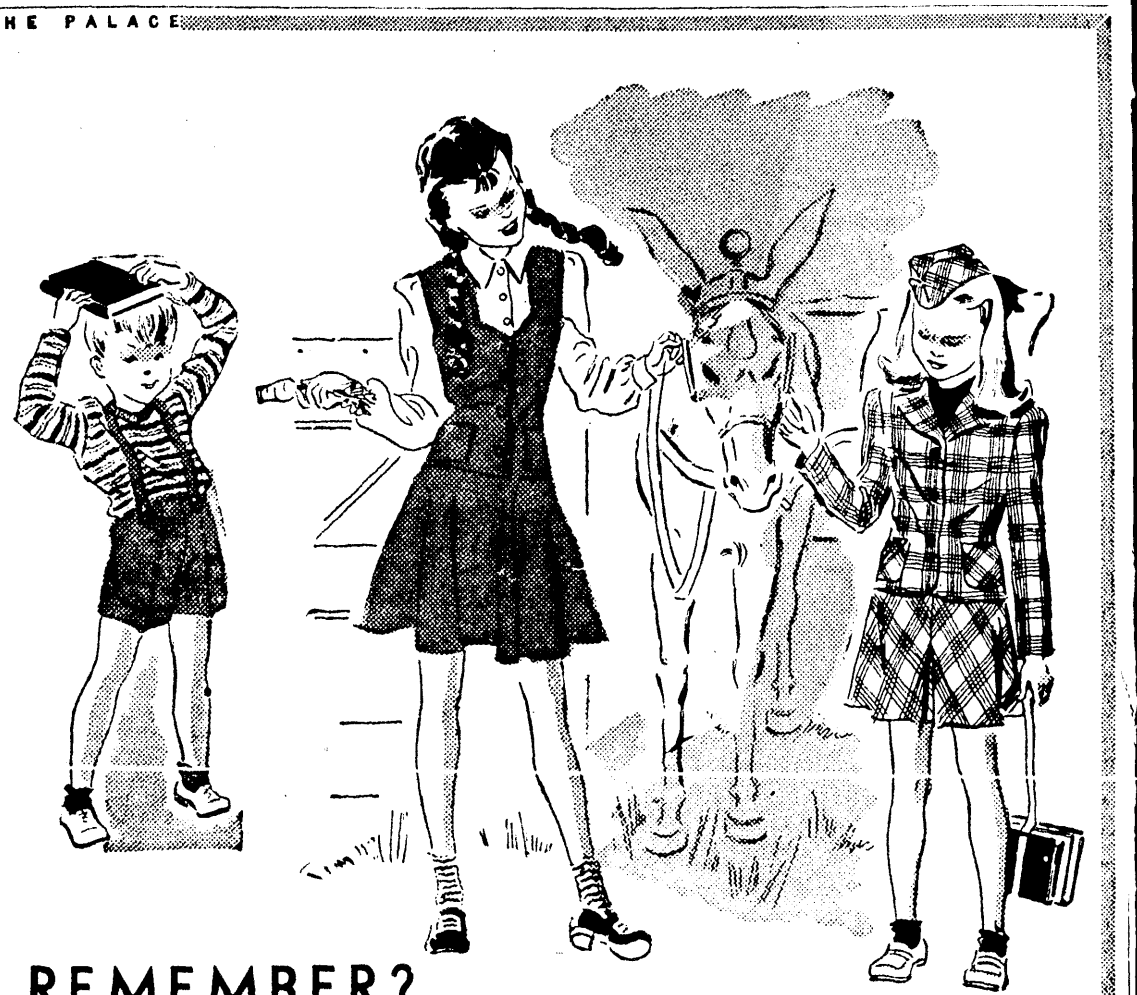

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left for a brief wedding trip. They will reside in Rayville where Mr. Chaney is employed by the Rayville Hardware company.

The comfort and safety of the patients are the first consideration of our attendants.

SEPTEMBER, according to the poet, is the "melancholy" month. The time of "wailing winds and naked trees and meadows brown and sear." Perhaps for some these September days are "melancholy" but for the great majority it is a season of bustling activity. It is the time when everyone has returned from vacations and all the lazy inactivity in July and August coming to a climax in a flurry of partying. After weeks of separation friends find a party a good excuse for getting together and regaling each other with tales of places visited.

Vacations are wonderful things—exciting and glamorous interludes in our daily lives. But honestly and truly the nicest part of even the most wonderful vacation is the coming home. Refreshed by change of climate and freedom from the daily routine you are prepared to take up the reins with renewed vigor and greater enthusiasm. And incidentally you enjoy the thrill of retrospection.

Today when everyone fears a little to look too far into the future it is nice to realize that whatever may happen during the days ahead nothing can destroy the memory of those glorious vacation days.

We remember one day in particular during our recent visit in New York, spent at the Cloisters, situated on a high point of land overlooking the Hudson river. Rampart walls enclose a courtyard designed for the purpose of providing a convenient place from which to view the magnificent surrounding landscape. This courtyard and the entrance driveways are paved with Belgian blocks to suggest the cobblestones of old European towns. Special attention has been given to the garden in the Bonaparte Cloister, which has been conceived of as a medieval garden with herbs and flowers.

Within the cloistered walls, visitors are guided to the Romanesque hall, the Saint Guilhem cloister; the Chapter house from Pontaut, the Cuxa cloister, the early Gothic hall, the Gothic chapel, the Burgos Tapestry hall, the Sculpture hall, the Trie cloister, the Boppard room, the Hall of the Unicorn Tapestries and the Frouville Arcade.

The large tapestry from Burgund cathedral, called The Nativity, is one of a series representing the Salvation of Man and is admired by hundreds of visitors daily. The tapestries were woven in Brussels about 1495 for the Emperor Maximilian.

The series of six tapestries representing the Hunt of the Unicorn is among the most prized inheritances from the Middle Ages. In design, in the beauty of their coloring, and in the intensity of their pictorial realism, they form the most superb ensemble of Fifteenth century tapestries in existence today. The subject of the tapestries is an allegory of the Incarnation, in which the unicorn, a symbol of purity representing Christ, is hunted and captured. The unicorn, a fabulous and picturesque animal, occurs frequently in art.

Every visitor to the Cloisters is deeply impressed with the stained glass windows from the church of the Carmelite convent of Saint Severinus at Boppard, on the Rhine. The colors predominating in the windows are red, blue, golden yellow and blue, green and purple. After the secularization of church property in the Rhineland in the Napoleonic era, the glass was sold and was packed away until 1871.

The adoration of the Magi, the Flagellation of Christ, Daniel Killing the Lion, the Prodigal Son and other Biblical characters are depicted in the pale golden transparency.

The Cloisters was presented to the state of New York by John D. Rockefeller for the purpose of preserving medieval sculpture and art.

A visit to New York would most certainly be incomplete without a visit to the Cloisters.

The Little Church Around The Corner always holds charm for Monroe people who visit New York. Lily and Jack Harrington, as we all remember, were married at this historic little church which is just around the corner from Fifth avenue. It is estimated that eight weddings a day take place in this church. The rice lies deep along the edges of the walls leading across the lawn and to the church doors. It's impossible, we were told, to keep the rice cleaned out of the drainage channels. Bunches of this grain are swept up and scooped up by the cleaning staff but still they never quite succeed in cleaning it up completely.

More birds and fatter birds inhabit the trees and copings of the Little Church than dwell in any other spot in New York. Pigeons and sparrows flock here because they can gorge themselves on rice, day and night, the whole year around. In June these birds become so fat and lazy that they can hardly be induced to get off the walks for the bridal processions.

Fortunately the rambling structure of the Little Church is divided up into many chapels and nooks. Several marriages may be performed at one time without interference by one party or another. Baptisms and funerals go forward daily while the rice showers are falling upon the lawn and walks outside.

The fame of the Little Church Around the Corner rested originally upon its willingness to provide the Christian obsequies for departed actors of midtown Manhattan, with that charity wherever a Christian organization of church property in the Rhineland in the Napoleonic era, the glass was sold and was packed away until 1871.

A vacation in New York offers so many forms of diversion that it is often a difficult task to decide upon each day's activities. We spent one memorable day on the Hudson river, sailing past the Palisades, little fortified islands, beautiful estates, and historic old West Point. Flirtation Walk, famous in song and story, slopes down to the river's edge.

Seeing Paul Lukas in "Watch on the Rhine" was something precious to tuck away in the mind for all time to come. "Life With Father" was another Broadway play enjoyed to the fullest. A visit in New York would be quite incomplete without seeing the Rockettes at Rockefeller Center. Dining out of doors or the Rockefeller Center square where the penguins preen themselves beneath the cascading waterfalls is another experience one remembers for all time.

Once again we discovered how small the world is. Wandering through the historic grounds of Harvard university, Cambridge, Mass., we stopped to talk to a guide. Finding we were from the south he remarked that one of the most popular students at the university was Thomas Feazel of West Monroe. It seemed strange that out of 8,000 students the name of the one man we happened to know should be mentioned.

She is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. He will receive his commission in the army air corps in September. The wedding will be an event of the early fall, but no date has been set.

Visiting Boston, where almost every inch of ground is historic, was an experience not soon to be forgotten. A hurried tour of the city resulted in a visit to Paul Revere's home, Benjamin Franklin's birthplace, Old North Church, site of the Boston Massacre, Oliver Wendell Holmes "Long Path" on Boston Common, Griffin's Wharf, the scene of the famous "Tea Party." Bunker Hill monument, the navy yards, Old Ironsides in Boston harbor, the Mother Church of Christ, Scientist with a seating capacity of 5,000, old State House built in 1713.

Women Of Twin Cities Launch Auspicious Club Program For Coming Year

Brilliant Programs Highlight Meetings

Judging From The Enthusiasm Displayed At Initial Gatherings, Work Will Go Forward

Organized women of the Twin Cities launched their year's work auspiciously last week when every federated club met for the first time this season with brilliant programs featuring each meeting. Judging from the enthusiasm displayed at the initial meetings, the work will go forward with efficient continuity.

The first program of the year was outlined in their year book was enjoyed by members of the Current Literature club in the home of Mrs. John C. Best, with Mrs. J. Leon Dennis, co-hostess.

Mrs. J. M. Menefee, chairman of Junior club work, gave an interesting report on the work of the Junior Knitters club, which was organized and sponsored by the Current Literature club three months ago. She reported 78 sweaters, seven caps, five baby blankets, one child's dress and one overall as having been completed and turned into the Red Cross headquarters by its 70 members. Mrs. R. L. Conway, parliamentarian, led a short drill on "Words and Their Uses," all members taking part.

Mrs. Jordan Barton, publicity chairman, gave a short talk on "Why Publicity," saying in part:

"Publicity as defined by Webster is: 'Open knowledge of a community, without concealment.' Therefore, publicity is nothing more or less than the right to express our own opinion, to tell what we are doing, and to comment on what others are doing in our community, in our state, and in our nation, through the freedom of the press."

"One commentator defines publicity blood of a free nation." Weddewtdw as, "the arteries carrying the life's blood of a free nation." We as Americans enjoy that freedom as no other nation on earth. England is a democracy, but they do not have the freedom of the press that we enjoy in America.

"Do we realize the value of free speech, open press and publicity? We who have grown from childhood, as have our fathers and forefathers before us, enjoying freedom of speech and freedom of the press, refuse to believe that there are today forces at work in our land, endeavoring to undermine and destroy these blessed privileges. But there are forces working day and night to undermine and destroy these very things."

"All of us are familiar with the trouble a well-known radio commentator, and columnist had recently when he dared to expose alleged un-American activities carried on by prominent people in our nation. This commentator branded these people as 'some Americans most Americans can do without.' Letters and telegrams poured into the sponsor's office protesting the use of this man's free speech and free press."

"Germany today has the most highly-organized system of publicity

of any other nation, but the guillotine is steeped in the blood of those who did nothing worse than to listen to a foreign broadcast, or to read a pamphlet dropped by an English plane."

"You ask what you as an individual can do to preserve this freedom? If we as members of this club pass a resolution, and each club in our state federation shares that same resolution, national federation shares that resolution and it is put before the lawmakers of our nation, it will have its effect. Thomas Jefferson once said: 'Better to have a newspaper without a government, than a government without a newspaper.' Napoleon said, 'I fear a newspaper more than three hundred thousand soldiers.'"

"Freedom of the press is a two-edged sword that can cut for the preservation or the destruction of our nation. According to Bernard McFadden, editor of Liberty magazine, 'the press is our first line defending the freedom of all Americans, and when it can be muzzled then the battle for liberty and democracy has already been lost.'"

Mrs. John Best reviewed the current book, "This Above All," saying in part:

"Here is a novel as real as the bombs over London, as deep and truthful as Britain's determination to fight and to win this war against human slavery. 'This Above All' tells the story of the British conscience. Not the smug and frightened appeasers who betrayed their people in Munich and Spain, but of those who, betrayed a hundred times, still stuck it out when the moment came, ready to fight and to die for their country."

"It is not a gentle book and this is perhaps what makes the novel's worth. The author's conviction that Britain's war is the people's war against suppression, that a regime of lies and mass hysteria must not and cannot be fought with lies. Clive Briggs, the hero, does not stop thinking. If he must fight, he wants to know why. Clive is ready to sacrifice his life if he knows where he stands. Born in the slums, the illegitimate child of poor people, he went through all the humiliations of poverty and unemployment. After a trial of hunger and shame he was at last able to make a decent living. Then came the war. He fought in Dunkerque and Douai. He proved to be a remarkable soldier, brave, tough, enduring. He was a good soldier because he did not quit thinking."

"Throughout the book the lovers of this story, Clive and Prudence Cathaway try to think soundly and know the answers. These two were automatically drawn to each other. Prudence was from a middle class family, considered well-to-do.

"This is an unforgettable story of England's battle and of a man's inner battle, both fighting with their backs to the wall. The love between Prue and Clive stands unshamed amid flames and ruins, affirmative in the face of death. As she walks through the streets of London after Clive's death, thinking of her child which will never know its father, death appears real to her for the first time.

"Without a father," she said, "but you are going to have a better England in which to live because we

Mrs. Hartman Entertains For Dr. Grace Ingledue

An enjoyable interlude in last week's crowded hours was the tea given by Mrs. Leo Hartman at her home in Fairview, which afforded the friends of Dr. Grace Ingledue an opportunity to drop in informally and chat leisurely while bidding Dr. Ingledue farewell before her departure for her home in Findlay, Ohio.

Mrs. Hartman presided most graciously over a beautifully appointed tea table laden with delicious confections.

Sibley-Brumfield Nuptials Announced

Of interest to a large circle of friends was the wedding of Miss Willy Sibley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Sibley of Natchitoches, and Kenneth Mosely Brumfield, son of Mrs. Victor Leslie Brumfield and the late Mr. Brumfield of Jonesboro.

The ceremony was performed in the Jonesboro Methodist church at 9 o'clock Sunday morning, August 31, with Rev. W. D. Milton, pastor, officiating in the presence of a few close friends and relatives. A selection of pre-nuptial music preceded the ceremony. "Wings of Song" and "Intermezzo" were played by Miss Edith Cox. The bride party entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, and during the ceremony Miss Cox played "Evening Star." The vows were exchanged before an altar banked with ferns and tall floor baskets of autumn flowers.

The bride was most attractive in a blue fall model with matching accessories. Her corsage was of white gardenias and stephanotis. The bride's only attendant was Mrs. Thomas J. Webb, sister-in-law of the groom, who also wore a blue ensemble. Her corsage was of white asters.

Mr. John Haile of Ansley was the groom's best man.

After the wedding a reception was held at the home of the groom's mother. Bouquets of blue and gold autumn flowers were placed at vantage points in the reception rooms. Mrs. Brumfield was assisted in receiving by her sister, Mrs. Edward A. Walters of Monroe.

The dining table was covered with a hand-drawn linen cloth and had as its central decor white asters and green fern. The wedding cake, bearing a miniature bride and groom, was embossed with white rosebuds and lilies of the valley.

Presiding over the silver coffee service was Miss Virginia Scheen of Monroe, cousin of the groom. Those assisting in the courtesies of the dining room were Misses Edith Cox, Edie Smart and Joyce Thompson of Baton Rouge.

Immediately after the reception the bride and bridegroom left on their wedding trip to the Ozark mountains in Arkansas. Upon their return they will be at home in Dubach, where Mr. Brumfield is a member of the Dubach High school faculty as instructor of vocational agriculture. The bride is serving as assistant home management supervisor for the Farm Security administration in Oak Grove, La. She is a graduate of Louisiana State Normal. Mr. Brumfield is a graduate of Louisiana State university.

Women Of Twin Cities Launch Auspicious Club Program For Coming Year

Brilliant Programs Highlight Meetings

Judging From The Enthusiasm Displayed At Initial Gatherings, Work Will Go Forward

Organized women of the Twin Cities launched their year's work auspiciously last week when every federated club met for the first time this season with brilliant programs featuring each meeting. Judging from the enthusiasm displayed at the initial meetings, the work will go forward with efficient continuity.

The first program of the year was outlined in their year book was enjoyed by members of the Current Literature club in the home of Mrs. John C. Best, with Mrs. J. Leon Dennis, co-hostess.

Mrs. J. M. Menefee, chairman of Junior club work, gave an interesting report on the work of the Junior Knitters club, which was organized and sponsored by the Current Literature club three months ago. She reported 78 sweaters, seven caps, five baby blankets, one child's dress and one overall as having been completed and turned into the Red Cross headquarters by its 70 members. Mrs. R. L. Conway, parliamentarian, led a short drill on "Words and Their Uses," all members taking part.

Mrs. Jordan Barton, publicity chairman, gave a short talk on "Why Publicity," saying in part:

"Publicity as defined by Webster is: 'Open knowledge of a community, without concealment.' Therefore, publicity is nothing more or less than the right to express our own opinion, to tell what we are doing, and to comment on what others are doing in our community, in our state, and in our nation, through the freedom of the press."

"One commentator defines publicity as 'the blood of a free nation.' Wedgewood as, 'the arteries carrying the life's blood of a free nation.' We as Americans enjoy that freedom as no other nation on earth, England is a democracy, but they do not have the freedom of the press that we enjoy in America."

"Do we realize the value of free speech, open press and publicity? We who have grown from childhood, as have our fathers and forefathers before us, enjoying freedom of speech and freedom of the press, refuse to believe that there are forces at work in our land, endeavoring to undermine and destroy these blessed privileges. But there are forces working day and night to undermine and destroy these very things."

"All of us are familiar with the trouble a well-known radio commentator, and columnist had recently when he dared to expose alleged un-American activities carried on by prominent people in our nation. This commentator branded these people as 'some Americans most Americans can do without.' Letters and telegrams poured into the sponsor's office protesting the use of this man's free speech and free press."

"Germany today has the most highly-organized system of publicity

of any other nation, but the guillotine is steeped in the blood of those who did nothing worse than to listen to a foreign broadcast, or to read a pamphlet dropped by an English plane.

"You ask what you as an individual can do to preserve this freedom? If we as members of this club pass a resolution, and each club in our state federation shares that same resolution, national federation shares that resolution and it is put before the lawmakers of our nation, it will have its effect. Thomas Jefferson once said: 'Better to have a newspaper without a government, than a government without a newspaper.' Napoleon said: 'I fear a newspaper more than three hundred thousand soldiers.'"

"Freedom of the press is a two-edged sword that can cut for the preservation or the destruction of our nation. According to Bernard McFadden, editor of Liberty magazine, 'the press is our first line defending the freedom of all Americans, and when it can be muzzled then the battle for liberty and democracy has already been lost.'"

Mrs. John Best reviewed the current book, "This Above All," saying in part:

"Here is a novel as real as the bombs over London, as deep and truthful as Britain's determination to fight and to win this war against human slavery. This Above All tells the story of the British conscience. Not the smug and frightened people in Munich and Spain, but of those who, betrayed a hundred times, still stuck it out when the moment came, ready to fight and to die for their country."

"It is not a gentle book and this is perhaps what makes the novel's worth: The author's conviction that Britain's war is the people's war against suppression; that a regime of lies and mass hysteria must not and cannot be fought with lies. Clive Briggs, the hero, does not stop thinking. If he must fight, he wants to know why. Clive is ready to sacrifice his life if he knows where he stands. Born in the slums, the illegitimate child of poor people, he went through all the humiliations of poverty and unemployment. After a trial of hunger and shame he was at last able to make a decent living. Then came the war. He fought in Dunkerque and Douai. He proved to be a remarkable soldier, brave, tough, enduring. He was a good soldier because he did not quit thinking."

"Throughout the book the lovers of this story, Clive and Prudence Cathaway try to think soundly and know the answers. These two were automatically drawn to each other. Prudence was from a middle class family, considered well-to-do.

"This is an unforgettable story of England's battle and of a man's inner battle, both fighting with their backs to the wall. The love between Prue and Clive stands unshamed amid flames and ruins, affirmative in the face of death. As she walks through the streets of London after Clive's death, thinking of her child which will never know its father, death appears real to her for the first time.

"Without a father," she said, "but you are going to have a better England in which to live because we

Sibley-Brumfield Nuptials Announced

Of interest to a large circle of friends was the wedding of Miss Willy Sibley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Sibley of Natchitoches, and Kenneth Mosely Brumfield, son of Mrs. Victor Leslie Brumfield and the late Mr. Brumfield of Jonesboro.

Mrs. Hartman Entertains For Dr. Grace Ingledue

An enjoyable interlude in last week's crowded hours was the tea given by Mrs. Leo Hartman at her home in Fairview, which afforded the friends of Dr. Grace Ingledue an opportunity to drop in informally and chat leisurely while bidding Dr. Ingledue farewell before her departure for her home in Findlay, Ohio.

Mrs. Hartman presided most graciously over a beautifully appointed tea table laden with delicious confections.

The ceremony was performed in the Jonesboro Methodist church at 9 o'clock Sunday morning, August 31, with Rev. W. D. Milton, pastor, officiating in the presence of a few close friends and relatives. A selection of pre-nuptial music preceded the ceremony, "Wings of Song" and "In-termezzo" were played by Miss Edith Cox. The bride party entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, and during the ceremony Miss Cox played "Evening Star." The vows were exchanged before an altar banked with ferns and tall floor baskets of autumn flowers.

The bride was most attractive in a blue fall model with matching accessories. Her corsage was of white gardenias and stephanotis.

The bride's only attendant was Mrs. Thomas J. Webb, sister-in-law of the groom, who also wore a blue ensemble. Her corsage was of white asters.

Mr. John Haile of Ansley was the groom's best man.

After the wedding a reception was held at the home of the groom's mother. Bouquets of blue and gold autumn flowers were placed at vantage points in the reception rooms. Mrs. Brumfield was assisted in receiving by her sister, Mrs. Edward A. Walters of Monroe.

The dining table was covered with a hand-drawn linen cloth and had as its central decor white asters and green fern. The wedding cake, bearing a miniature bride and groom, was embossed with white rosebuds and lilies of the valley.

Presiding over the silver coffee service was Miss Virginia Scheen of Monroe, cousin of the groom. Those assisting in the courtesies of the dining room were Misses Edith Cox, Elsie Smart and Joyce Thompson of Baton Rouge.

Immediately after the reception the bride and bridegroom left on their wedding trip to the Ozark mountains in Arkansas. Upon their return they will be at home in Dubach, where Mr. Brumfield is a member of the Dubach High school faculty as instructor of vocational agriculture.

The bride is serving as assistant home management supervisor for the Farm Security administration in Oak

Civic League Of West Monroe Holds Meeting

The Civic League of West Monroe held its monthly meeting in the rest and recreation room Friday afternoon. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. W. C. Curry, president. Mrs. O. N. Reynolds, Mrs. H. # Delta Beta Sigma Compliments Going-Away Students With Dinner Party

Colorful Affair Is Given By Sorority

Hawaiian Theme Carried Out In Dinner At Frances Terrace Honoring Departing Students

Vivid-colored blossoms, reminiscent of the Hawaiian Islands, were strewn with artistic hand down the full length of the dinner table in the Mirror Room of the Frances hotel, where members of the Delta Beta sorority entertained with a Hawaiian dinner party complimentary to members who now are leaving daily for college.

Bright colored leis swung from each chair and were worn later by the guests who selected a color to harmonize with her evening gown. Following the serving of the delicious four course dinner everyone joined hands in singing Aloha.

Miss Carolyn Husted, presiding as toastmistress, wore a bouffant evening model of white swiss sprinkled with flowers. She introduced the new president, Miss Bennie Hughes who wore a lovely aquamarine blue model of chiffon. The out-going president, Miss Barbara Faulk, wearing a white blouse with long, full skirt of flame colored net, was also introduced.

Others introduced at this time were Mrs. Clyde Paine, sorority mother; Mr. Edward Apperson, sorority advisor and the sponsor, Mrs. John Soelling. Three members of local fraternities, Aubrey Young, member of Delta Sigma, Artis Ponder, member of Sigma Phi Omega and J. H. McClendon, member of Phi Kappa, took a bow at this time. Three new sponsors, members of local fraternities, Billy Ensminger, Tim Tippit and Robert Goodlet, were introduced by Miss Husted.

Officers who will guide the destiny of Tau chapter, Delta Beta Sigma, during the coming year are: president, Bennie Hughes; first vice-president, Satchie Cooper; corresponding secretary, Sue Dickard; recording secretary, Martha McHenry; treasurer, Clarice Slagle; historian, Betty Ann Taylor; custodian, Cornelia McHenry; parliamentarian, Elizabeth Humble; sentinel, Vivian Harper; reporter, Jane Rhymes; sorority mother, Mrs. Clyde Paine; advisor, Edward Apperson.

Three local members of local fraternities, Tim Tippit, member of Delta Sigma, John Robert Goodlet, member of Sigma Phi Omega and Billy Ensminger, member of Phi Kappa, were named sponsors.

The dancing party on the terrace following dinner, was one of the most brilliant events of the entire summer. The Hawaiian theme was continued in the artistic decorations with deep yellows, crimson, gold and orange predominating in the colors. Wall brackets overflowed with hibiscus blossoms and the columns in every section of the terrace were entwined with blossoms of vivid hue. A bamboo screen partially hid the members of the orchestra from view. A moonlit effect, cleverly worked out by colored lights, was most engaging. The panorama was a bizarre one as viewed by the chaperones who occupied seats on the sidelines.

Delta Beta Sigma members attending the banquet and later the dancing party in company with their escorts were: Marjess Easter, Cornelia McHenry, Peggy Morrison, Sue Mary Moore, Evelyn Middleton, Mary Inabnet, Lucille Mosley, Virginia Newman, Charlotte Padgett, Jane Rhymes, Joyce Seigle, Betty Ann Taylor, Martha Thompson, Jessie Lee Touchstone, Elizabeth Wood, Ann Young, Martha Madden, Alice Brauer, Mary Edith Beard, Ann Burgess, Jeanette Clark, Satchie Cooper, Jean Carroll, Sue Dickard, Nan Drew, Irma Grant, Ensminger, Barbara Faulk, Gene Flournoy, Laura Flournoy, Ada Ellis Girault, Dorothea Girault, Betty Jean Hardeman, Vivian Harper, Bennie Hughes, Elizabeth Humble, Evelyn Ader, Jo Eleanor Thompson, Louise Rinehart, Fay Todd, Margaret Ann Harper, Martha Roddy, Betty Finberg, Laura Louise Patton, Carolyn Husted, Beverly Peavy, Sybil Daughtry, Doris Beasley, "Tweetie" Myers. Sponsors present were Billy Ensminger, Tim Tippit, Artis Ponder, Aubrey Young, John Robert Goodlet.

Others present were Mrs. Clyde Paine, sorority mother, and Mr. Edward Apperson, sorority advisor, and Mrs. Apperson.

Federation To Convene Here During November

Red letter days for club women in this city and the fifth district will be November 6, 7 and 8 when the annual convention of the Louisiana Federation of Women's club will take place in Monroe at Hotel Frances.

Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, first vice-president for the Louisiana Federation and hostess chairman for the convention, called a meeting recently of all the Federated club presidents, and with their cooperation, worked out plans for a three-day convention session. The clubwomen of the Fifth district will also serve as hostesses during the convention, with Mrs. Leola Mixon, Fifth district president, as general chairman.

The highlight of the convention will be the presence of the national president, Mrs. John L. Whitehurst. Mrs. Whitehurst will deliver an address on Friday night, choosing as her subject, "Women in Defense." A patriotic dinner will be held in her honor on the Virginia roof.

The convention headquarters will be at Hotel Frances and registration will begin there on Thursday afternoon, November 6. Thursday night will be president's night and an informal reception will be held at this time and everyone will be given a chance to meet district and club presidents from all over the state. There will also be a song fest Thursday night, according to Mrs. J. Norman Coon, state chairman of music for Louisiana, and in conclusion, there will be a one-act play presented by Monroe talent. The play has been written by Miss Anne Riley Nesom, state chairman of poetry for Louisiana. The fine arts department, with Mrs. B. B. Fortnberry of Baton Rouge, chairman, will have an exhibit of fine arts during the convention and this department head urges that all of those desirous of entering, to have their entries at the hotel not later than November 6.

Opera Club Holds Its First Meeting Of Fall

The Opera Club held the first meeting of the new year Thursday morning in the home of Mr. E. R. Whitaker, with Mrs. R. O. Ware, co-hostess.

The hostesses stood to greet their guests against a background of beautiful crimson roses. Greetings and felicitations were extended as club members were reunited.

Upon arrival the guests were served sandwiches and frosted punch by Mrs. John Best.

After a brief social period Mrs. Whitaker, the president, called the meeting to order. The Club Collect was read in union after which the club song "Louisiana" was sung. Mrs. V. S. Garnett served in the capacity of secretary, due to the absence of Mrs. P. A. Pong. Roll call was made and dues collected. A new member, Mrs. Alma Woodham, was welcomed.

Mrs. E. C. Gibson gave an interesting discussion on the program to be given this year and also explained the clever and unusually attractive Year Books.

The "Life of Verdi" was given in detail by Mrs. V. S. Garnett. She said in part:

"Giuseppe Verdi was born in Roncole, a French province in Italy, on October 10, 1813. His parents possessed no known musical ability. His father being an innkeeper, his mother a spinner.

"Giuseppe grew up to be a very serious child and his one absorbing thought was to know music. He received the first rudiments of a musical education from the village organist, and made such progress that he was able to succeed his dead master.

"Later in Milan he distinguished himself when he took over Hayden's Creation because the conductor took flight due to insufficient rehearsals. "Verdi was married in 1835. A son and daughter were born, but soon after his troubles began. His little boy became ill and died from an illness the doctors were unable to determine, and in a few days the little girl, in turn, fell ill and died. As if this was not enough even his wife fell violently ill and a third coffin left his home in barely two months time. This, indeed, was a most tragic time for Verdi and he had just signed a contract to write a Comic Opera.

"He resolved never to compose again but of course, this resolution was broken. His first Libretto entitled, "Nebuchadnezzar" was played in 1842. The soprano was Guiseppeina Streppini, who later became his second wife.

From this time on he became most successful, and even at the age of eighty, he composed a Comic Opera, "Falstaff," which was most remarkable.

"Other familiar operas composed by Verdi are: Rigoletto, Il Travatore, La Traviata, and Aida. In all his works, he composed thirty operas.

"Verdi was the master and moulder of Italian musical thoughts for half a century."

Mrs. C. R. Tidwell and Mrs. W. F. Hornberger led the discussion and held an open forum for the members. Members enjoying this most interesting program were: Mrs. John C. Best, Mrs. P. A. Colvin, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Miss Clara Freiberg, Mrs. V. S. Garnett, Mrs. E. C. Gibson, Mrs. W. F. Hornberger, Mrs. J. C. Kramer, Mrs. B. B. Martin, Mrs. Paul Newman, Mrs. C. W. Oseland, Mrs. C. R. Pedigo, Mrs. L. V. Tarver, Mrs. C. R. Tidwell, Mrs. R. O. Ware, and Mrs. E. R. Whitaker.

Miss Green Weds Rev. James Elder

Claiming the interest of friends in this section of the state was the marriage September 3 of Miss Lois Green, daughter of Mrs. John S. Green and the late John Green of Bastrop, and Rev. James Elder of Leesville, Ky. son of Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt Elder of New Orleans.

The impressive candlelit ceremony took place at the First Baptist church of Bastrop with the pastor, Rev. H. M. Bennett, officiating. The altar and choir loft was decorated with pink flowers and entwined with English ivy. In the background cathedral tapers burned in tall white candelabra.

A program of pre-nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. J. B. Spier, who wore a gold jersey model with corsage of purple asters. The soloist, Miss Jeanette Page, wearing a high organza model with corsage of pink

Trip To Old Family Home Is Made By Brinsmades

When H. H. Brinsmade and daughter, Miss Eleona Brinsmade, motored east on their vacation they visited members of their family they hadn't seen for years.

The main object of the eastern trip was to visit Washington, Conn., the birthplace of Mr. Brinsmade. Washington is a quiet old New England town, 90 miles from New York, where members of the Brinsmade family have been closely identified with the civic, social and cultural life for generations.

Mr. Brinsmade's great-grandfather, Rev. Daniel Brinsmade, graduate of Yale, occupied the pulpit in the first Congregational church for 50 years. This church celebrated its 200th anniversary during the month of August with a colorful pageant. Mr. Brinsmade and Miss Brinsmade were among the most interested spectators on this occasion.

The costumes worn by those who impersonated the early day church members and pastors were reminiscent of colonial days.

This church, with its historic background, occupies a prominent place in the life of its members, many of whom are wealthy New Yorkers who maintain summer homes in Washington. One of the finest organs in the state of Connecticut has been installed in this church. It is interesting to note that one of the recent pastors was Tertius Van Dyke, son of Henry Van Dyke, noted writer and former ambassador to the Netherlands.

Mr. Brinsmade and Miss Brinsmade also enjoyed a visit in New York City and visited places of interest in the New England states during their absence.

Thomas Royster To Wed Miss Eleanor Badger

Affectionate interest is centered in the following announcement appearing in a Raleigh, N. C., newspaper of recent date:

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Badger announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Eleanor, to Lieutenant Thomas Royster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Royster of Raleigh, N. C.

The announcement is of particular interest to a host of friends in this city where Mrs. Royster is remembered as Miss Olivette Broadway, who was a reigning belle in Monroe during her girlhood. Mrs. Gladys Speer, who is Mrs. Royster's sister, plans to attend the wedding in company with her son, Burt Speer, who will be a member of the wedding party.

Lieutenant Royster at the present time is stationed with the amphibian tractor detachment, United States Marine Corps, at Dunedin, Fla. He received his B. A. degree from the University of North Carolina.

Delta Beta Sigma Compliments Going-Away Students With Dinner Party

Colorful Affair Is Given By Sorority

Hawaiian Theme Carried Out In Dinner At Frances Terrace Honoring Departing Students

Vivid-colored blossoms, reminiscent of the Hawaiian Islands, were strewn with artistic hand down the full length of the dinner table in the Mirror Room of the Frances hotel, where members of the Delta Beta sorority entertained with a Hawaiian dinner party complimentary to members who now are leaving daily for college.

Bright colored leis swung from each chair and were worn later by the guests who selected a color to harmonize with her evening gown. Following the serving of the delicious four course dinner everyone joined hands in singing Aloha.

Miss Carolyn Husted, presiding as toastmistress, wore a bouffant evening model of white swiss sprinkled with flowers. She introduced the new president, Miss Bennie Hughes who wore a lovely aquamarine blue model of chiffon. The out-going president, Miss Barbara Faulk, wearing a white blouse with long, full skirt of flame colored net, was also introduced.

Others introduced at this time were Mrs. Clyde Paine, sorority mother; Mr. Edward Apperson, sorority advisor and the sponsor, Mrs. John Snelling. Three members of local fraternities, Aubrey Young, member of Delta Sigma Phi Omega and J. H. McClendon, member of Phi Kappa, took a bow at this time. Three new sponsors, members of local fraternities, Billy Ensminger, Tim Tippit and Robert Goodlet, were introduced by Miss Husted.

Officers who will guide the destiny of Tau chapter, Delta Beta Sigma, during the coming year are: president, Bennie Hughes; first vice-president, Satchie Cooper; corresponding secretary, Sue Dickard; recording secretary, Martha Madden; treasurer, Clarice Slagle; historian, Betty Ann Taylor; custodian, Cornelia McHenry; parliamentarian, Elizabeth Humble; sentinel, Vivian Harper; reporter, Jane Rhymes; sorority mother, Mrs. Clyde Paine; advisor, Edward Apperson.

Three local members of local fraternities, Tim Tippit, member of Delta Sigma, John Robert Goodlet, member of Sigma Phi Omega and Billy Ensminger, member of Phi Kappa, were named sponsors.

The dancing party on the terrace following dinner, was one of the most brilliant events of the entire summer.

The Hawaiian theme was continued in the artistic decorations with deep yellows, crimson, gold and orange predominating in the colors. Wall brackets overflowed with hibiscus blossoms and the columns in every section of the terrace were entwined with blossoms of vivid hue. A bamboo screen partially hid the members of the orchestra from view. A moonlit effect, cleverly worked out by colored lights, was most engaging.

The panorama was a bizarre one as viewed by the chaperones who occupied seats on the sidelines. Delta Beta Sigma members attending the banquet and later the dancing party in company with their escorts were: Marness Easter, Cornelia McHenry, Peggy Morrison, Sue Mary Moore, Evelyn Middleton, Mary Inabnet, Lucille Mosley, Virginia Newman, Charlotte Padgett, Jane Rhymes, Joyce Seigle, Betty Ann Taylor, Martha Thompson, Jessie Lee Touchstone, Elizabeth Wood, Ann Young, Edith Madden, Alice Brauer, Mary Edith Breard, Ann Burgess, Jeanette Clarkson, Satchie Cooper, Jean Carroll, Sue Dickard, Nan Drew, Irma Grant, Ensminger, Barbara Faulk, Gene Flournoy, Laura Flournoy, Ada Ellis Girault, Dorothea Girault, Betty Jean Hardenman, Vivian Harper, Bennie Hughes, Elizabeth Humble, Evelyn Ader, Jo Eleanor Thompson, Louise Rinehart, Fay Todd, Margaret Ann Harper, Martha Roddy, Betty Fimberg, Laura Louise Patton, Carolyn Husted, Beverly Peavy, Sybil Daughtry, Doris Beasley, "Twetie" Myers. Sponsors present were Billy Ensminger, Tim Tippit, Artie Ponder, Aubrey Young, John Robert Goodlet.

Others present were Mrs. Clyde Paine, sorority mother, and Mr. Edward Apperson, sorority advisor, and Mrs. Apperson.

Federation To Convene Here During November

Red letter days for club women in this city and the fifth district will be November 6, 7 and 8 when the annual convention of the Louisiana Federation of Women's club will take place in Monroe at Hotel Frances.

Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, first vice-president for the Louisiana Federation and hostess chairman for the convention, called a meeting recently of all the Federated club presidents and with their cooperation, worked out plans for a three-day convention session. The clubwomen of the Fifth district will also serve as hostesses during the convention, with Mrs. Leola Mixon, Fifth district president, as general chairman.

The highlight of the convention will be the presence of the national president, Mrs. John L. Whitehurst. Mrs. Whitehurst will deliver an address on Friday night, choosing as her subject, "Women In Defense." A patriotic dinner will be held in her honor on the Virginia roof.

The convention headquarters will be at Hotel Frances and registration will begin there on Thursday afternoon, November 6. Thursday night will be president's night and an informal reception will be held at this time and everyone will be given a chance to meet district and club presidents from all over the state. There will also be a song fest Thursday night, according to Mrs. J. Norman Coon, state chairman of music for Louisiana, and in conclusion, there will be a one-act play presented by Monroe talent. The play has been written by Miss Anne Riley Nesom, state chairman of poetry for Louisiana. The fine arts department, with Mrs. B. B. Fortinberry of Baton Rouge, chairman, will have an exhibit of fine arts during the convention and this department head, urges that all of those desirous of entering, to have their entries at the hotel not later than November 6.

Trip To Old Family Home Is Made By Brinsmades

When H. H. Brinsmade and daughter, Miss Eleona Brinsmade, motored east on their vacation they visited members of their family they hadn't seen for years.

The main object of the eastern trip was to visit Washington, Conn., the birthplace of Mr. Brinsmade. Washington is a quiet old New England town, 90 miles from New York, where members of the Brinsmade family have been closely identified with the civic, social and cultural life for generations. Rev. Daniel Brinsmade, grandfather of Yale, occupied the pulpit in the first Congregational church for 50 years. This church celebrated its 200th anniversary during the month of August with a colorful pageant. Mr. Brinsmade and Miss Brinsmade were among the most interested spectators on this occasion.

The costumes worn by those who impersonated the early day church members and pastors were reminiscent of colonial days.

This church, with its historic background, occupies a prominent place in the life of its members, many of whom are wealthy New Yorkers who maintain summer homes in Washington. One of the finest organs in the state of Connecticut has been installed in this church. It is interesting to note that one of the recent pastors was Tertius Van Dyke, son of Henry Van Dyke, noted writer and former ambassador to the Netherlands.

Mr. Brinsmade and Miss Brinsmade also enjoyed a visit in New York City and visited places of interest in the New England states during their absence.

Thomas Royster To Wed Miss Eleanor Badger

Affectionate interest is centered in the following announcement appearing in a Raleigh, N. C., newspaper of recent date:

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Badger announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Eleanor, to Lieutenant Thomas Royster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Royster of Raleigh, N. C.

Opera Club Holds Its First Meeting Of Fall

The Opera Club held the first meeting of the new year Thursday morning in the home of Mr. E. R. Whitaker, with Mrs. R. O. Ware, co-hostess.

The hostesses stood to greet their guests against a background of beautiful crimson roses.

Greetings and felicitations were extended as club members were reunited.

Upon arrival the guests were served sandwiches and frosted punch by Mrs. John Best.

After a brief social period Mrs. Whitaker, the president, called the meeting to order. The Club Collect was read in unison after which the club song "Louisiana" was sung. Mrs. V. S. Garnett served in the capacity of secretary, due to the absence of Mrs. P. A. Poag. Roll call was made and dues collected. A new member, Mrs. Alma Woodham, was welcomed.

Mrs. E. C. Gibson gave an interesting discussion on the program to be given this year and also explained the clever and unusually attractive Year Books.

The "Life of Verdi" was given in detail by Mrs. V. S. Garnett. She said in part:

"Giuseppe Verdi was born in Roncole, a French province in Italy, on October 10, 1813. His parents possessed no known musical ability. His father being an innkeeper, his mother a spinner.

"Giuseppe grew up to be a very serious child and his one absorbing thought was to know music. He received the first rudiments of a musical education from the village organist, and made such progress that he was able to succeed his dead master.

"Later in Milan he distinguished ### himself when he took over Hayden's Creation because the conductor took fright due to insufficient rehearsals.

"Verdi was married in 1835. A son and daughter were born, but soon after his troubles began. His little boy became ill and died from an illness the doctors were unable to determine, and in a few days the little girl, in turn, too, fell ill and died. As it was not enough even his wife fell violently ill and a third coffin left his home in barely two months time. This, indeed, was a most tragic time for Verdi and he had just signed a contract to write a Comic Opera.

"He resolved never to compose again but of course, this resolution was broken. His first Libretto entitled, "Nabuccadnezzar" was played in 1842. The soprano was Giuseppe Stroppini, who later became his second wife.

From this time on he became most successful, and even at the age of eighty, he composed a Comic Opera, "Falstaff," which was most remarkable.

"Other familiar operas composed by Verdi are: Rigoletto, Il Traviatore, La Traviata, and Aida. In all his works, he composed thirty operas.

"Verdi was the master and moulder of Italian musical thoughts for half a century."

Mrs. C. R. Tidwell and Mrs. W. F. Hornberger led the discussion and held an open forum for the members. Members enjoying the discussion were: Mrs. John C. Best, Mrs. P. A. Colvin, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Miss Clara Freiberg, Mrs. V. S. Garnett, Mrs. E. C. Gibson, Mrs. W. F. Hornberger, Mrs. J. C. Kramer, Mrs. B. B. Martin, Mrs. Paul Newman, Mrs. C. W. Oseland, Mrs. C. R. Pedigo, Mrs. L. V. Tarver, Mrs. C. R. Tidwell, Mrs. R. O. Ware, and Mrs. E. R. Whitaker.

Miss Green Weds Rev. James Elder

Claiming the interest of friends in this section of the state was the marriage September 3 of Miss Lois Green, daughter of Mrs. John S. Green and the late John Green of Bastrop, and Rev. James Lyn Elder of Louisville, Ky., son of Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt Elder of New Orleans.

The impressive candlelit ceremony took place at the First Baptist church of Bastrop with the pastor, Rev. H. M. Bennett, officiating. The altar and choir loft was banked with pink althea and entwined with English ivy. In the background cathedral tapers burned in tall white candelabra.

A program of musical music was rendered by Mrs. J. B. Spier, who wore a gold jersey model with corsage of purple asters. The soloist, Miss Jeanne Page, wearing a blue organza model with corsage of pink

Beadles-Robert Rites Held In Baton Rouge

Wedding Uniting Capital City And Monroe Families Claims Interest Of Friends Here

Claiming the interest of friends in this city is the following announcement appearing in the Baton Rouge State Times:

The wedding of Miss Katherine Perkins Robert and Mr. Charles Edward Beadles of Monroe took place recently in a simple home ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. James Jehu Robert, on North Boulevard.

Miss Robert has lived here all her life and is a general favorite in the young society. Mr. Beadles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Beadles of Monroe. He has been recently stationed in Pampa, Tex.

Preceding the ceremony Dr. Robert, Clarke sang "My Word." Miss Fannie Tarver at the piano softly played the Schubert "Serenade" and Miss Iva Perkins, cousin of the bride, beautifully sang "Because."

The bridal party descended the stairs of the center hall to the strains of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin. The Schumann "Traumerei" was softly played through the ceremony, which was read by Dr. J. J. Norris, pastor of the First Baptist church.

The stair rail was twined with festoons of plumosa fern interspersed with white marguerite chrysanthemums. At the foot of the stairs a tall basket held white gladioli and asters mingled with plumosa fern.

An aisle was formed by beauty baskets of the gladioli and asters to the improvised altar at the end of the library, where the bridal party stood. A white carpet was laid from the foot of the stairs to the altar.

The altar was placed beneath an arch of white wrought-iron between tall classic pillars surmounted by urns of white asters and fern. The arch was of Gothic design, and was placed against a background of tall palms. A cluster of palm-top palms was at the back of the altar. At either side of the arch with its classic pillars were all seven-branched candelabra of white wrought iron, which furnished the illumination for the impressive ceremony.

The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore her mother's wedding gown, which was worn also by her sister, Mrs. Frank Forrest Morrill, in her wedding. Her veil was formerly worn by Mrs. Morrill, the former Frances Cecilia Robert.

The wedding gown, made by a French modiste in New Orleans in 1907, is of narrow ivory lace and crepe de chine. The bodice is made entirely of rows of fine hand-made French lace insertion, ending in a high-boned collar. The full skirt is of ivory crepe de chine made with panels of the lace insertion, straight and slender at the front and falling into a full train at the back.

The waistline had a sash of old ivory satin, gathered in a bow at the back. The three-quarters sleeves of ivory lace were at the shoulders and fitted below the elbow. The veil was of ivory illusion made waist-length and circular, flowing from a tiara of orange blossoms.

She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of ivory-white American Beauty roses and fern tied with ivory ribbon. The gold brooch which she wore at the high collar was one which belonged to her grandmother, the late Frances Robert. Her bracelet was of old gold with a single topaz set in blue enamel filigree, which belonged to her great-great-grandmother.

She had as her matron of honor Mrs. Joseph Perkins of Jackson, Miss. Iva Perkins, Mrs. Harold S. Meeks, Mrs. Pessie Samuel of Fairhaven plantation at Irene, Miss. William A. Robert, Mrs. Robert T. Clarke and Mrs. Jewel L. Bates.

The tea girls, who were formal frocks, were Elizabeth Sue Beadles, the bridegroom's sister, of Monroe; Mrs. Arnold Carl Matthews, Pauline Nichols, Mary Elizabeth Street of New Orleans; Barbara Bell, Mae Taylor, Mrs. Jack Jones of New Orleans, and Mrs. W. P. Hennigan.

For traveling Mrs. Beadles wore a tall model of antique gold crepe with stitching in metallic thread. Her accessories were of seal brown. Her hat was one of the new models worn at the back of the head with an irregular halo brim and a short veil.

The young couple will go first to New Orleans, then motor through the Ozarks to Hot Springs and Oklahoma City, after which they will make a leisurely trip through Colorado and New Mexico.

They will make their home in Texas for the present.

The bride is a graduate of Louisiana State university and received her master's degree in sociology at Smith college and at L. S. U. She is a member of the Chi Omega fraternity, of Alpha Gamma Delta, honorary society, and of Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity.

Mr. Beadles is a graduate of L. S. U. and a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. He belongs to Sigma Tau Sigma, national engineering fraternity, and is a member of the American Society of Engineers and is a civil engineer for the Magnolia company.

Mrs. Morrill, who, since her marriage, has resided in South Barre, Miss. Her gown was of antique gold taffeta, the very long fitted bodice gathered by shirring up the front, ending in a heart-shaped neckline. The full three-quarters sleeves were gathered by a row of the shirring. The gown had a full peplum in bustle effect of the taffeta, and the very full circular skirt swept the floor.

She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of chrysanthemums in shades of russet and gold, with the gold predominating. Her tiara of pom-pom chrysanthemums was in the same shades.

The other attendants were Miss Bessie Samuel of Irene, Miss Ellen Rolston, Mrs. W. Floyd Williamson, a cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Lea Stamper Thompson of Monroe and Baton Rouge.

They wore gowns made identical to that of the matron of honor, with the tightly-fitted bodice and full bustle effect, of maize yellow taffeta. Their bouquets were of huge chrysanthemums, with the russet shades predominating, tied with gold tulle, and they wore in their hair narrow tiaras of the pom-pom chrysanthemums to match their bouquets.

The little flower girl was Almena Meeks, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold S. Meeks, a cousin of the bride. She wore a dress made similar to that of the other attendants, of yellow taffeta, and carried a white basket of rose petals.

Mr. Lea Stamper Thompson of Monroe and Baton Rouge was Mr. Beadles' best man. Dr. Agrippa Gayden Robert, the bride's brother, of Saranac Lake, N. Y., was a groomsmen, as was Mr. Beadles' brother, Mr. Glenn Beadles, of Monroe.

The men in the bridal party wore white tuxedos and boutonnieres of white roses.

Guests gathered in the living room, where the mantel was banked with greenery and had tall vases of white gladioli and asters at either side.

Receiving with the bridal party were the bride's mother, Mrs. J. J. Robert, and the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beadles of Monroe.

Mrs. Robert was wearing heavenly blue with a bodice of lace and a skirt of crepe in the same shade. Her corsage was of gold chrysanthemums. Mrs. Beadles was in dark blue lace with a wide girdle of velvet in the same shade. She too wore gold chrysanthemums.

The bride's table was laid in the dining room. The cloth was of ivory Pointe Venise lace. The tiered bridal cake formed the centerpiece, resting on a plaque of white bride's roses and fern, from which extended many narrow white satin streamers to which the traditional bride favors were attached, to be drawn by the wedding party before the cake was cut.

At the punch bowls were Mrs. Thomas Joseph Perkins of Jackson, Miss. Iva Perkins, Mrs. Harold S. Meeks, Mrs. Pessie Samuel of Fairhaven plantation at Irene, Miss. William A. Robert, Mrs. Robert T. Clarke and Mrs. Jewel L. Bates.

The tea girls, who were formal frocks, were Elizabeth Sue Beadles, the bridegroom's sister, of Monroe; Mrs. Arnold Carl Matthews, Pauline Nichols, Mary Elizabeth Street of New Orleans; Barbara Bell, Mae Taylor, Mrs. Jack Jones of New Orleans, and Mrs. W. P. Hennigan.

For traveling Mrs. Beadles wore a tall model of antique gold crepe with stitching in metallic thread. Her accessories were of seal brown. Her hat was one of the new models worn at the back of the head with an irregular halo brim and a short veil.

BETROTHAL ANNOUNCED . . .

The engagement of Miss Peggy McCrary, lovely young daughter of Mrs. Pauline McCrary, to Mr. Henry Allen Buie, son of Mrs. Annie Buie and the late Henry A. Buie of Rayville, is formally announced today.

Miss Peggy McCrary To Marry Henry Buie

Wedding Of Popular Young Couple To Be Solemnized In John Guerriero Home On Sept. 28

Brides-to-be are sharing honors with students who are now departing for college. One bride-elect in particular, Miss Peggy McCrary, lovely daughter of Mrs. Pauline McCrary, whose engagement to Mr. Henry Allen Buie is formally announced today, will be the central figure at prenuptial affairs throughout her engagement days.

Miss McCrary, popular member of Monroe's younger set, is a prominent figure in Beta Delta sorority circles. She is a graduate of the Neville High school.

Mr. Buie, well known in this city as a prominent young business man of Rayville, is a graduate of Claiborne-Hunt college and attended Soule college, New Orleans.

The marriage of Miss McCrary and Mr. Buie, characterized by simplicity, will take place September 28 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Guerriero.

A. J. Cronin's New Book Still Tops Best-Sellers

Still topping the best-seller list is A. J. Cronin's new book, "The Keys of the Kingdom," which features the magnificent character, Father Francis, a Scotch priest. The story tells of his Twisted youth, of the tragic event that led him to take holy orders, and of his effective missionary work in a remote Chinese village.

Another new book gaining in popularity each day at the library is "The Sun Is My Undoing," by Marguerite Steen. This novel covers three generations, and depicts the lives of heroes, lovers and adventurers. The setting begins in Bristol when young Matthew Flood, driven from the arms of his bride-to-be, embarks on an African slave-ship that is to cover half the globe.

Other new fiction are: "All Quiet Flows the Don" and "The Don Flows Home to the Sea," by Mikhail Sholokhov; "Shelter," by Jane Nicholson; "Bird of the Wilderness," Vincent Sheean; "Men Working," John Faulkner; "Island in the Corn," John Selby; "Barry Me Before You Go," Ursula Parrott; "Snow Goose," Paul Gallico; "Fried Murder," Howard Lindsay; "I Am Saxon Ashes," a fingerprint mystery; and "Murdered But Not Dead," Anne Austin.

Two interesting biographies recently added are: "Catherine of Aragon," by Garrett Mattingly and "Elizabeth, England's Modern Queen," by Cornelia Spencer. The latter biography, written primarily for young people, but also enjoyed by adults, gives the life of the present queen of England.

Other new non-fiction are: "I Was a Nazi Flier," Gottfried Leske; "America Prepares for Tomorrow," William Boutwell; "An Island Patchwork,"

home of Mrs. Clay Olbon. The new president, Mrs. James Harbuck, introduced each of the officers for the coming year. Two new members, Mrs. Oliver Lowery and Mrs. Dan Gilbert, were introduced and welcomed into the club by the president.

During the business session, it was decided by the club to aid the Welcome Branch club with its three-week project of entertaining the soldiers. Mrs. Clay Olbon is the chairman of this committee.

Mrs. Wesley C. Ekholm, program chairman, introduced the speakers for the afternoon. They were Mrs. R. M. Cook, who gave the club some interesting views and opinions on the historical meeting of Winston Churchill and Franklin Roosevelt at sea, and Mrs. Oliver Lowery, who, from her subject of interesting personalities, chose the life of William Randolph Hearst.

A delicious refreshment course was served to the following members: Mesdames Clyde C. Blanchard, W. Cecil Blanchard, R. M. Cook, Wesley C. Ekholm, Dan Gilbert, Jimmy Harbuck, W. F. Hemler, Burl Hollis, J. Holt, Mike John, Jr., Raymond John, R. C. Kester, Henry Loch, Oliver Lowery, E. L. Marchman, G. L. Morgan and the hostess, Mrs. Clay Olbon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Grayson of Delta, La., announce the recent marriage of their daughter, Mildred Odene, to Ellis Paxton Hancock, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Hancock, of Vicksburg, Miss.

Mrs. Hancock is connected with the Farm Security Administration in Jonesville.

Welcome Branch Book Club In First Meeting

The Welcome Branch Book club held its first meeting of the season Wednesday afternoon in the Mirror room of Hotel Frances, with Mrs. Zell Smith, Mrs. F. J. Prendergast, Mrs. A. L. Vandergriff, Mrs. G. D. Holland and Mrs. Wesley C. Ekholm, co-hostesses.

Mrs. Ekholm, president, presided over the business meeting. At this time a national defense department was created with Mrs. F. E. Black, chairman.

The following committees were appointed: Agriculture, Mrs. Fred Tesche; aviation, Mrs. J. T. Eubank; conservation of defense projects, Mrs. Adair Smith; industry, Mrs. George Feibus; housing, Mrs. Bob Burns; nursing and nutrition, Mrs. A. E. Kilpatrick; recreation, Mrs. W. E. Sander; registration, Mrs. A. E. Loyd; stamps and bonds, Mrs. A. L. Vandergriff.

The following were thanked for helping with the U. S. O. drive: Mrs. Joseph Winkler, Jr., Mrs. A. L. Vandergriff, Mrs. Sam Campbell, Mrs. A. E. Kilpatrick, Mrs. A. E. Loyd and Mr. Albert Speer, Jr.

The club will sponsor a recreation center at 804 South Grand street for the soldiers, which will be called "The Welcome Branch Soldier Center." Mrs. W. S. Sander, chairman of the recreation department, and Mrs. J. D. Petty will be in charge of this project.

The corresponding secretary acknowledged the resignation of Mrs. D. H. Duncan as first vice-president, and Mrs. J. T. Eubank was elected to fill the office.

Mrs. L. V. Tarver, poet laureate of the club, read her poem "God Bless Our President." Mrs. H. V. Collins, department chairman of international relations, introduced the guest speaker, George M. Sillings, Jr., by William L. Shirer. The book was written from the knowledge and experiences that Mr. Shirer gained while a news reporter in Germany. Mr. Sillings divided the book into five parts: Picture of Hitler, reference to the German army, navy and air forces, a picture of moves and gains made by Hitler, propaganda and the censoring unit.

Berlin Diary leaves the reader with a clear knowledge of the international relations inside Germany, he said.

Refreshments were served to the following members: Mrs. F. E. Black, Mrs. Harvey Callender, Mrs. Sam Campbell, Mrs. H. V. Collins, Mrs. P. B. Collins, Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Clyde Redigo, Mrs. J. D. ## Beadles-Robert Rites Held In Baton Rouge

Wedding Uniting Capital City And Monroe Families Claims Interest Of Friends Here

Claiming the interest of friends in this city is the following announcement appearing in the Baton Rouge State Times:

The wedding of Miss Katherine Perkins Robert and Mr. Charles Edward Beadles of Monroe took place recently in a simple home ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. James Jehu Robert, on North Boulevard.

Miss Robert has lived here all her life and is a general favorite in young society. Mr. Beadles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Beadles of Monroe. He has been recently stationed in Tampa, Tex.

Preceding the ceremony Dr. Robert Clarke sang "My Word." Miss Fannie Tarver at the piano softly played the Schubert "Serenade," and Miss Iva Perkins, cousin of the bride, beautifully sang "Because."

The bridal party descended the stairs of the center hall to the strains of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin. The Schumann "Traumerei" was softly played through the ceremony, which was read by Dr. J. Norris Palmer, pastor of the First Baptist church.

The stair rail was twined with festoons of plumosa fern interspersed with white marguerite chrysanthemums. At the foot of the stairs a tall beauty basket held white gladioli and asters mingled with plumosa fern.

An aisle was formed by beauty baskets of the gladioli and asters to the improvised altar at the end of the li- brary, where the bridal party stood. A white carpet was laid from the foot of the stairs to the altar.

The altar was placed beneath an arch of white wrought-iron between arch classic pillars surmounted by urns of white asters and fern. The arch was of Gothic design, and the background of the altar was a large painting of a landscape. At either side of the altar, a tall candelabra of white wrought iron, which furnished the illumination for the impressive ceremony.

The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore her mother's wedding gown, which was worn also by her sister, Mrs. Frank Forrest Morrill, in her wedding. Her veil was formerly worn by Mrs. Morrill, the former Frances Octavia Robert.

The wedding gown, made by a French modiste in New Orleans in 1907, is of narrow ivory lace and crepe de chine. The bodice is made entirely of ivory lace, and the skirt is of ivory crepe de chine made with panels of the lace insertion, straight and slender at the front and falling into a full train at the back.

The waistline had a sash of old ivory satin, gathered in a bow at the back. The three-quarter sleeves of the gown were wide at the shoulder and fitted below the elbow.

The veil was of ivory illusion made of tulle and circular, flowing from a tiara of orange blossoms. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of ivory-white American Beauty roses and fern tied with ivory ribbon. The gold brooch which she wore at the high collar was one which belonged to her grandmother, the late Frances Robert. Her bracelet was of old gold with a single topaz set in blue enamel filigree, which belonged to her great-great-grandmother.

She had as her matron of honor

Mrs. Morrill, who, since her marriage, has resided in South Barre, Mass. Her gown was of antique gold taffeta, the very long fitted bodice gathered by a shirring up the front, ending in a heart-shaped neckline. The full three-quarter sleeves were gathered by a row of the shirring. The gown had a full peplum in bustle effect of the taffeta, and the very full circular skirt swept the floor.

She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of chrysanthemums in shades of russet and gold, with the gold predominating. Her tiara of pom-pom chrysanthemums was in the same shades.

The other attendants were Miss Bessie Samuel of Irene, Miss Ellen Rolston, Mrs. W. Floyd Williamson, a cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Lea Stamper Thompson of Monroe and Baton Rouge.

They wore gowns made identical to that of the matron of honor, with the tightly-fitted bodice and full bustle effect, of maize yellow taffeta. Their bouquets were of huge chrysanthemums, with the russet shades predominating, tied with gold tulle, and they wore in their hair narrow tiaras of the pom-pom chrysanthemums to match their bouquets.

The little flower girl was Almena Meeks, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold S. Meeks, a cousin of the bride. She wore a dress made similar to that of the other attendants, of yellow taffeta, and carried a white basket of rose petals.

Mr. Lea Stamper Thompson of Monroe and Baton Rouge was Mr. Beadles' best man. Dr. Agrippa Gayden Robert, the bride's brother, of Saratoga Lake, N. Y., was a groomsman, as was Mr. Beadles' brother, Mr. Glenn Beadles, of Monroe.

The men in the bridal party wore white linens and boutonnières of white roses.

Guests gathered in the living room, where the mantel was banked with greenery and had tall beauty vases of white gladioli and asters at either side.

Receiving with the bridal party were the bride's mother, Mrs. J. J. Robert, and the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beadles of Monroe.

Mrs. Robert was wearing heavenly blue with a bodice of lace and a skirt of crepe in the same shade. Her corsage was of gold chrysanthemums. Mrs. Beadles was in dark blue lace with a wide girdle of velvet in the same shade. She too wore gold chrysanthemums.

The bride's table was laid in the dining room. The cloth was of ivory Pointe Venise lace. The tiered bridal cake formed the centerpiece, resting on a plaque of white bride's roses and fern, from which extended many narrow white satin streamers to which the traditional bridal favors were attached, to be drawn by the wedding party before the cake was cut.

At the punch bowls were Mrs. Thomas Joseph Perkins of Jackson, Miss Iva Perkins, Mrs. Harold S. Meeks, Mrs. Bessie Samuel of Fairhaven plantation at Irene, Mrs. William A. Rolston, Mrs. Robert T. Clarke and Mrs. Jewel L. Bates.

The tea girls, who wore formal frocks, were Elizabeth Sue Beadles, the bridegroom's sister, of Monroe; Mrs. Arnold Carl Matthies, Pauline Nichols, Mary Elizabeth Street of Norwood, Barbara Bell, Mae Taylor, Mrs. Jack Jones of New Orleans, and Mrs. W. P. Hennigan.

For traveling Mrs. Beadles wore a fall model of antique gold crepe with stitching in metallic thread. Her accessories were of seal brown. Her hat was one of the new models worn at the back of the head with an irregular halo brim and a short veil.

The young couple will go first to New Orleans, then motor through the Ozarks to Hot Springs and Oklahoma City, after which they will make a leisurely trip through Colorado and New Mexico.

They will make their home in Texas for the present.

The bride is a graduate of Louisiana State university and received her master's degree in sociology at Smith college and at L. S. U. She is a member of the Chi Omega fraternity, of Alpha Gamma Delta, honorary sorority, and of Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity.

Mr. Beadles is a graduate of L. S. U., and a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. He belongs to Sigma Tau Sigma, national engineering fraternity, and is a member of the American Society of Engineers and is a civil engineer for the Magnolia company.

BETROTHAL ANNOUNCED...

The engagement of Miss Peggy McCrary, lovely young daughter of Mrs. Pauline McCrary, to Mr. Henry Allen Buie, son of Mrs. Annie Buie and the late Henry A. Buie of Rayville, is formally announced today.

Miss Peggy McCrary To Marry Henry Buie

Wedding Of Popular Young Couple To Be Solemnized In John Guerriero Home On Sept. 28

Brides-to-be are sharing honors with students who are now departing for college. One bride-elect in particular, Miss Peggy McCrary, lovely daughter of Mrs. Pauline McCrary, whose engagement to Mr. Henry Allen Buie is formally announced today, will be the central figure at pre-nuptial affairs throughout her engagement days.

Miss McCrary, popular member of the Beta Delta sorority circles, is a graduate of the Neville High school.

Mr. Buie, well known in this city, is a prominent young business man of Rayville. He is a graduate of Chamberlain-Hunt college and attended South College, New Orleans.

The marriage of Miss McCrary and Mr. Buie, characterized by simplicity, will take place September 28 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Guerriero.

A. J. Cronin's New Book

Still Tops Best-Sellers

Still topping the best-seller list is A. J. Cronin's new book, "The Keys of the Kingdom," which features the magnificent character, Father Francis, a Scotch priest. The story tells of his Twentieth youth, of the tragic event that led him to take holy orders, and of his effective missionary work in a remote Chinese village.

Another new book gaining in popularity each day at the library is "The Sun Is My Undoing," by Marguerite Steen. This novel covers three generations, and depicts the lives of heroes, lovers and adventurers. The setting begins in Bristol when young Matthew Flood, driven from the arms of his bride-to-be, embarks on an African slave-trade that is to cover half the globe.

Other new fiction are: "All Quiet Flows the Don" and "The Don Flows Home to the Sea" by Mikhail Sholokhov; "Shelter," Jane Nicholson; "Bird of the Wilderness," Vincent Sheen; "Men Working," John Selby; "Marry Me Before You Go," Ursula Parrott; "Snow Goose," Paul Gallico; "Fowl Murder," Howard Lindsay; "I Am Saxon Ashe," a fingerprint mystery; and "Murdered But Not Dead," Anne Austin.

Two interesting biographies recently added are: "Catherine of Aragon," by Garrett Mattingly and "Elizabeth, England's Modern Queen," by Cornelia Spencer. The latter biography, written primarily for young people, but also enjoyed by adults, gives the life of the present queen of England.

Other new non-fiction are: "I Was a Nazi Flier," Gottfried Leske; "America Prepares for Tomorrow," William Boutwell; "An Island Patchwork,"

home of Mrs. Clay Olbon. The new president, Mrs. James Harbuck, introduced each of the officers for the coming year. Two new members, Mrs. Oliver Lowery and Mrs. Dan Gilbert, were introduced and welcomed into the club by the president.

During the business session, it was decided by the club to aid the Welcome Branch club with its three-week project of entertaining the soldiers. Mrs. Clay Olbon is the chairman of this committee. Mrs. Wesley C. Eckholm, program chairman, introduced the speakers for the afternoon. They were Mrs. R. M. Cook, who gave the club some interesting views and opinions on the historical meeting of Winston Churchill and Franklin Roosevelt at sea, and Mrs. Oliver Lowery, who, from her subject of interesting personalities, chose the life of William Randolph Hearst.

A delicious refreshment course was served to the following members: Mesdames Clyde C. Blanchard, W. Cecil Blanchard, R. M. Cook, Wesley C. Eckholm, Dan Gilbert, Jimmy Harbuck, W. F. Hemler, Burl Hollis, X. Holt, Mike John, Jr., Raymond John, R. C. Kester, Henry Loeb, Oliver Lowery, E. L. Marchman, G. L. Morgan and the hostess, Mrs. Clay Olbon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Grayson of Delta, La., announce the recent marriage of their daughter, Mildred Odette, to Ellis Paxton Hancock, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Hancock, of Vicksburg, Miss.

Mr. Hancock is connected with the Farm Security Administration in Jonesville.

Welcome Branch Book Club In First Meeting

The Welcome Branch Book club held its first meeting of the year Wednesday afternoon in the Mirror room of Hotel Frances, with Mrs. Zell Smith, Mrs. F. J. Prendergast, Mrs. A. L. Vandergriff, Mrs. G. D. Holland and Mrs. Wesley C. Eckholm, co-hostesses.

Mrs. Eckholm, president, presided over the business meeting. At this time a national defense department was created with Mrs. F. E. Black, chairman.

The following committees were appointed: Agriculture, Mrs. Fred Teache; aviation, Mrs. J. T. Eubank; conservation of defense projects, Mrs. Adair Smith; industry, Mrs. George Phebus; housing, Mrs. Bob Burns; nursing and nutrition, Mrs. A. E. Kilpatrick; recreation, Mrs. W. E. Sandel; registration, Mrs. A. E. Loyd; stamps and bonds, Mrs. A. L. Vandergriff.

The following were thanked for helping with the U. S. O. drive: Mrs. Joseph Winkler, Jr., Mrs. A. L. Vandergriff, Mrs. Sam Campbell, Mrs. A. E. Kilpatrick, Mrs. A. E. Loyd and Mrs. Albert Speer, Jr.

The club will sponsor a recreation center at 804 South Grand street for the soldiers, which will be called "The Welcome Branch Soldier Center." Mrs. W. S. Sandel, chairman of the recreation department, and Mrs. J. D. Petty will be in charge of this project.

The corresponding secretary acknowledged the resignation of Mrs. D. H. Duncan as first vice-president, and Mrs. J. T. Eubank was elected to fill the office.

Mrs. L. V. Tarver, poet laureate of the club, read her poem "God Bless Our President." Mrs. H. V. Collins, department chairman of international relations, introduced the guest speaker, George M. Snellings, Jr., by William L. Shirer. The book was written from the knowledge and experiences that Mr. Shirer gained while a news reporter in Germany. Mr. Snellings divided the book into five parts: Picture of Hitler, reference to the German army, navy and air forces, a picture of moves and gains made by Hitler, propaganda and the censoring unit.

Berlin Diary leaves the reader with a clear knowledge of the international relations inside Germany, he said.

Refreshments were served to the following members: Mrs. F. E. Black, Mrs. Harvey Callender, Mrs. Sam Campbell, Mrs. H. V. Collins, Mrs. P. B. Collier, Mrs. Henson Coon, Mrs. A. R. Doughty, Mrs. Wesley C. Eckholm, Mrs. J. T. Eubank, Mrs. V. S. Garnett, Mrs. E. C. Gibson, Mrs. Ralph H. B. Gibson, Mrs. J. G. Hicks, Mrs. G. D. Holland, Mrs. W. F. Hornberger, Mrs. A. E. Kilpatrick, Mrs. A. E. Loyd, Mrs. Jack Masur, Mrs. Harry Moore, Mrs. Charles W. Moore, Mrs. Clyde B. Peigo, Mrs. J. D. Petty, Mrs. J. F. Prendergast, Mrs. J. S. Prichard, Mrs. W. E. Sandel, Mrs. Dean Selig, Mrs. H. R. Saenger, Mrs. Zell Smith, Mrs. Albert Speer, Mrs. Adair Smith, Mrs. Charles S. Swain, Mrs. L. V. Tarver, Mrs. A. L. Vandergriff, Mrs. Joseph Winkler, Jr., and Mrs. Paul T. Wright.

Miss Mignon Terral And Vann L. Pratt Married

At an impressive ceremony Saturday evening, August 30, in the home of Rev. L. J. Hastings of Monroe, Miss Mignon Terral, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Terral of Farmville, became the bride of Vann L. Pratt of Baton Rouge.

The bride was attractively attired in brown and white ensemble with harmonizing accessories. She wore a shoulder corsage of pink and white lilies.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Mildred Turner of Gilbert.

Mr. J. N. Reeves of Bernice served as best man.

The bride is a member of the 1941 graduating class of Louisiana Polytechnic Institute and was a member of Kappa Delta, national social sorority.

The groom also is a graduate of Louisiana Tech, is now connected with the department of internal revenue in this city.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left for a brief wedding trip to New Orleans. After their return they will make their home in Monroe.

Mr. Ralph L. Matthews of Sicily Island and Baton Rouge announces the marriage of his sister, Miss Mary Lucille Matthews to Mr. Charles Lee Seal of Sicily Island, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Seal and the late Mrs. Lula Seal.

The nuptials were quietly solemnized the afternoon of Friday, August 29, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Herbert, Baton Rouge, with the Rev. J. Bateman, pastor of the first Baptist church, officiating. A program of pre-nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Dora Day, violinist.

The bride wore a stone blue model with rust accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Mrs. W. A. Prescott, the groom's sister, was the bride's only attendant. Leon Herbert, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Following the ceremony there was an informal reception. Receiving with the wedding party were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Matthews, Jr., Mr. C. S. Seal, Mrs. L. Herbert, and Mesdames Elton Murphy and Irving Foote.

The couple left after the reception for a brief wedding trip and returned later to Ruston where they will reside.

A wedding of interest to many friends in north Louisiana was that of Miss Mavis Emmons of Dodson, La., and Mr. Douglas Bickley of Bastrop, which was solemnized on August 19 at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Morelle Emmons, of Simsboro.

The bride wore a beige wool dress with brown accessories. Her corsage was of orchids.

The double ring ceremony was read by Rev. L. P. Moreland of the Simsboro Methodist church. Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for New Orleans after which they will be at home in Bastrop where the groom is employed by Louisiana Power and Light company and the bride is a member of the Bastrop Grammar school faculty.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding included Mrs. Lula W. Emmons, Mr.

BETROTHAL ANNOUNCED...

Miss Mary Cecil Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Edwards, whose engagement to Lieutenant Phil T. Dunning, Jr., of Monroe, La., stationed at Esler Field, La., is of interest.

Miss Edwards Engaged To Wed Lieut. Dunning

Marriage Will Take Place October 10 At The Home Of Bride's Parents In Alabama City

Of more than passing interest to a host of friends in Monroe is the announcement of the approaching marriage of Lieutenant Phil T. Dunning, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Dunning of this city, to Miss Mary Cecil Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Edwards of Montgomery, Ala.

The marriage will take place October 10 at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Edwards, who is lovely and charming, is a graduate of the Lanier High school and attended Huntingdon College. She is a member of Theta Kappa Gamma sorority.

Lieutenant Dunning received his higher education at Louisiana Tech and is a member of Beta Sigma fraternity. He was commissioned in the United States army from Maxwell field and is now stationed at Esler field.

Of interest to friends is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Clara Mae Noble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Noble of Mangham, to Mr. Adrian C. Bowden, son of Jack Bowden of Winnboro, at the home of Rev. Dana Terry in Winnboro, on Saturday, August 30.

The bride wore a navy blue ensemble with harmonizing accessories and a corsage of sweetheart roses. For something old, she wore the same ring worn by her mother and grandmother when they were married.

Misses Bessie and Lucille Noble served their sister as attendants.

Mr. William Douglas Bowden served as best man.

The bride is a member of the 1941 graduating class of Mangham High school.

The bridegroom is now stationed at Camp Polk in Leesville where the couple will make their home in the near future.

Every person that is renting a house is ACTUALLY paying for a home . . . somebody else's home . . . and is paying their landlord MORE in rent than the actual monthly payments would be if they were buying the home.

You can become the owner of your own home. You can have up to 25 years to pay for it and the monthly installments on your OWN home will give you a better, more modern home than you are now living in at less than you are now paying for rent.

Fill out the coupon on this page and we'll endeavor to help you get started on the road to home ownership.

Here's a compact plan that will be economical to build and will afford lots of living for somebody seeking a small home of their own. The small dining alcove insulates the large living room from the kitchen. Plenty of cross-ventilation will make the two large bedrooms comfortable even on the hottest of nights. The attached garage adds to the beauty of this house, but it can be built detached if so desired. This is a plan that is well within the reach of those families with a small income.

Atheneum Club Holds First Meeting Of Year

Northeast Junior College Lounge Is Scene Of Gathering; Miss Doerr Gives Review Of Struther's Work

Members of the Atheneum Club held their first meeting of the new club year in Northeast Junior College lounge, with Mrs. W. C. Curry and Mrs. Dale Cobb, hostesses.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. W. C. Curry, when the club collected was repeated in union: "Grant, O Lord, that we meet in kindness of spirit, wideness of vision and unity of purpose. Let our counsel be undivided and sincere; our decisions prompted only by wisdom and equity. May we lose self in searching for the good of all. Invest with the courage to protest that which is wrong and to do that which is right. Let us be generous with praise of honest effort as well as accomplishment. Transform any bitterness or envy into fellowship and good will. Endow each of us with contagious smile, a kind word and worthy thought. Bequeath us, O Lord, that gratitude which is akin to joy; and let us ever remember that thou art God."

In cooperation with the General Federation of Women's clubs the following chairmen were appointed: Citizenship, Mrs. Fred Grant; American home department, Mrs. Mack Hamilton; education department, Mrs. H. H. McClendon; fine arts department, Mrs. W. C. Fazel; international relations department, Mrs. Louise Averett; legislation department, Mrs. George Mercer; press and publications department, Mrs. T. Gallien; public welfare department, Mrs. D. L. Nicol; advisory board on public health, Agnes Dickerson.

Mrs. C. C. Miller, program chairman, introduced the speakers. The program for this month was "No Islands Anymore." Miss Beulah Doerr reviewed Jan Struther's "The Glass Blower and Other Poetry." She said: "There is a simplicity about her poems which make them delightful reading; there is much beauty of figurative language; a sense of humor also shows up in several of her poems."

"Quoting from part of her poem, 'Summer Time Ends,' gives an idea of the contents of the book:

"You need not turn a leaf
In this small book, whose brief
Leconic notes make up
Of the year's delight and grief,
To see in black and white
What bone has felt, heart known."

"Miss Jan Struther is equally at home in prose or poetry, as is noted after reading 'Miss Minever' and 'Glass Blower.'"

In conclusion Miss Doerr read the poem "Biography," which is Miss Struther's philosophy of life:

One day my life will end; and lest Some whim should prompt you to review it,
Let her who knows the subject best
Tell you the shortest way to do it:
Then say, "Here lies one doubly blest."
Say, "She was happy." Say, "She knew it."

Mrs. Fred Grant reviewed Nevil Shute's "Landfall," a story of the R. A. F. depicting the courage and stamina of England.

She said:
"This story is an old one—boy meets girl—in a setting as new as this morning's paper."

"Nevil Shute writes novels because he likes to. By vocation he is an aeronautical engineer and knows his subject well. He writes simply, directly and honestly of things he knows thoroughly. He knows England—changed and changing. He knows the two services—air and navy—that have had most to do so far with the battle of Britain."

"He knows the temper of the young men who are today flying the channel for Britain, the steered purpose, the light, unconquerable gaiety, and he knows how, death hazards notwithstanding, youth must and will be served with the joy and understanding and happiness of love. He knows, also, the strain imposed in a war like this by waiting, prepared and keeping prepared. And he knows how to build a story mounting page by page in suspense. All this first-hand knowledge, white hot from feeling but coolly disciplined by art, has gone into 'Landfall.'"

"It is a story behind the censored news, if not the story of actual events, the story of the sort of thing that has been happening, told with British understatement but not the less believable for that."

"Anyone interested in the Britain of today will enjoy these two books—'The Glass Blower,' by Jan Struther, and 'Landfall,' by Nevil Shute."

The hostesses served delicious refreshments from a beautifully appointed tea table adorned with a plaque of early fall roses.

Members present were Mesdames C. C. Miller, Fred M. Grant, T. Gallien, Harry Schroeder, George Mercer, J. C. Moore, S. D. Kennedy, Mack Hamilton, A. L. Dickerson, Agnes Dickerson and D. L. Nicol, and Miss Beulah Doerr and the hostesses.

Miss Evelyn Smith, bride-elect of S. L. Cummins whose wedding will take place September 14 was entertained with a delightful shower at the home of Mrs. Clarence Crow with Mrs. Ben Jordan, Mrs. Jim Sevier, Mrs. Lewis Collins, hostesses. The guests were received by Mrs. Sevier and Mrs. Crow in the living room decorated with bright autumn flowers. The gifts were displayed in the dining room.

Mrs. Collins read an original poem dedicated to the bride which was followed by an article, "Spilling Your Husband" read by Mrs. James Goodwin. This was followed by a musical game directed by Mrs. Goodwin. Guests were then served punch and open-face sandwiches from the two-draped refreshment table centered with pink roses and clematis, flanked by white lilies.

The bride-elect wore a turquoise and navy model trimmed with gold buttons and her mother, Mrs. Petty, wore a black crepe model.

Those attending the affair were Miss Evelyn Smith, Mrs. Gaines Byram, Mrs. J. B. Petty, Mrs. Cordes Wilkerson, Miss Fay Watts, Mrs. Lewis Collins, Miss Lee Elmo Renfrow, Mrs. Ira Baxter, Mrs. Fred Munsel, Mrs. J. E. Monis, Mrs. J. Blount, Mrs. James Goodwin, Mrs. Ben Jordan, Mrs. Betty Sevier, Mrs. LeBlanc, Mrs. W. R. Boper, Mrs. James Sevier, Mrs. Ruth Gossett, Miss Betty Byram, Miss Mary Murphy and Mrs. Crow.

Monroe Literary Club Begins Year's Program

'Woman's Place In The World,' Subject For Season, Inspires Delightful Paper

"Woman's Place in the World" the subject selected by members of the Monroe Literary Club for this year's study, inspired a delightful paper presented by Mrs. R. O. Ware when the season's program was launched last week in the home of Mrs. P. H. Butler.

Mrs. R. N. Barron, president, who will guide the destiny of the club this year, presided during the brief business session. Two new members, Mrs. W. M. Mitchell and Mrs. H. A. Scott, were welcomed.

Mrs. P. E. Massey, national defense chairman, spoke briefly on the part the club will play in the defense program.

Mrs. Ware, speaking of "Women In Poetry," said:

"Many attempts have been made to define poetry for the layman. Some have sought to set it down as figures of speech or metric measures; others, a vague groping among soft sounding words for spiritual expressions were made for a select few. In a contest of Miss Wilkinson's Poetry club a prize was awarded for the best definition of poetry to Annie L. Laney who defined it:

"The magic light that springs
From the deep soul of things
When called by their true names,
Their essence is set free:
The word, illuminate,
Showing the soul's estate,
Baring the hearts of men;
Poetry!"

Mrs. Ware spoke of several well-known women poets, among whom were the following:

"Amy Lowell who was born in Brookline, Mass. on February 9, 1874, and was educated in various private schools in Boston. No biographical presentation could be complete without including the statement that her genealogical tree presents the names of James Russell Lowell, the poet, who was a cousin of Miss Lowell's grandfather; Professor Percival Lowell, the astronomer, and President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University. There have been many kinds of nature poets, but none exactly like Miss Lowell. She is the poet of that nature which is the product of landscape gardening and architecture. As we go through her pages we find ourselves in old secluded gardens where fountains play into cool basins, paths wind among statues and flowering shrubbery and marble steps lead to shady garden seats. Her poems are sweet-scented with narcissus.

"Ella Wheeler Wilcox, who had so wide a newspaper circulation, was a woman whose prolific pen made her known to thousands of people who would hardly be classed as orthodox poets. Miss Wilcox was born in Johnston, Centre, Wis. in 1855. She was graduated from the University of Wisconsin and married Robert M. Wilcox in 1884. She died abroad in 1920.

"Few poets of today are so fortunate in selecting titles for their respective works as Margaret Widdemer. Her volume of verse 'The Old Road to Paradise' has music in its name. Miss Widdemer has written no finer poem than the one from which this book takes its title. Margaret Widdemer was born in Doylestown, Penn., and was educated at home. She is a popular novelist, as well as poet.

"Mary Carolyn Davies has been called, appropriately enough, 'the poet of girlhood,' not because she writes about girls, but because she has a girl's way of feeling life. Her poetry is full of innocent remarks, eager, impulsive, wondering outcries, whimsies half childlike, half womanly. Captious critics may demand of her a greater consciousness, more symmetry of design, greater depth of feeling. But wild flowers do not grow on trellises and I, for one, am content to like her poetry for what it is. When I read it I sometimes think of those shy, plucky, imperfect, but thoroughly delightful little blossoms that grow in the rocks of high mountains. Miss Davies went to school in Oregon and to college in California and at New York University.

"Aline Kilmer's 'Candles That Burn' are simple lyrics, clear and serene, 'the lovely illumination of tapers in a twilight room.' The widow of Joyce Kilmer shows herself a poet, too, and although she sings out of sorrow, hers are songs of hope and hopeful beauty. In her second book, 'Vigils,' there is fresh evidence of her gift of lyric simplicity. Here one finds a satisfactory growth and a fresh demonstration of ability to handle both meter and words. Admirers of Miss Zona Gale's verse have found in it a Keatslike quality—something of the same feeling which he always inspires of being in a twilight valley buried deep in foliage while innumerable harmonious little threads of water drip down from the rocks. Miss Gale's first book of poems, 'The Secret Way,' was published in 1921, and while it is a book that could draw a ribbon, it was written during a period of years, it is her ability as a novelist that seems to me most important. The creator of 'Miss Lulu Bett' is satisfying as a poet, perhaps, but splendid in her powers of novelist.

"'Renaissance,' written by Edna St. Vincent Millay in 1912, evidenced the advent of an American poet who promised genius. Since then Miss Millay has written many poems and Time found her in full possession of a poetic art of rare and exquisite beauty. Her place seems secure as one of our finest and most gifted lyric singers—a singer who is simple to the point of plainness but at the same time possesses passionate beauty and enviable craftsmanship. Miss Millay was born on February 22, 1892, at Rockland, Me., and spent practically her entire childhood in New England. She was graduated from Vassar College in 1917. In commenting on Miss Millay's earlier work it is conceded that she is, first, a natural poet. She has added to this natural quality a richness of words, a keen analytical sense and ability to differentiate between the beautiful thought and that which is only sentimental. Many have said that Miss Millay's poems are 'sung as a pagan out of nature' and again that she is mistress of 'pessimism that sparkles.'

When Ladies Meet' Opens Engagement At Paramount

lovely Greer Garson, in the smartest comedy to strike the screen in a long time. Robert Taylor is in love with Joan Crawford, who is keen on Herbert Marshall, who . . .

in turn is married to Greer Garson; Joan and Greer become friends—not knowing the ramifications brewing. A lighthearted comedy of tangled loves and bewildered lovers.

Melvyn Douglas is starred in "Our Wife," opening Thursday at the Paramount, with Ruth Hussey, Ellen Drew, John Hubbard and Charles Coburn, and playing for three gala days through Saturday. Here is a gay comedy with all the laughs of the year rolled into a lot of smart fun.

Crawford, Taylor In Comedy Hit

Greer Garson And Herbert Marshall Also In Cast Of Film

JOAN CRAWFORD, Robert Taylor, Greer Garson and Herbert Marshall come to the screen as a notable all-star cast in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "When Ladies Meet," opening today at the Paramount theater. Based on Rachel Crothers' stage play, one of the big successes of Broadway, it is a lighthearted comedy of tangled loves and bewildered lovers, directed by Robert Z. Leonard.

Miss Crawford plays a sentimental woman novelist, loved by Taylor. She "falls" for Herbert Marshall, her publisher. The jealous Taylor gets an idea and arranges for Miss Crawford and Miss Garson, who plays Marshall's wife, to meet. Not knowing they are love rivals, the two women become great friends.

Amid hilarious situations, Miss Crawford confides in Miss Garson and tells of her infatuation. Then Marshall enters the scene and fur begins to fly. Miss Garson says that this last flirtation with her friend is too much—much too much. She quits Marshall, who suddenly has discovered that he really loves his own wife. Taylor acts as Cupid and brings them together again.

The story is played in ultra-modern New York settings and in one of the most attractive homes ever designed for the screen. It represents an old mill which has been rebuilt into a charming cottage while still keeping the effect of the old mill, which dates back to Colonial times. Miss Crawford and Miss Garson both wear ultra-modern fashions, created by Adrian.

Robert Z. Leonard and Orville O. Dull produced.

Mary Roberts Rinehart's "23½ Hours' Leave," with Terry Walker and James Ellison, is the Thursday "by request" entertainment at the Capitol. This is the Saturday Evening Post comedy masterpiece.

Today and Monday, "Moon Over Miami" in glorious Technicolor. Don Ameche and Robert Cummings gaze approvingly at Betty Grable, Carole Landis and Cobina Wright, who are prominently featured along with Charlotte Greenwood and Jack Haley.

'Moon Over Miami' At Capitol Now

MIAMI, the glamour city of the South, with its swaying palms, gleaming white beaches, and incredibly blue lagoons, provides the background for the music, laughter and romance of the year's most elaborate technicolor musical. Appropriately titled "Moon Over Miami," the 20th Century-Fox hit teams Don Ameche and Betty Grable for the second time. The romantic duo of "Down Argentine Way" shares top-billed billing with Robert Cummings.

Coming today to the Capitol theater, "Moon Over Miami" is the gay, tune-filled tale of two sisters, Betty Grable and Carole Landis, and their aunt, Charlotte Greenwood, who invest their $5,000 inheritance in the hope of realizing big dividends. It's an original sort of investment—a holiday fling complete with expensive clothes and a luxurious suite at a swanky Miami Beach hotel. The expected dividends—a millionaire husband for Betty, Betty poses as an heiress, Carole as her secretary, and Charlotte as her personal maid. The threesome is more than successful when Betty hooks not one, but two millionaires, Don Ameche and Robert Cummings—who she thinks

You can almost see the green in their eyes as Ginger Rogers' three suitors in "Tom, Dick and Harry" look at each other with that "wish-you-were-far-away" look. Ginger Rogers, courted by Burgess Meredith, George Murphy and Alan Marshall, makes swell entertainment Wednesday and Thursday at the Capitol.

A scene in "White Legion," playing today, Monday and Tuesday at the Joy theater.

Don, the one she falls for, turns out to be a play-boy fortune hunter bent on the same mission.

She then kidnaps herself into believing that she loves Bob, a bona fide millionaire. But before they can marry, Don turns up and the stage is set for a finale which is refreshingly different.

Not only does "Moon Over Miami" boast of a star-studded cast which includes Jack Haley and Cobina Wright, Jr., but there are in addition eight hit tunes by master tunesmiths Leo Robin and Ralph Blum. You are sure to come out whistling one of these smash hits: "Kindergarten Congo," "Hurrah for Today," "Miami," "I've Got You All To Myself," "Loveliness and Love," "You Started Something," "Is That Good," and "Solitary Seminoles." To top these off are spectacular dance routines directed by Hermes Pan, who also appears in the "Kindergarten Congo" number with Betty Grable. An unusual dance, the "Seminoles Legend," features Jack Cole, one of the nation's finest interpreters

LOCAL CHEST IS MATERNITY AID

Cases Of Emergency Are Handled Through Funds From Organization

One of the most important agencies that is receiving financial aid through the Community chest here, according to Mrs. Mary Mullis, executive secretary, is the Monroe Maternity Welfare clinic, sponsored by the Catholic Daughters of America. This fund chest has proved its value many times over to clinic patients endeavoring to meet economic changes that continually beset them from time to time.

One such case is cited, when the recipient has been accorded much needed aid.

Mrs. A., with two small children, four and six years old, husband draws a wage of $44.10 per month. They were managing their affairs in their small way and preparing against the arrival of a third child.

A sudden change in the mother's condition brought immediate need for a special and expensive medicine. There was no money with which to purchase the medicine, so essential to the well-being of the mother, and which would be required for several weeks, perhaps months. The condition of the mother, if not helped, could become such as to cause a complete collapse, bringing another problem to her household.

Also, the unborn child would have been born seriously handicapped, to become an extra care for its parents and a possible future burden to the community.

The allocation from the Community chest to the maternity clinic for emergency medicine being one of the several named needs, was used in this case to provide the needed medicine for this mother, with the result of a happy state of mind and a rapidly improved note in her health, and a reasonable assurance of the birth of a healthy baby.

And on this phase of welfare work goes from the emergency fund special medicine, special food, special maternity care, a very special work administered through funds provided year to year from the Twin City Community chest.

UNHAPPY CHOICE FACED BY HITLER

Believed Certain To Lose Battle Of Atlantic In Any Event

By Richard L. Turner
WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(The World Special News Service)—President Roosevelt has presented Adolf Hitler with a simple choice.

The Nazi dictator can withdraw his submarines and surface raiders from the seas, or risk a naval war with the United States—a war such as he is hardly prepared to wage.

A fateful decision has been offered him, one that may affect the shape of American and of world history for years to come.

And, whatever his choice, the long run, eventual result will, as administration spokesmen see it, be the same.

If he withdraws his submarines, the battle of the Atlantic is won. American goods can flow freely to Great Britain.

With the help of American war materials and food supplies, American long-range bombers and American protective fighting planes, England, it has been said many times, will eventually win the war.

If the Nazi U-boats continue to menace the sea lanes they must pit themselves against the combined strength of the British and American navies—an unequal struggle that can have but one result.

And again the sea lanes are open for American supplies flowing to England and a British victory is facilitated.

Thus, the president's announcement of Thursday evening that Axis warships would be sunk on sight if they venture into waters considered vital to American defense, could easily prove one of the most decisive factors of the war.

A military and diplomatic stroke of the first importance, it also carried with it elements of the "war of nerves" which Germany used with striking success to prepare her victims for Nazi conquest.

Mr. Roosevelt told the Axis to keep its warships out of American defense zones or have them sunk. But he did not say nor even intimate just what the boundaries of those zones were or would be.

Secretary Hull explained later that they would be fixed by the actions of Germany herself. The Nazis, he said, are engaged in a campaign of world-wide conquest. American defense efforts must follow the same broad gauge.

Obscure though his language was, his meaning was clear enough. America is reserving the right to say whether the appearance of a Nazi submarine anywhere on all the seas of all the world menaces American security, the decision to be based upon developments now unforeseen and the progress and direction of the Nazi campaign of conquest.

The result is that Hitler cannot dispatch his U-boats to any point outside their German harbors without a jittery wonder as to whether, no matter where they are going, they will there be stepping on the toes of the United States and become the targets of the guns and depth charges of the American fleet.

All this, and the apparent discomfiture of the Japanese was facilitated by the great Nazi blunder of marching into Russia. The Russo-German war apparently is destined to run through the winter at least, instead of becoming the quick victory which Hitler expected it to be. The consequences of this miscalculation are, like the defense zones, world-wide.

In sparring with the United States, a principal Hitler weapon has been Japan—the possibility that if the United States should become involved with Germany in the Atlantic, this country would find itself simultaneously involved with Japan in the Pacific.

But Hitler cut himself off from Japan when he attacked Russia. He made Russia a wall standing between himself and his Far Eastern Axis member. He also made Russia a potential enemy of Japan. The latter has not a single friend left among her neighbors. She is surrounded and isolated. So she has been asking for terms, and more moderate influences have taken control at Tokyo.

Mr. Roosevelt could face Hitler with the comfortable knowledge that if the worst came to the worst he probably would not have to deal with a second enemy in the Pacific.

There are dangers of war in the new course. Mr. Roosevelt was the first to acknowledge that. But it depends now on what Hitler does.

"The sole responsibility rests upon Germany," Mr. Roosevelt said. "There will be no shooting unless Germany continues to seek it."

Movies low-brow? Ha! Shakespeare's classics have been adapted some 47 times since nickelodeon days, Romeo and Juliet heading the list with seven versions.

U. S. Navy Band Tops All Others In United States

Announcement Of Outfit's Appearance Here Meets With Quick Response

Announcement of the coming to Monroe on October 17 of the United States navy band has met with instantaneous response throughout the Twin Cities and also throughout north Louisiana as no previous appearance of the band here is recalled and it ranks as "tops" among bands in the United States. The Teflis Grotto, Masonic group, is sponsoring the appearance here of this unusually fine musical organization and is backing its selection of this band with a guarantee of much more than $1,000.

There will be two performances, one in the afternoon at a greatly reduced price and the one at night, also at popular price. Appearance of this band is being advertised throughout the entire area of north Louisiana and thousands of people are expected to come to Monroe to enjoy the unusual opportunity afforded. The Chamber of Commerce also is backing the project to the extent of using its influence to secure record-sized crowds. The United States band is heard at regular intervals over the networks of both the Columbia and National broadcasting companies. The Hour of Memories program, which has been a radio feature for eight consecutive years, and is broadcast at 1 p.m., central standard time, on Mondays, never fails to result in an avalanche of mail from radio fans in all parts of the world. Over half a hundred recordings, preserving for years to come the music of the navy band, are listed in the Brunswick catalogue of phonograph records.

The year 1937 added a bright and interesting chapter to the glowing history of the achievements of Lieutenant Benter and the navy band, when, as guests of the Canadian national ex-

The acclaim with which they were received, both by press and public will be all the more appreciated by glancing over the historical record of band music in Canada. In the background are observed the military band schools of England, heralded as among the finest in the world. Graduates of these schools migrate to the Dominion, musicians from Canada serve overseas, thus transplanting traditions of the mother country.

The grand old custom of holding band concerts, a custom which has been popular in England since 1818, has played an important role in increasing public understanding of and love for band music. Through the years these increased, and in 1935, there were 222 such contests in England. Year after year the best bands of the British empire have been selected to play at the Canadian National exhibition in Toronto. In the year of the last coronation, the United States navy band was the honored guest of Canada and twice daily for two weeks gave concerts in the magnificent band shell at the exhibition, besides appearing in parades and pageants.

Glowing tributes were paid in the Canadian press to the merits of navy band. Among other things press stated:

"Obviously this extraordinary navy band is something to hear, rave about, for we have not heard its like before and shall not again."

"Mr. Benter's musical interpretations have the authority of music ship in the highest and the pretensions of disciplined imagination."

People of north Louisiana are have a real treat in store when nation's greatest band appears in cert here next month, music is conceded.

Cases Of Emergency Are Handled Through Funds From Organization

One of the most important agencies that is receiving financial aid through the Community chest here, according to Mrs. Mary Mullis, executive secretary, is the Monroe Maternity Welfare clinic, sponsored by the Catholic Daughters of America. This fund, she stated, has proved its value many times over to clinic patients endeavoring to meet economic changes that continually beset them from time to time.

One such case is cited, when the recipient has been accorded much needed aid.

Mrs. A., with two small children, four and six years old, husband draws a wage of $44.10 per month. They were managing their affairs in their small way and preparing against the arrival of a third child.

A sudden change in the mother's condition brought immediate need for a special and expensive medicine. There was no money with which to purchase the medicine, so essential to the well-being of the mother, and which would be required for several weeks, perhaps months. The condition of the mother, if not helped, could become such as to cause a complete collapse, bringing another problem to her household.

Also, the unborn child would have been born seriously handicapped, to become an extra care for its parents and a possible future burden to the community.

The allocation from the Community chest to the maternity clinic for emergencies, medicine being one of the several named needs, was used in this case to provide the needed medicine for this mother, with the result of a happy state of mind and a rapidly improved note in her health, and a reasonable assurance of the birth of a healthy baby.

And on this phase of welfare work goes from the emergency fund special medicine, special food, special maternity care, a very special work administered through funds provided year to year from the Twin City Community chest.

UNHAPPY CHOICE FACED BY HITLER
Believed Certain To Lose Battle Of Atlantic In Any Event

By Richard L. Turner
WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. — (The World Special News Service)—President Roosevelt has presented Adolf Hitler with a simple choice.

The Nazi dictator can withdraw his submarines and surface raiders from the seas, or risk a naval war with the United States—a war such as he is hardly prepared to wage.

A fateful decision has been offered him, one that may affect the shape of American and of world history for years to come.

And, whatever his choice, the long run, eventual result will, as administration spokesmen see it, be the same.

If he withdraws his submarines, the battle of the Atlantic is won. American goods can flow freely to Great Britain.

With the help of American war materials and food supplies, American long-range bombers and American protective fighting planes, England, it has been said many times, will eventually win the war.

If the Nazi U-boats continue to menace the sea lanes they must pit themselves against the combined strength of the British and American navies—an unequal struggle that can have but one result.

Again, Hitler must lose the battle of the Atlantic, if the observations and calculations of the military and naval experts mean anything at all. And again the sea lanes are open for American supplies flowing to England and a British victory is facilitated.

Thus, the president's announcement of Thursday evening that Axis warships would be sunk on sight if they venture into waters considered vital to American defense, could easily prove one of the most decisive factors of the war.

A military and diplomatic stroke of the first importance, it also carried with it elements of the "war of nerves" which Germany used with striking success to prepare her victims for Nazi conquest.

Mr. Roosevelt told the Axis to keep its warships out of American defense zones or have them sunk. But he did not say nor even intimate just what the boundaries of those zones were or would be.

Secretary Hull explained later that they would be fixed by the actions of Germany herself. The Nazis, he said, are engaged in a campaign of world-wide conquest. American defense efforts must follow the same broad gauge.

Obscure though his language was, his meaning was clear enough. America is reserving the right to say whether the appearance of a Nazi submarine anywhere on all the seas of all the world menaces American security, the decision to be based upon developments now unforeseen and the progress and direction of the Nazi campaign of conquest.

The result is that Hitler cannot dispatch his U-boats to any point outside their German harbors without a jittery wonder as to whether, no matter where they are going, they will there be stepping on the toes of the United States and become the targets of the guns and depth charges of the American fleet.

All this, and the apparent discomfiture of the Japanese was facilitated by the great Nazi blunder of marching into Russia. The Russo-German war apparently is destined to run through the winter at least, instead of becoming the quick victory which Hitler expected it to be. The consequences of this miscalculation are, like the defense zones, world-wide.

In sparing with the United States, a principal Hitler weapon has been Japan—the possibility that if the United States should become involved with Germany in the Atlantic, this country would find itself simultaneously involved with Japan in the Pacific.

But Hitler cut himself off from Japan when he attacked Russia. He made Russia a wall standing between himself and his Far Eastern Axis member. He also made Russia a potential enemy of Japan. The latter has not a single friend left among her neighbors. She is surrounded and isolated. So she has been asking for terms, and more moderate influences have taken control at Tokyo.

Mr. Roosevelt could face Hitler with the comfortable knowledge that if the worst came to the worst he probably would not have to deal with a second enemy in the Pacific.

There are dangers of war in the new course. Mr. Roosevelt was the first to acknowledge that. But it depends now on what Hitler does.

"The sole responsibility rests upon Germany," Mr. Roosevelt said. "There will be no shooting unless Germany continues to seek it."

Movies low-brow? Ha! Shakespeare's classics have been adapted some 47 times since nickelodeon days, Romeo and Juliet heading the list with seven versions.

U.S. Navy Band Tops All Others In United States
Announcement Of Outfit's Appearance Here Meets With Quick Response

Announcement of the coming to Monroe on October 17 of the United States navy band has met with instantaneous response throughout the Twin Cities and also throughout north Louisiana as no previous appearance of the band here is recalled and it ranks as "tops" among bands in the United States. The Teflis Grotto, Masonic group, is sponsoring the appearance here of this unusually fine musical organization and is backing its selection of this band with a guarantee of much more than $1,000.

There will be two performances, one in the afternoon at a greatly reduced price and the one at night, also at popular price. Appearance of this band is being advertised throughout the entire area of north Louisiana and thousands of people are expected to come to Monroe to enjoy the unusual opportunity afforded. The Chamber of Commerce also is backing the project to the extent of using its influence to secure record-sized crowds.

The United States band is heard at regular intervals over the networks of both the Columbia and National broadcasting companies. The Hour of Memories program, which has been a radio feature for eight consecutive years, and is broadcast at 1 p.m., central standard time, on Mondays, never fails to result in an avalanche of mail from radio fans in all parts of the world. Over half a hundred recordings, preserving for years to come the music of the navy band, are listed in the Brunswick catalogue of phonograph records.

The year 1937 added a bright and interesting chapter to the glowing history of the achievements of Lieutenant Benter and the navy band, when, as guests of the Canadian national exhibition, they played an extended engagement in a foreign country.

The acclaim with which they were received, both by press and public will be all the more appreciated by glancing over the historical record of band music in Canada. In the background are observed the military band schools of England, heralded as among the finest in the world. Graduates of these schools migrate to the Dominion, musicians from Canada serve overseas, thus transplanting traditions of the mother country.

The grand old custom of holding band concerts, a custom which has been popular in England since 1813, has played an important role in increasing public understanding of and love for band music. Through the years these increased, and in 1895, there were 222 such contests in England. Year after year the best bands of the British empire have been selected to play at the Canadian National exhibition in Toronto. In the year of the last coronation, the United States navy band was the honored guest of Canada and twice daily for two weeks gave concerts in the magnificent band shell at the exhibition, besides appearing in parades and pageants.

Glowing tributes were paid in the Canadian press to the merits of navy band. Among other things, press stated:

"Obviously this extraordinary U. S. navy band is something to hear, rave about, for we have not heard its like before and shall not so again."

"Mr. Benter's musical interpretations have the authority of music ship in the highest and the proportions of disciplined imagination."

People of north Louisiana are have a real treat in store when nation's greatest band appears in concert here next month, music lead concede.

SCUTTLE WAS RIGHT!
NO USE LEAVIN' THAT INDIAN FOR SOME NOSEY
GUY TO FIND---WE'LL PLANT HIM WHERE HE'LL NEVER GET FOUND--

YEAH! HEY!
LOOK! SOME NOSEY GUY
HIM ALREADY--

HUMPH! WHEN WARBUCKS' BOYS DIDN'T SHOW UP I FIGGERED SOMETHIN' MUSTA
SLIPPED---SHOT THROUGH
TH' GIZZARD!---SH-H---

HAW! HAW!
HE JUMPED FOUR FOOT INTO TH' AIR--LIT IN THEM BUSHES!

HA!
GOT

GAD! WE SURE ARE IN A PICKLE NOW--LIKE RATS IN A TRAP--AND WE KNOW THAT NO MESSAGE GOT THROUGH SO THERE'S NO HOPE OF HELP FROM OUTSIDE--

ONE MISHAP
COULD RENDER HIM POWERLESS TO AID US--

FORTY-FOUR JOHN KNOWS WE'RE IN HERE--

ONE PISTOL
AND HALF A BOX OF CARTRIDGES TO HOLD OFF SCUTTLE AND HIS GANG---

AND ALSO ONE RIFLE SEQUESTERED
IN TROUSER LEG--- AND MANY CARTRIDGES-- WE CAN DEFEND OURSELVES---

YEAH!
BUT WHEN DO WE EAT?
---AND WHAT?

SH-H-H---
YOU ARE!

O. K., WISE GUY---
I KNOW YOU'RE WELL ARMED--LOOK--I'M GIVING YOU ONE MORE CHANCE--COME OUT, OR I'M GIVIN' YOU
TH' BUSINESS IN THERE--

IF I SHOW MYSELF I GET SHOT-- WHY SHOULD I BE IN A HURRY? WE CAN HOLD OUT BACK
HERE IN THE MINE
FOR A LONG TIME--

HA! THAT'S WHAT YOU THINK-- I'M HOLDIN' A HOSE HERE-- WHEN I TURN IT ON POISON GAS WILL FIX YOUR CLOCK IN TEN MINUTES--

ULP--YEAH? I DON'T BELIEVE IT!
ANYWAY, IT'D TAKE A LOT OF GAS TO FILL UP ALL THIS MINE---WE COULD RETREAT, YOU KNOW--

IT'S DOWN HILL ALL
THE WAY, AND THIS IS HEAVY GAS--IT'LL FOLLOW YOU TILL IT GETS YOU---ARE YOU COMIN' OUT?

NO!

O. K.---HERE IT COMES!
HA! HA! HOLD YER NOSE, PAL---YOU WON'T LIKE THIS!

IT IS POISON GAS!
AHEAD OF IT!

BUT HOW

MOVES SLOWLY--
WE'RE WELL AHEAD OF IT-- BUT IT'LL KEEP COMING--HOW MUCH FARTHER CAN WE GO, PUNJAB?

HALF A MILE, PERHAPS-- BUT WHILE THERE IS LIFE THERE IS HOPE--

I'D SWAP
HOPE IN TH' WORLD FOR SOME GOOD
RIGHT NOW--

Maw Green

MY WIFE HAS BEEN VISITING HER MOTHER FOR OVER A MONTH--

BUT I'D ONLY BE WASTING MY TIME IF I WROTE AND SUGGESTED SHE COME HOME--

WHY DON'T YE GET WAN O' TH' NEIGHBORS TO WRITE TO HER AND

ASTONISHING FLIGHT

Tarzan

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

INVITED FROM HIS CAPTORS, STOUT KING KORNAK TURNED TO HIS PEOPLE.

ME. NOW THERE IS NO NEED TO SACRIFICE YOUR FREEDOM---FAREWELL, IBEKS---FIGHT ON!

LIKE A FELLEED OAK, THE VALIANT MONARCH CRASHED TO EARTH.

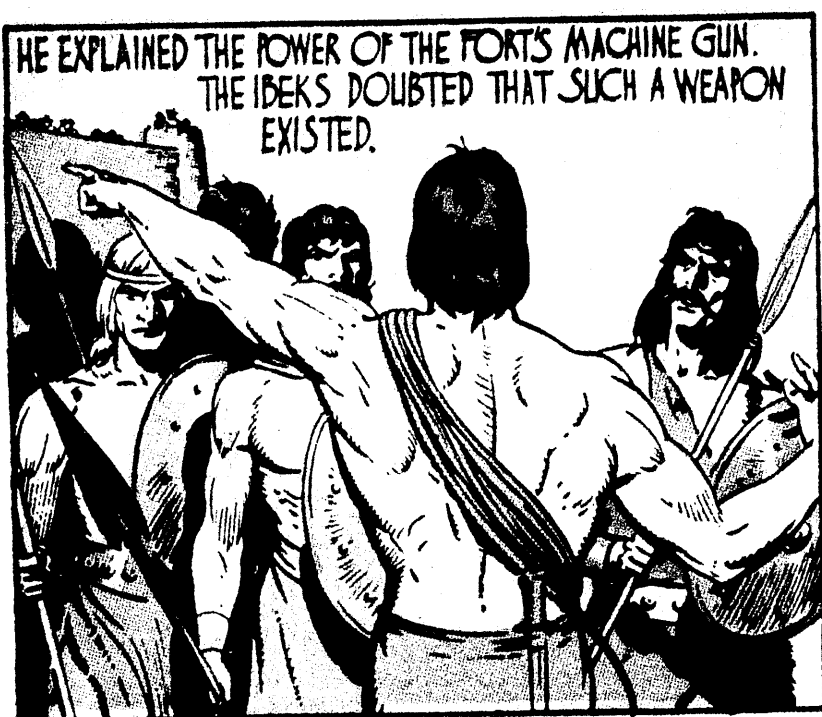

THE IBEKS STOOD IN SILENT TRIBUTE TO THEIR KING, WHO HAD GIVEN HIS LIFE TO CANCEL THEIR PLEDGE OF SURRENDER.

THEN THEY WERE SEIZED WITH VENGEFUL FURY. "TO ARMS!" THEY SHOUTED. "STORM THE FORT! DEATH TO THE TYRANT!"

AS THEY TOOK UP THEIR ARMS, TARZAN TRIED TO DISSUADE THEM FROM A SUICIDAL DAYLIGHT RAID.

HE EXPLAINED THE POWER OF THE FORT'S MACHINE GUN. THE IBEKS DOUBTED THAT SUCH A WEAPON EXISTED.

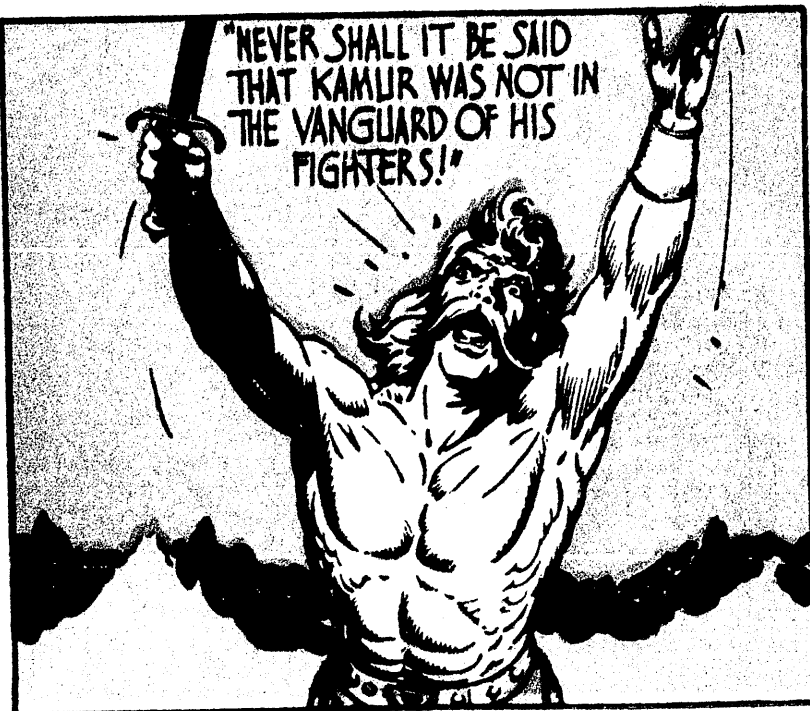

HOWEVER, LIKE MANY MEN-AT-ARMS, THEY HAD BLIND FAITH IN THEIR ACCUSTOMED INSTRUMENTS OF WAR.

"IF TARZAN IS A COWARD, LET HIM GO HIS OWN WAY," ONE GROWLED. "WE WILL FIGHT!"

KAMUR TRUSTED TARZAN'S WARNING. HE TRIED TO HALT HIS FRENZIED MEN. WHEN HE FAILED, HE JOINED THEM, CRYING:

"NEVER SHALL IT BE SAID THAT KAMUR WAS NOT IN THE VANGUARD OF HIS FIGHTERS!"

THEN AS HE SPURTED AHEAD, HE GASPED WITH ASTONISHMENT. THERE WAS TARZAN, RUNNING AWAY!

JUNGLE JIM

RAYMOND

BOBO HAS LED JIM INTO THORSON'S VAST, WATER-FILLED CAVERN WHICH SERVES AS AN UNDERGROUND SUBMARINE HARBOR. HUGGING THE ROCKY WALL, THEY MAKE THEIR WAY TOWARD A CONCRETE DOCK TO WHICH A SUBMARINE IS MOORED--

SUDDENLY A GROUP OF FIGURES APPEARS ON THE DOCK. ACCOMPANIED BY LIL AND KITTY, THORSON BIDS HIS GUESTS, THE SUBMARINE OFFICERS, FAREWELL--

THEN, WHILE JIM AND BOBO WATCH, THE OFFICERS ENTER THE CONNING TOWER AND THE SUBMARINE SLIPS ITS MOORINGS AND DIVES FOR THE UNDERWATER OPENING WHICH LEADS TO THE OPEN SEA.

Flash Gordon

Registered U. S. Patent Office

WITH JUSTIFIABLE PRIDE, FLASH DISPLAYS HIS WAR-ROCKET--"WANT A TEST FLIGHT?" MAJOR DANVER IS EAGER--"IT'S OUTSIDE OF MY ORDERS--BUT I CAN'T WAIT!"

THE MILITARY INTELLIGENCE OFFICER IS CONVINCED AT LAST THAT FLASH'S AMAZING ACCOUNT OF INTERPLANETARY TRAVEL IS TRUE--"I MUST RUSH YOUR WAR PLANS TO WASHINGTON!" FLASH SMILES--"WE'LL PICK UP DALE AND ZARKOV AND BE THERE IN AN HOUR BY STRATOSPHERE--IT'S ONLY A COUPLE OF THOUSAND MILES!"

THE NATION'S CAPITOL, WITNESS OF MANY DEVELOPMENTS IN A SWIFTLY CHANGING WORLD, BEHOLDS ANOTHER, AS FLASH GORDON GUIDES THE EARTH'S FIRST WAR-ROCKET OVER ITS MAJESTIC DOME.

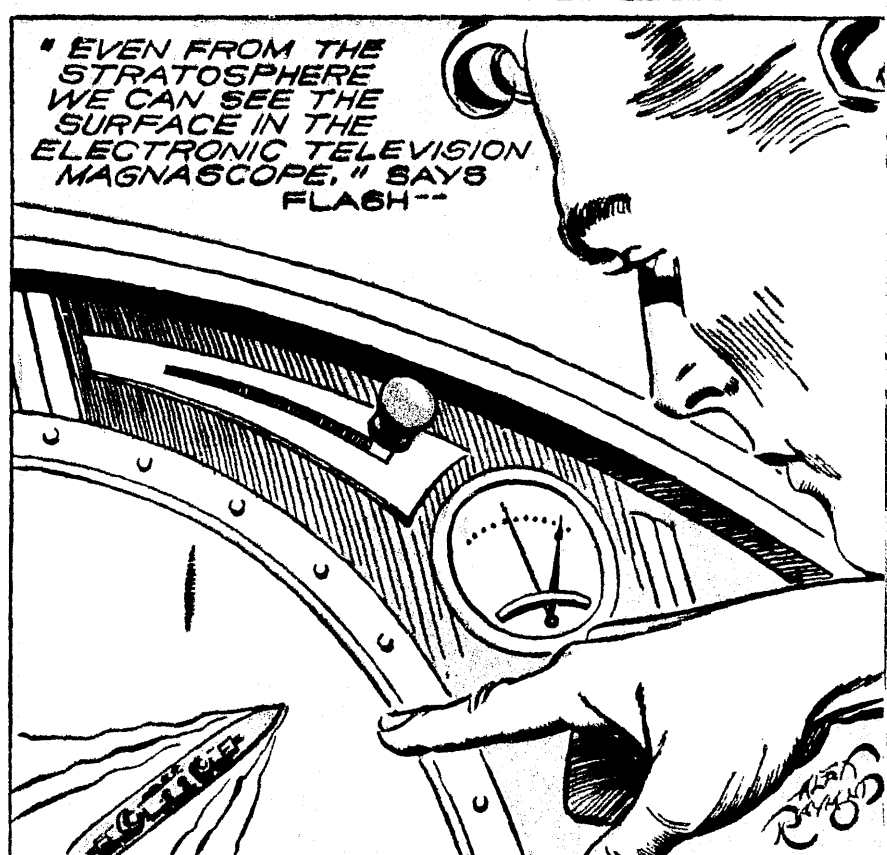

EXCITED OFFICIALS ARE SWIFTLY ASSEMBLED TO INSPECT THE STRANGE NEW DEFENSE WEAPON. WHILE ZARKOV GOES INTO CONFERENCE ON PRODUCTION PROBLEMS, FLASH EXPLAINS HIS ROCKET TO MILITARY, NAVAL AND CIVIL EXPERTS.

Copyright 1941, King Features Syndicate, Inc. World rights reserved.

WITH MAJOR DANVER AT THE CONTROLS, FLASH HEADS SEAWARD TO PUT HIS ROCKET THROUGH ITS PAGES--"FLIGHT IS CONTROLLED BY FIRING DIFFERENT BANKS OF ROCKETS POWERED BY STEPPED-UP RADIO-ACTIVE DISINTEGRATION." HE POINTS OUT.

9-14-41.

"EVEN FROM THE STRATOSPHERE WE CAN SEE THE SURFACE IN THE ELECTRONIC TELEVISION MAGNASCOPES," SAYS FLASH--
